Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Andrew M. Cackley, John P. Hyde, William H. Woolf, Clarence L. Kennard, Lewis R. Jones. 5.

ANDREW MOORE CACKLEY was born in Pocahontas County, West Virginia, May 28, 1849, and died in Roanoke, Virginia, April 28, 1913. When but a lad his father moved to Greenbrier County, West Virginia, where he grew to manhood. He was converted at an early age, and so clear and remarkable was his conversion that those who were present on that occasion predicted that he would be a preacher. Not long after that happy event God called him into the ministry. He was happily married to Miss Annie Moomaw, of Petersburg, West Virginia, who preceded him to the heavenly home in the year 1901. He was licensed to preach by the late Rev. W. G. Coe, then presiding elder of the Lewisburg District, and united with the Baltimore Conference in 1875. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Kavanaugh, at Alexandria, Va., in 1877, and ordained elder by Bishop Keener, at Front Royal, Va., in 1880. He served the following charges during the years of his faithful ministry: 1875, junior preacher on Prince George Circuit, Md.; 1876, junior on West River Circuit, Md.; 1877-9, Jefferson Circuit, W. Va.; 1880-1, Petersburg, W. Va.; 1882-3, Frostburg, Md.; 1884-6, Waynesboro, Va.; 1887-90, Lexington, Va.; 1891-4, Martinsburg, W. Va.; 1895-8, Falls Church, Va.; 1899-1902, Middletown, Va.; 1903-4, Hyattsville, Md.; 1905-07, Keyser, W. Va.; 1908, Ronceverte, W. Va.; 1909-11, Marlinton, W. Va.; 1912-13, St. James, Roanoke, Va. He was one of the clearest expounders of the distinctive doctrines of Methodism that we have had in the Conference. He was at home with Arminian theology and loved, with passionate heart, the doctrines as taught by Wesley. He was a man of unusual religious experience. The deep and abiding truths of God in the soul were so vital to him that he not only preached them, with joy and gladness, to others, but found rich and abundant peace for his own soul in the midst of life's responsibilities. Out of this rich treasury he brought forth, to those privileged to sit under his ministry, things both new and old. No sacrifice was too great for this servant of God to make for the things he believed to be true. The Baltimore Conference, in its long and honored roll of the heroic dead, has never had a more faithful son in devotion and fidelity to the high ideals that have characterized her in the past than he. He endeared himself to the members of the Conference by his purity of life and quiet, kindly manners. The young man, just entering, found in him a friend always ready with words of welcome and cheer. To grasp his hand and feel the genial warmth of his kindly smile was to press forward with renewed devotion in the work of proclaiming the glad gospel. By the gifts of nature he was a gentleman, every inch; and by the blessings of grace he was a Christian, thus culminating in this singularly beautiful and attractive life that noblest product of our religion, a Christian gentleman—such was Andrew M. Cackley. His courtly demeanor and noble bearing, with gentle and smiling face as transparent as the morning light, made him a conspicuous figure in any assembly. He loved to preach the simple gospel of the loving Christ, and in the varied fields of his ministerial labors there are hundreds to-day whose feet he has led into that path whose ending is in the City of God. Wherever he labored he brought glory to the kingdom of his Lord and advancement and victory to the Church he served. Not only was he a faithful dispenser of the Word of God, but a most diligent and faithful pastor as well. He gave his very life to the flock over which the Conference had appointed him shepherd, entering like a beam of sunshine into all homes and hearts, advising and counseling, comforting and consoling all who needed his kindly ministrations. Goldsmith's description of the village pastor seems best suited to the faithful life of this under-shepherd of the Master's sheep.

"Thus to relieve the wretched was his pride,
And ev'n his failings leaned to virtue's side;
But in his duty prompt, at every call,
He watched and wept, he prayed and felt,
for all;
And, as a bird each fond endearment tries
To tempt its new-fledged offspring to the skies,
He tried each art, reproved each dull delay,
Allured to brighter worlds, and led the way."

We shall not soon forget his devotion, through the years, to his invalid wife. He lived his life for her and counted no task too great or wish too exacting for her pleasure and happiness. He was a sufferer for many years with what he supposed was indigestion, but not until he returned from the last session of our Conference to his home in Roanoke did he discover that he was being slowly consumed by the ravages of a malignant cancer. He was not long in setting his earthly house in order and making preparations for an early departure to the city that lieth four-square, beyond the clouds, whose maker and builder is God. He gave minute directions concerning the funeral and committed his soul to the Christ of Calvary, and calmly waited the coming of the boatman to bear him over the river where he might "rest under the shade of the trees." His abiding faith and only hope for salvation were in the atonement of his Lord. In this he trusted implicitly. Often would he repeat, to those standing beside the bed, the hymn he loved best and that, in a peculiar way, expressed his thought concerning the plan of salvation:

"My hope is built on nothing less Than Jesus' blood and righteousness;
I dare not trust the sweetest frame,
But wholly lean on Jesus' name.
On Christ the solid rock I stand;
All other ground is sinking sand."

Like his Lord, he suffered the agonies of the dread disease to the end without taking opiates of any kind, refusing them at the hand of the doctor. He wished to die possessed of all his ransomed faculties. He died triumphantly in the faith he had preached to others. Wesley once said, "The people called Methodists die well." This faithful man died well, because he had lived well. His brethren of the ministry in the city of Roanoke, and the members of his immediate household, were with him when the end came. Brief services were conducted at the parsonage by his presiding elder, Rev. G. Dorsey White, assisted by Revs. S. T. Senter and J. Howard Wells, in the presence of the Ministerial Union of that city, of which he was an honored and valued member. His remains were taken to Falls Church, Va., where, at his request, his body was laid to rest beside the sleeping dust of his wife and only child. Services in Falls Church were conducted by his friend and former presiding elder, Rev. W. H. Woolf, assisted by a number of the ministers of the Washington District who had known and loved him. While he will never again respond to his name in the Conference, and while we shall miss him more and more as the years pass, we know where he is and where we, too, shall find him when the toiling days of our pilgrimage are over.

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last."

—J. Howard Wells.

WILLIAM HENRY WOOLF came into the Methodist ministry out of the atmosphere and training of a devoted Christian home. His father's home was near Rectortown, Fauquier County, Virginia. Here he was born October 5, 1852. He was too young to take part in the Civil War, but as a boy of ten to twelve he passed his childhood amid the excitement and unrest of that troublous time. At the return of peace he had the experience of assisting in the rehabilitation of the farm life, and the establishment of the new order made necessary by the changed conditions of the labor world. It was a time when every hand took part in the productive industry of the farm life. Nowhere does the generous earth yield her increase more liberally or respond more quickly to industry and frugality than this region lying along the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. There was hard work to be done, but there was also the inspiring ministry of the grand old mountains, the refining influence of the open-hearted hospitality of a country home, and, above all, the uplifting power of the family altar of a consistent Christian home. Such conditions make men, and in them breed a passion for the culture of mind and heart. He was trained in this home for a noble career. His education was begun under tutors in the home, and later he attended a school on land donated by his father, and built and supported by the neighborhood. Later he entered Randolph-Macon College with the special purpose of fitting himself for the ministry. At the session of the Conference held at Alexandria, Va., 1877, he was admitted on trial. He passed regularly through the four years' training in the Conference, being ordained a deacon at Salem, Va., March, 1879, by Bishop Wightman, and an elder at Harrisonburg, Va., March, 1881, by Bishop McTyeire. His first four years he served as a junior preacher—1877 at Springfield, West Virginia, 1878-9 at Hillsboro, Va., and 1880 at Freedom, Md. March, 1881, he was sent as preacher in charge to Beltsville, Md., and was returned there in 1882. Two years later, on February 28, 1884, was consummated a beautiful romance which began while he was stationed at Beltsville, when he returned and married Miss Jennie Howell Magruder. God gave into their care four children, who are walking in the footsteps of their honored father. His succeeding appointments were as follows: 1884-6, Alderson and Ronceverte; 1887-8, Lewisburg; 1889-

92, Linganore; 1893, Prince George; 1894-7, Monterey; 1898-1901, Hamilton; 1901-05, Falls Church; 1906-09, presiding elder of the Moorefield District; 1910, Salem; 1911-12, presiding elder of the Roanoke District. At the Conference of March, 1913, he was returned to the Roanoke District as presiding elder, but later was changed to take charge of the great interests of the Church as presiding elder of the Washington District. He died in Washington City, October 5, 1913, and was buried at Glenwood Cemetery in that city. Across this span of years he gave unremitting toil to the Church that he loved so well. His experience as an itinerant preacher covered all the phases of the work, and the demand of the Church for his services led him onward from the most inconspicuous place as junior preacher to the fields of largest responsibility in the Conference. With unanimous voice his brethren of the Conference have said, "Well done, good and faithful servant," and we can but believe that the Great Head of the Church has admitted him into "the joys of his Lord." Henry Woolf was one of that type of men who have made the Methodist ministry a great power in this country. Preaching the gospel was his master passion. He had strong convictions. Not such as arise from prejudice or pride of opinion, but wrought out of his personal experience of the power and efficiency of the gospel of Christ. In this sphere he had entered the realm of closed questions, and he did not fear to give his whole life to the propagation of this gospel. He tried out in large measure the challenge of what God can do with a consecrated life. His preaching was always with a definite note of certainty. Many fields of human speculation he did not enter. The corollaries of the Divine Revelation he was willing to leave to minds more curious of the mysteries of life. His general information was wide, but his ministry was confined to the great self-attesting truths of the word of God. And so it was that his preaching was in demonstration of the Spirit, and with power. We may be sure that the Holy Spirit of the Great God used this man as his own instrument for the proclamation of the truth as it is in Jesus. In marked contrast with the sureness of his pulpit utterances, or rather it may be said, in the higher harmony of them, Brother Woolf was known among us for his quiet manner and modest disposition. He was never obtrusive with his personal opinions. His whole nature shrank from the assumption of responsibility that was not put upon him by a divine necessity. Though in the latter part of his ministry he was called to positions of great prominence, his attitude toward such a call to duty was always with much misgiving as to his own qualifications for the task. It may be questioned if any other system than our own could have discovered and brought out the best of his life work. He did not know how to push himself. The question always before him was, "Is this God's will?" With this question settled, he feared no man. He knew his own limitations, but he set no bounds to the use that God can make of a man who is fully given up to the divine will. One of the dominant notes of his ministerial career was his high sense of justice. No superficial offering of charity could be substituted for one moment for exact fairness of dealing. He held himself in this to the highest standard, and nothing more surely fired his soul with indignation than any exhibition of double-dealing. The great question that confronted him in the exercise of every trust committed to him was, "What is it just to do?" He recognized this as the basis of all divine service. In the discharge of his duty as pastor or presiding elder he knew what it was to see the point of view of his brother, and all felt his intense desire to secure every man's highest good. He never stopped to consider his own interests when those of another were involved. We have had more than one example when he laid aside his own comfort and right to secure an advantage for another. His sense of justice made him fearless in the discharge of duty. He was of the moral fiber out of which heroes are made. We need not dwell in this memoir upon the incidents of his personal life or ministry. This is the record of thirty-six years of faithful service, growing from year to year with increasing responsibility and care and labor. At last the burden was too heavy. His heart and brain quivered in pain under the weight, and God called his spirit home to rest. A host of souls brought into the light and liberty of the sons of God by his ministry will ever cherish his memory as sacred, and the Church will feel for many years the touch of his devoted spirit.—F. J. Prettyman.

JOHN POISAL HYDE was born in Annapolis, Md., January 31, 1836, and died in

Clarksburg, W. Va., February 17, 1914. His father was Frederick Custis Hyde, and his mother, before her marriage to his father, was Miss Jane Bruce Phillips. Dr. Hyde not only enjoyed the advantage of a Christian home, but also that of a liberal education. He graduated from St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., in 1851, and as an evidence of his standing with his fellow-students he was elected valedictorian of his class. After graduation he studied medicine for two years under Dr. Rideout. But he gave up the study of medicine, in order that he might give himself to teaching and to the ministry of the Word. We are not informed in regard to the date of his conversion. He entered the Baltimore Conference in 1860. After he ceased the study of medicine, and for two years before he entered the ministry, he taught a private school in Warren County, Va. When the Civil War began, in 1861, he was junior preacher of the Moorefield charge in West Virginia. While there he was appointed chaplain in the Tenth Virginia Regiment, and served in this capacity until the close of hostilities in 1865. From this time until the session of the Baltimore Conference in 1866, at Alexandria, Va., where this body united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, he served the church at Port Republic. In 1866 and 1867 he was appointed to the church in Woodstock, Va. In 1869 he served the church in Romney, W. Va. At the Conference which met at St. Paul's, Baltimore, 1870, on account of impaired health he took a supernumerary relation; and from this time until age and infirmity compelled him to resign, he gave his time and energy to the work of teaching. From 1870 until 1874 he taught a private academy at Brucetown, Va. In 1875 he established the Lonoke Seminary, at Martinsburg, W. Va., which he continued until 1882, when he took charge of the Valley Female College at Winchester, Va., and continued in this work until 1902, when he resigned and took a superannuate relation to the Conference, which relation he held up to his death. The schools he conducted at Martinsburg and Winchester were under the auspices of the Conference, and ample testimony is had to the fact that the work he did for the Church in this capacity was of a high order. During the time of his literary work, Dr. Hyde also preached as opportunity was given; and where he preached he left behind a wholesome impression on the minds and hearts of those to whom he ministered. In 1864 Dr. Hyde was married to Miss Mollie Tanquary, who, with five children—William V. Hyde, Harry W. Hyde, Dr. Frederick Hyde, J. Newton Hyde, and Mrs. Charles M. Hart—survives him. After Dr. Hyde retired from active life he located in Winchester, Va., where he lived up to within a few weeks of his death. The high esteem in which he was held where he lived and taught so long is shown in the testimony to his worth by the local press of the city when the fact of his death was heard. It said: "The news that Dr. Hyde has passed away has caused widespread regret among all classes of our people. He had spent many years of his life in this city, and had been identified in various ways with the growth and development of the city, and there are many persons who regard his death as being little less than a personal loss." Just before Christmas Dr. Hyde left Winchester, with his wife, to visit their daughter, Mrs. Charles M. Hart, residing in Clarksburg, W. Va. During the trip he was taken ill on the train, but continued his journey, and reached his destination much exhausted. A physician was summoned at once, and it became evident both to the doctor and the friends that his condition was critical. He rallied sufficiently, after a few days, to take a short walk, accompanied by a nurse. During this walk he was stricken with paralysis, from which he never rallied. He gradually declined until the evening of February 17, when the end came, and he fell asleep in Jesus. On the Thursday following, February 19, his mortal remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Clarksburg, W. Va. Thus has passed away another of the veterans of our Conference. Much could be written in appreciation of his qualities as a man, a teacher, and a minister of the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. But for those who knew him this is not necessary. "He was a man, take him for all in all." His life was gentle; and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, "This was a man." We shall miss him, but we know where he has gone. "Heaven opened wide her ever-during gates, on golden hinges moving, to receive him." There he is, and there we shall find him. —Isaac W. Canter.

CLARENCE LA MARTINE KENNARD was born May 27, 1863, and died March 17, 1914. He was married to Miss Mary Albaugh, of Frederick County, Md., in 1892. To them was born one child, Harold Clare, who now resides in Washington, D. C. Brother Kennard entered the Baltimore Conference in 1884. He faithfully served the following charges: 1884-7, Upper Marlboro; 1888-90, Brightwood, D. C.; 1891-3, Frederick, Md.; in 1894 he was sent to Frostburg for one year; 1895-7, East Rockingham; 1898-9, Shenandoah; and in the spring of 1900 he was sent to Hillsboro, where he served two years. In 1903 he went to Glen Wilton, where he wrought well for four years. In 1908 he was sent to Brunswick; 1909-12 he served Howard with marked success; in 1912 he was appointed preacher in charge of Chesapeake Circuit, where he was abundant in labors until February, 1913, when he was stricken suddenly while at his work and was compelled to ask a superannuate relation at the Conference of that year. In all his relations with the Church he proved that he possessed the spirit of his Master. Brother Kennard did not seek the easy field of labor; gladly he served his Church, and many will rise up in judgment and call him blessed. He was an honored instrument in God's hands in leading many souls to make a decision for Christ. He was a good preacher, and with the great sympathetic heart and love for humanity which he possessed, he was a loved pastor. But in a special manner he was successful as a revivalist; the conversions under his ministry are numbered by the hundreds. He always reported conversions at Conference. His good work, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, continued until February 7, 1913. After preaching three times, he was stricken immediately on leaving the pulpit at night. The following spring he was taken to New Market, Md., where he was tenderly cared for by loved ones and friends until his death, March 17, 1914. His funeral services were conducted by Rev. M. D. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Baltimore District, assisted by the writer and Rev. W. E. Miller, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Rev. B. S. Ruly, of the Methodist Protestant Church; and Rev. Dr. Boyden, of the Protestant Episcopal Church. All that is mortal of our brother rests in the burying-ground of Central Methodist Church, but his soul is at rest with the glorified saints, who have "served their generation, and have fallen on sleep." May the God of all comfort bless those who mourn the loss of a fond father and a loving husband!—W. D. King.

LOUIS R. JONES was with us in cheerfulness and a happy interest in all life's affairs until a recent date, when he passed from our sight, no more to be seen until the resurrection morn; he is not, for God has taken him. He had but recently passed his seventy-ninth birthday, and thus had reached a good old age. Some months ago he had a light stroke of paralysis, from which he gradually recovered; but on March 24, at the breakfast table, he had a second stroke, and a few days later a third stroke, which resulted in his death. Anticipating the approach of the end, he had made every arrangement for the same. Brother Jones was the son of Washington B. and Sarah A. Jones, and was born in Baltimore City, February 25, 1835. His education was secured in the Baltimore City schools, and he became a "clerk in the wholesale grocery house of the well-known firm of Levering and Company, Commerce Street." He was happily "converted and joined the Methodist Church at the age of sixteen years when a member of Wesley Chapel Sunday school, Baltimore City Station." While engaged in business he felt moved by the Holy Ghost to preach, but he resisted for some years. At last, however, he yielded and was admitted on trial into the traveling connection at the Conference at Winchester, Va., in March, 1860—Bishop Simpson, presiding. This Conference began its session on Wednesday, February 29, in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The year before, 1859, Brother Jones traveled as junior preacher under the presiding elder, Dr. John S. Martin, and Alfred B. Buhrman, preacher in charge of the old Fincastle Circuit. His first regular appointment after being admitted on trial into the Conference was to Salem Circuit as junior preacher, together with Rev. John C. Dice, preacher in charge. He was ordained deacon and elder at the session of the Holston Conference held at Bristol, Va., 1863, by Bishop Early. He was "compelled to go to the Holston Conference for ordination because of the disorganized condition of the Church in our territory at that time." The following is a list of the appointments he served during his long ministry: 1860, junior preacher on the Salem Circuit; 1861, Roanoke Circuit; 1862-3, Christiansburg Circuit; 1864-5, Blacksburg; 1866-7, Lewisburg; 1868, Trappe; 1869, East Baltimore Circuit; 1870, Taylor's Circuit; 1871-2, Hookstown Circuit (now Arlington); 1873-4, Reisterstown; 1875-6, Hillsboro, Va.; 1877-80, Bladensburg;

1881-2, West River; 1883-4, Milnes; 1885-8, Linganore; 1889-92, Brucetown; 1893-4, Bridgewater; 1895-8, Luray; 1899-1902, East Rockingham; 1903-06, Shenandoah City; 1907, Sudly Circuit. At the end of this year Brother Jones was compelled to superannuate on account of being injured by the wheels of his buggy, his horse starting too soon. From the injury he never entirely recovered. He located in Luray, Va., where he lived until the time of his death. Brother Jones was most happily married September 23, 1862, to Miss Mary E. V. Anderson, of Christiansburg, only daughter of Rev. E. R. Anderson. This union was blessed with six children, three daughters and three sons. Three daughters and one son, together with his widow, survive him. Rev. L. R. Jones was a clean, high-toned, Christian gentleman, faithful in the discharge of his duties as a Christian minister, a good preacher of the Word, interested in all that concerned the life and well-being of the community in which he lived. In his last days he loved to have his friends visit and talk with him in his home. A good man has gone to his reward in the "Better Country," and his memory is as ointment poured forth. His mortal remains were laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Baltimore.—W. H. Ballengee.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called one by one, and their characters were examined and passed.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Ques. 20. Who are superannuated? None.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? William Marvin Johnson. 1.

WILLIAM MARVIN JOHNSON was born in Winona, Mississippi, April 19, 1878; transferred to the Denver Conference in 1909; died at Almgordo, New Mexico, September 3, 1913. He was a remarkable man, large-hearted, sympathetic, earnest, and energetic. Converted at the tender age of seven years, all of his life was spent in Christlike service to his Lord and to his fellow-men. He made the great decision of his life in the little Bethesda church, on the Winona Circuit, in Northern Mississippi. Those who knew him well unite in the statement that never during the years of his boyhood and young manhood did he once falter or fail in the discharge of his Christian duties. After completing one year of high school in Winona, Brother Johnson left school and took up a line of study at home with a view to entering politics. When about twenty-one years of age, he met and married Miss Maggie Grady, of Winona. Four sons came to bless their union. While assisting an uncle in conducting a revival service, shortly after his marriage, God called him to the ministry. With characteristic readiness he responded to the call. He received his first license to preach in the Winona District of the North Mississippi Conference. After serving the charge at Mars Hill for two years and on the Europa and Maben Circuit for two years, he was admitted to the Conference in full connection. Failing health caused him to come to this State about five years ago. During the first year of his residence here he supplied at Hoehne, on the Denver District. He then transferred his membership to the Denver Conference, and was appointed to Aztec, New Mexico, where he served faithfully and well for two years. The condition of his health became such at this time that he reluctantly gave up the active work of the ministry, supplying various pulpits only as his health and strength permitted. Two weeks before his coronation, he removed to Almogordo, New Mexico, in the vain hope that the change in altitude and climate might effect his restoration to health. He is survived by a widow, four sons, and two brothers—Jesse S., a supply pastor of this Conference, and John G., a member of the North Mississippi Conference. The influence that the life of Brother Johnson exerted upon the communities in which he lived and labored will never be measured until the great books of life are opened. The void that his death has caused in the hearts of those who knew him well and loved him much cannot now be fully realized. When one is in the midst of a mountain range, it is impossible to tell which peak lifts its summit highest in the soft blue air, but as one goes down upon the prairies and is separated some little distance from the range, the largest peaks are seen to stand out in solitary and majestic grandeur. So, as we pass down the stream of life from the days of our profitable and pleasant companionship with our friend and brother, looking back with clearer eye and calmer heart, we shall be able to appreciate even more fully the sterling worth and integrity of the one who, "after he had served his own generation, by the will of God, fell on sleep."—D. E. Bundy, L. W. Gunby, R. U. Waldraven, Committee.

G. A. Stanton, J. L. Weatherford, Robert White. 26.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? J. C. Kindred. 1.

J. C. KINDRED was born at Holt, Clay County, Mo., April 2, 1859. Soon after his conversion he heard the call of God to preach, and after being licensed to preach, joined the Missouri Conference at Mexico, September, 1887. He felt that preaching Christ's gospel was his life-work, and was ever faithful to the call of God; not always receiving a large salary, but going where he was sent, obedient to the divine injunction, doing with his might what his hands found to do. God blessed him and gave him large results during the twenty-three years of his active ministry, and thirteen hundred and sixty souls were converted, among whom were many preachers. Brother Kindred's personal touch bore large results. He was married to Miss Hannah E. Cox, December 25, 1879, and with him she gave her life to the service of the Church and was a valuable helper in his ministry. Five children were born of this union; three have passed on, and two daughters, Nina and Ruth, with the mother, are left to mourn the loss of a husband and father. For the past four years Brother Kindred's health has gradually failed, but he bore his sufferings with great fortitude. It was his constant prayer that he might not be a burden to his wife. The end came about 10 o'clock A.M., July 13, 1914. He just fell asleep while his wife and daughter, Ruth, were at his side. It was his desire that Brother S. A. Smart assist in the funeral. He was buried at Plattsburg.—F. A. Henry.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Henry C. Wright. 1.

HENRY COLVIN WRIGHT, the faithful, useful, humble, and beloved brother, has gone to his rest and reward. He died suddenly Sunday afternoon, February 1, 1914, in the parsonage home at Worthville, Ky. He had been previously in good health, and on the morning of that Lord's day had preached a strong sermon from the scripture, "But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth his Son." After enjoying the noonday meal, he went to water and feed his horse, and then started homeward. He had reached the porch only when the stroke laid him low. For some minutes he was quite unconscious; then reason returned, but he remained deathly sick, complaining of pain in his chest. A physician was called and administered to him. The pain passed away, and the doctor, saying that the patient would get along all right, went his way. In some twenty minutes more Brother Wright asked to be raised up in bed; his wife lifted him, he threw back his head, and died without a word or struggle. The writer delivered a funeral discourse on the following Tuesday morning before a crowded and sorrowing congregation in the beautiful little church belonging to our Methodist people of Worthville. The burial took place at Pleasureville. Brother James E. Wright made the last prayer. The rain fell continuously. It was dark without and within—for family and flock. The new year had opened most hopefully for the new pastor, and he was earnestly and successfully employed in uniting and leading forward his charge in the various departments of Church work. Now the shepherd was smitten and the flock dismayed. But it is God's flock, and a new leader has been found. May the blessing of God be upon him and them! Brother Wright was born on May 3, 1848, in Pendleton County, Ky. In early youth, he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was converted at her altar, near his birthplace, in the year 1870. For years he fought against his convictions concerning the ministry, but at length yielded all to Christ and the still small voice in his heart; and on September 19, 1878, at Shelbyville, he was admitted on trial into the Kentucky

Conference and appointed to Bracken Circuit. Since that date he served the following charges, several of them for a full quadrennium: Stewartsville, Owingsville, Sharpsburg, Bethel, Germantown, Chaplin, Campbellsburg, Simpsonville, Pleasureville, Mount Zion, and Worthville. On June 23, 1870, he married Mary E. Rawlings, of whom were born five daughters. On September 8, 1885, he married her sister, Miss Margaret A. Rawlings, and three sons and two girls blessed this happy pair. Of these ten, all save one are living. The eldest son was taken away three years ago. We have excellent evidence that Brother Wright was a loving husband and faithful as a father in the training of his household. In the pastoral office he lovingly undertook the care of both lambs and sheep. No roads, or weather, or opposition deterred him. He was ever ready and reliable. He knew our rules and observed them. He accepted hard tasks and made no complaints; lived on small salaries, saved a little money, and made no debts. How he managed to educate his children and keep away the wolf remains a mystery. He gave his presiding elder many reasons to love him and few hints as to his own wants. He was a peacemaker and tactful in managing men. He won the confidence of every family he entered. I was associated with him closely for years and concerned to hear about him, but never saw or learned aught to his discredit. So prudent, genuine, godly, diligent, amiable, and sensible a servant of men could have few enemies. In going about to do good, he spared not himself, or horse, or presiding elder; on reaching home, all these found creature comforts in abundance. As a preacher, Henry Wright deserves his popularity. He gave his hearers sound doctrine in plain and loving words. His own walk was close with God, and his rich experience in grace commended his discourse. "I would rather preach the gospel," he said, "than have all the riches and honors this world could bestow." He often said, "I want to preach the gospel and go home to glory"; he could not bear the thought of superannuation. It was, however, for many years his duty and delight to canvass Conference for the fund for the relief of his superannuated brethren. We shall miss his book and pencil—his appealing word and smile. His work blessed infancy and age, widow and or-

Ques. 20. Who are superannuated? J. L. M. Hoyle, J. M. Turner. 2.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Edward Barber. 1.

EDWARD BARBER was born December 30, 1878. His ancestors were for generations noted for their refinement and education. They came over from England with the earliest colonists and settled in Maryland and Virginia. Dr. Lake Barber helped to build the first college in Maryland, as recorded in the history of Annapolis, and he is mentioned as a man of great literary attainments. Very early in life Edward Barber felt a call to preach the gospel, and he applied himself diligently to acquire the education and information that would fit him for his chosen work. When he approached manhood he was asked what he had chosen for his life work. His reply was: "I have always said, I am to be a preacher." Soon after this he began definite preparation for a life of ministerial activity. He left home and entered the Annie Arundel Academy. From there he won a scholarship in the State Agricultural College and attended there one year. Here again he won a scholarship by a competitive examination and entered the Western Maryland College, where he graduated. Brother Barber then entered the Baltimore Conference of the Protestant Methodist Church, serving in that Conference three years and teaching one year in the Alleghany Collegiate Institute of that Church. From there he went to Vanderbilt University and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, spending three years in the Baltimore Conference of our Church, and then came to the Columbia Conference and was stationed at Tangent, Oregon, one year; was then transferred to the East Columbia Conference and stationed at Walla Walla for two years, and Heppner part of one year, until he was appointed chaplain of the Washington State Penitentiary. He served in the last-named appointment and as a teacher of English in Columbia Junior College until his death, February 22, 1914. He was married to Miss Alma Mildred Welsh, and three bright children blessed this union; one was born only seven days before his death, which occurred at the Walla Walla hospital after a surgical operation. Brother Barber was a good man, of keen intellect and kindly spirit, and humble and modest bearing. He was greatly loved and missed by the officers and inmates of the State Penitentiary, and their grief was great when the news of his death was announced; the most hardened were overcome with grief. His body rests in the old home cemetery at Gambrills, Md., awaiting the morning of the resurrection.—C. R. Howard.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? George W. McClung, Monroe E. Stafford, James H. Burns. 3. (The latter died in 1913.)

GEORGE WASHINGTON MCCLUNG was born in Greenbrier County, W. Va., August 10, 1850, and was reared in a Christian home. He received a primary education in the county schools; and being energetic, he struggled for a higher education, and for his day stood above the average in education. He was united in marriage to Miss Hattie Bivins, February 27, 1880. To this union was born eight children. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at thirty-three years of age. No sooner had he given his heart to God than he felt the call to preach; and after about three years, he left the several affairs of life and with his young wife he laid all on God's altar. In the fall of 1886 he offered himself to the Western Virginia Conference, and was received on trial; proving true, he was received into full connection in 1888. He traveled for twenty-one years, and was pastor of the following charges: Charleston Circuit, Buffalo, Brownstown, Summersville, Meadow Bluff, Newton, St. Albans, Fayetteville, Greenup, Wayne, C. H. Grayson, Rivesville, and Burnsville. Brother McClung's health gave way, and for eight years he was superannuated, during which time he was faithful and loyal to his Church. He was a good pastor, and was loved and respected by all who knew him. His health continued to fail. He lived for some time at Alderson, W. Va., and then moved to Morgantown, where he dwelt until March 25, 1914, and quietly left us and passed to his reward. He lived a pure life, beloved by his brethren, and passed into the future without a cloud. Of him it may be said, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." He was taken to his home county, where his remains were laid to rest, amid the tears of a sorrowing wife and children and a host of friends.—A. E. O'Dell.

MONROE EDWARD STAFFORD was born at Trigg, Giles County, Va., October 12, 1869, and died at Princeton, W. Va., April 11, 1914. His remains rest in the family cemetery at the place of his birth. He was the son of John R. and Mary Jane Stafford, two plain, intelligent, and consecrated Christians. I visited in their home in 1898, and was impressed with the sweet atmosphere of gentleness and goodness manifested there. He had one brother and three sisters: James M., Essie V., Cynthia, and Mrs. Harry B. Peters. His father, brother, and one sister are living. He was reared on the farm amid the scenes that would inspire noble thoughts and holy ambitions, and received a good common school education in the public school of the community. He was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when he was about eleven years of age. On June 6, 1894, he was married to Miss Gertrude Walker, of Eggleston, Va. She was a sweet-spirited Christian lady, and this union proved to be a very happy one. At the time of his marriage he was in business at Pulaski, Va., but about one year afterwards he moved to Graham, Va., and went into the mercantile business. On June 24, 1895, a son was born into their home. They named him Roy Alexander. On August 29, 1895, his wife died, leaving him broken-hearted and discouraged; but the sorrows of his life were increased when on September 21, 1895, the soul of his son ascended to its mother. Early in his life he had felt the call to preach but had not heeded thus far, and he firmly believed that God stirred up his nest and took away his family because he had not been doing his duty. So he disposed of his business at once and began to prepare for the ministry. He entered Princeton Academy, Princeton, West Va., in September, 1895, and remained there one year. In September, 1896, he entered Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va., where he remained two years. It was there that I first met him. We soon became intimate friends, and from that time until his death I did not have a truer friend than he. At times he was very sad and despondent because of the death of his family, and as we took the long walks over the college farm in the evenings he opened his heart to me as to no other, possibly. He was a devout Christian, an accurate and a painstaking student, and was loved by all who knew him there. In September, 1898, he joined the Western Virginia Conference at Catlettsburg, Ky., and was appointed to the Madison charge. On June 18, 1902, he was married to Miss Carrie Stafford, of Paintsville, Ky., who labored faithfully with him and who cheered and helped to sustain him until the end came. To this union were born three children: Garland Reid, Marian Rebekah, and Virginia Kathleen, who are ten, seven, and four years of age respectively. He served the following charges: Madison, two years; Pikeville, one year; Paintsville, one year; Buffalo, four years; Ravenswood, four years; and Ansted, two years. He was superannuated in September, 1912. He did faithful and efficient work on each of these charges. He was gentle, humble, and unassuming, but he preached well and looked after every interest of the church systematically and diligently. His daily life in his home and among his people was a benediction in itself. He did his work earnestly and carefully until he could go no further, and then through many months he fought against disease, but little by little he faded from us until he was no more. I knew him intimately about seventeen years, and have always looked upon him as one among the cleanest and the purest men I have ever known.

"Mark how yon clouds in darkness ride,
They do not quench the orb they hide;
Still there it wheels, the tempest o'er,
In the bright sky to burn once more:
So, far above the clouds of time,
Faith can behold a world sublime;
Then when the storms of life are past,
The light beyond shall break at last."

—B. M. Keith.

JAMES HARVEY BURNS, son of John Lewis and Martha Lester Burns, was born in the State of Illinois, April 15, 1832. His mother died when James Harvey was an infant, and his father brought him back to near Louisa, Ky., the home of the Burnses, and James was placed in the hands of his Grandmother Burns, who was one of the most saintly women in the community. She reared the child in the fear and love of God. When in after years his father established a home near Louisa, James was brought under his care and training. In early life he was placed in school in the town of Louisa, where he received his education. Having finished his education, he entered the law office of Judge James Rice, who was his uncle by marriage. Here he remained for some two or more years. In 1847, when Ezra Thornton (who was the Jeremiah of this Conference) was stationed in Louisa, he joined the Methodist Church and was converted. The inspiring sermons preached by Brother Thornton continued to linger in the soul of young Burns. He had made good progress in the profession of the law, and had a bright future before him. The law firm of James Rice had no peer in Eastern Kentucky. The prospects for success in his profession seemed bright, and gave promise of political fame and fortune. All of these things did not quench the voice from within, "Go preach the gospel." Finally James Harvey Burns was licensed to preach the gospel in the Methodist Church, and in 1856 he entered the Western Virginia Conference on trial. In 1858 he, in connection with Paul H. Hoffman, was appointed to the Point Pleasant Circuit, which embraced the Great Kanawha Valley to the town of Winfield. G. B. Poage was the presiding elder. At the session of the Western Virginia Conference which was held in Parkersburg September 7, 1859, Bishop Andrew presiding, J. H. Burns's name appears in the class of those who were received into full connection, and he was ordained deacon in the class of local preachers. At the Conference of 1859 he was appointed to the Monroe Circuit in the Greenbrier District; and at the session of the Conference held at Point Pleasant in September, 1860, he was returned to the Monroe Circuit, with James Hank as junior preacher. There being no session of the Western Virginia Conference from 1860 to 1866, Brother Burns continued in the territory of the Greenbrier District, preaching where and when he had an opportunity. On June 5, 1865, he was married to Mrs. Mary L. Peck, who lived near Fincastle, Va. Their marriage was blessed with four daughters. His faithful wife died several years ago and left him an invalid to the care of their daughters. At the session of the Conference held in Greenup, Ky., February 26, 1866, Bishop Kavanaugh presiding, Brother Burns was returned to the Western Virginia Conference and received an appointment in the Clarksburg District. He was assigned to some of the most prominent charges in the district, serving full terms. In 1876 he was made presiding elder of the Clarksburg District. Having served a full term, he was in 1881 appointed presiding elder of the Parkersburg District, which he served until September, 1883. He then returned to the pastorate, where he served until 1889, when he was placed on the list of superannuates, and so remained until January 7, 1913, when he quietly passed away. James Harvey Burns was endowed with a strong body and a logical mind. As a preacher of the gospel, he was clear in his presentation of his Master's mission. His ministry was blessed in the salvation of hundreds of souls. He had a sweet, musical voice, and multitudes were often spellbound by his singing. His voice retained all of its charm until the close of his life. His afflictions were rather peculiar. Strong in body and mind, but afflicted with rheumatism in one limb so he could not walk with ease, he met the inevitable with the spirit of a hero. For fourteen years he remained in the shadows of a superannuate without a murmur, taking the small sum which the Conference allowed him without complaining. He finally became a perfect invalid, yet he was cheerful and full of faith and hope. It was our privilege to visit him in his last days. He never failed to request us to hold a prayer service with him. It is due his sacred memory that we say, James Harvey Burns lived a pure life and went home to God without a blot on his name. —John Martin.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called one by one, and their characters passed, except A. W. Brooks and H. E. Mouse, who had withdrawn from the ministry and membership of the Church.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Slipher, Joab Spencer, J. D. Wood. 26.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Joseph King, W. D. Stewart, L. H. Vandiver, W. K. White, L. B. Edwards, W. B. Palmore. 6.

L. H. VANDIVER was born in Hardy County, Missouri, August 19, 1830; died at Fayette, Missouri, December 24, 1913. He was twice married. First to Miss Mary A. Nance, February 23, 1853. Two children were born of this union—Hon. William D. Vandiver and Mrs. C. E. Davis. After the death of this wife he was married to Mrs. E. C. Clover, who, together with his two children, survives him. Brother Vandiver was converted and joined the Methodist Church when about eighteen years of age. He was licensed to preach in 1870 and joined the Southwest Missouri Conference in 1880. He served eight circuits and two stations, and was useful and successful, receiving about fifteen hundred people into the Church. He was superannuated in 1900. Brother Vandiver was not a profound preacher, but was earnest and successful, speaking plainly and denouncing sin fearlessly. Best of all, he was a good and true man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. His end was peaceful, and he is forever at rest. If faithful, we shall meet him again in our Father's house above.—

Thomas M. Cobb.

WILLIAM BEVERLY PALMORE was born in Fayette County, Tennessee, February 24, 1844. He was the son of William Pledge and Elizabeth Ann Palmore. He was educated in private schools and in Vanderbilt University. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Central College, Fayette, Missouri. He was converted soon after the Civil War, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He felt the call to preach, was licensed, and immediately joined the Southwest Missouri Conference. He served with great acceptability the following charges: Walnut Street Church, Kansas City, Missouri; St. Paul's Church, Springfield; Independence; Walnut Street Church for the second term; also Marshall, Jefferson City, and the Boonville District. He took charge of the St. Louis Christian Advocate as editor and manager in 1890, and served the Church in this capacity till his death. He traveled perhaps more than any man in America, lecturing and preaching in nearly every country in the world. He assisted in establishing two Christian schools—one in Japan and one in Mexico; both bear his name. Dr. Palmore was a member of the second Ecumenical Methodist Conference, held at Washington in 1891, and of the one held in London in 1901, and was also a member of four General Conferences of his Church. He was founder of the order of the New Century Knights, President of the Board of Central College for Women, located at Lexington, Missouri. He was ex-chaplain of the Missouri Senate, and of the Missouri State Penitentiary; was chosen Prohibition nominee for Vice President of the United State in 1908, but declined. When the Civil War came on, he enlisted with the South, joining Marquette's Cavalry, and made a brave soldier. While in Paris, France, in 1912, he was run over by a cabman and received an injury from which he never recovered. But for this accident, he would doubtless have met the woeful fate of the hundreds that went down with the Titanic. Though he was spared to the Church, after about two years it was noticed by his friends that he was failing, and they advised him to go to the mountains of Virginia, with the hope that he might be benefited. He left St. Louis on June 29, seemingly in better health. He had a chill on the way, and reached Richmond in a feeble condition. His friends took him at once to his niece's home, where he passed away on July 5, 1914, at 12:30 p.m. A brief service was held at the home by Rev. James Cannon, a warm friend of Dr. Palmore's. His remains were brought to St. Louis, where a service was held at Centenary Church. Rev. C. M. Hawkins had charge and was assisted by a number of the pastors of the city. His honored remains were then taken to Malta Bend, where Dr. Woods conducted a service, assisted by Rev. Thomas M. Cobb and Rev. Z. M. Williams. The great crowds that gathered both at St. Louis and Malta Bend with sad hearts testified to the great esteem with which they held him. He was laid to rest, as requested by himself, beside his sainted mother, whose memory had been very precious during all the years of his many travels. A great man has fallen; one of God's noblemen has been called to higher service and sweeter joys. He loved the Church, and left all his property, amounting to about one hundred thousand dollars, to the Church to which he belonged. He fought the wrong wherever found and stood courageously by what he believed to be right. He had a rich Christian experience, was a man of prayer and of great faith. He knew Jesus as a personal Saviour, and with all the energy of his being he held up this Saviour to mankind everywhere. But he has gone out from our midst, and we shall know where to find him. His busy brain has ceased to work; his trained hand, that wrote to the pleasure and edification of thousands, has lost its cunning; his pen has dropped from his facile fingers. He has often gone out to other shores and returned to tell us in his own splendid style what he saw and experienced; but he has gone out to the eternal shores, from which no traveler ever returns. We all feel that we have lost a true and faithful friend—a strong Christian man, who has done much good and left the impress of his splendid character on more lives, young and old, than almost any man that has ever lived in our great Church. We thank God for his life, and hope some day to strike glad hands with him in

"That land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign;
Where infinite day excludes the night,
And pleasures banish pain."

L. B. EDWARDS was born in Buchanan County, Missouri, August 29, 1854; died at Chamois, Missouri, March 31, 1914. He was married three times. His third wife and seven children survive him. Our brother was brought up in the Roman Catholic faith. About 1896 he was converted to the Protestant faith, gave his heart to God, and at once commenced preparation for the work of the ministry. After preaching in the Christian Church for a few years, in 1900 he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and entered the Western Conference. Later he was transferred to the Southwest Missouri Conference, and did faithful service for his Lord to the end. Brother Edwards was a faithful husband, a kind and good father, and lived close to his Lord. He died in great peace, exhorting all about him to be faithful to the end and meet him in the better world. Peace to his memory, and blessings upon his family!—Thomas M. Cobb.

JOSEPH KING, who ascended since our last Conference session, was one of our oldest and most beloved brethren. He had been a sufferer for some years before his once rugged frame yielded to the forces of dissolution on November 1, 1913, at Zwolle, Louisiana, in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ella Williams. His remains were tenderly borne back to his adopted State, and after appropriate funeral services at Nevada, Missouri, where he lived so long, conducted by Revs. W. T. McClure, J. E. Alexander, J. T. Pritchett, and F. M. Burton, he was buried on November 5, at Independence, Missouri. Large companies of his fellow-workers and friends attended his obsequies, thus testifying their love and sorrow. According to the best information obtainable, our brother was buried on his seventy-eighth birthday. He was an Englishman by birth. On attaining his majority, he came to America and took up a homestead claim in Kansas Territory, not far from Atchison. Here he intended to settle down to a quiet farmer's life. But it was not long before he fell under the influence of two pioneer Methodist itin-erants—Revs. D. C. O'Howell and Thomas Wallace—and was soundly converted. He immediately felt the call to preach the gospel. For a long time a conflict raged within his soul; but finally yielding, he was licensed at the Mount Pleasant Quarterly Conference by Rev. Thomas Wallace, presiding elder, July 14, 1860. At this time he was about twenty-five years old and without education; but he possessed a strong intellect, a resolute will, and an implicit faith in God, and with these he set out to preach and prepare himself for better preaching. He soon took rank as a minister of more than average ability and efficiency. He joined the Western Conference the same year he was licensed to preach, and labored there for eighteen years. Then he was transferred to this Conference and served acceptably and successfully for thirty-five years on circuits, stations, and districts. About ten years ago he felt he had exhausted his strength in the active ministry, and asked for the superannuate relation, in which relation he lived patiently, sweet-spirited, and greatly honored and beloved. No sketch of this good man's life can give any adequate conception of the vast amount of good he accomplished. He reached hundreds of souls with his earnest, clear presentation of the gospel and godly life. As a counselor among the leaders of the Church, his convictions were honest and emphatic, and his judgments were clear and decisive. He appeared sometimes to be severe, but this appearance was only because of his high sense of right and duty. In heart he was tender, patient, and forward to help. He enjoyed an experience of Holy Ghost religion, lived an exemplary and irreproachable life, and was passionately devoted to what appeared to him to be his duty. As a husband and father he was tender and kind, though firm. Together with his beloved wife, he brought up his children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and had the joy of seeing them all following him in the blessed way. He loved the work of the Methodist itinerant, and loved all his brethren in the ministry, to whom he sent affectionate messages when he could meet with them no more in Conference. We miss him greatly, and sorrow after him; but, nevertheless, we rejoice with him in his realized hope of immortal glory in the unveiled presence of his Saviour and Lord, hoping to join him there by and by.

W. D. STEWART was admitted to the St. Louis Conference in 1857, and died at Keytesville, Missouri, in 1914. We regret that we do not know the time nor place of his birth, nor the exact date of his death. However, these things count lightly in the biography of one whose life was a benediction to his generation, and Brother Stewart yet speaks to us through the lives he influenced for good through his rugged but wonderful personality. He was not an educated man in the sense of scholastic training, but the Spirit of the Lord was upon him, and as a pioneer for Christ he hunted out the evil places where by his earnest presentation of the gospel, linked with magnificent exhortations, he opened the pathway to heavenly citizenship for many who were foreigners and strangers to God's kingdom.—L. L. Pinnell.

WILLIAM KELSEY WHITE, an honored superannuated member of the Southwest Missouri Conference, went away from his home in Warsaw, Missouri, on the morning of April 1, 1914, to be with Him who said, "I go to prepare a place for you." Brother White had been in this world seventy-seven years and nine months, and was one of Warsaw's most highly respected citizens for thirty-eight years. He was born in New Market, Indiana, July 1, 1836. He was the son of Joseph and Lucinda Kelsey White. His father was a native of Pennsylvania and a Methodist preacher, his mother a native of Kentucky. He was a Christian from early childhood, and began his public work as an exhorter at the age of eighteen—from an exhorter to an active member of the Methodist itinerancy of Indiana. On April 10, 1856, he was united in marriage to Charlotte M. Beery. There were born to this union five children. From this happy family the mother and daughter, Mattie, had just passed on a little time ahead, to await the coming of husband and father. Following in their footsteps are Joseph A. White, of Madrid, Iowa; Mrs. Mary Schrumm, of Santa Anna, California; Mrs. Lucinda Moxley and Miss Eva White, of Warsaw. After his removal to this State in 1876, Brother White joined the Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and continued in its active ministry until 1910, when he was superannuated. The greater part of his active ministry was given to Southern Missouri. He belonged to the old type of faithful pioneers who blazed the way for the Church of to-day. To the last day of his life he was cheerfully optimistic, as loyal as could be, and wielded a positive influence for good and genuine righteousness. His was an exemplary life and an inspiration to hundreds who have been blessed with his personal acquaintance. His funeral took place from the church in Warsaw on Thursday afternoon, April 3, with Rev. J. R. Brown, pastor, Rev. B. V. Alton, of Houstonia, and the undersigned, officiating.—W. P. Buckner.

E. B. JONES was born in Virginia, July, 1862. He died May 29, 1914, at Tangent, Oregon. He was licensed to preach in the year 1884, traveled as a supply in the Tennessee Conference until 1887, at which time he went to the Western Virginia Conference and finished a few months of the Conference year. In 1888 he joined the Western Virginia Conference on trial and was ordained deacon. He was ordained elder in 1890. He filled some important charges in that Conference until 1899, when he answered the call for men in the Northwest. In 1899 he transferred to the East Columbia Conference and was stationed at La Grange, Oregon. Then he served Pendleton, Oregon; Dayton and Oaksdale, Washington. In 1899 he transferred to the Columbia Conference, serving at Tangent for three years, then Coquille one year, and as presiding elder for three years, then Corvallis one year, and finally Tangent, where he was serving his second year's pastorate when he was called to his reward. Brother Jones was faithful and true, serving his Lord and his Church with fidelity. He loved his Lord and his Church so well that he sacrificed much for the interest of the Kingdom. The words of the Apostle Paul, "Love thinketh no evil, is not puffed up, suffereth long and is kind," were exemplified in the life of Brother Jones. He leaves a wife and three children, besides numerous friends in the East and in the West, to mourn the loss of husband, father, and friend. His place will be hard to fill.—F. M. Canfield, H. M. Law.

well, W. S. Tyler, W. R. Mays, John E. Godbey. 12.

ARTHUR TROTTER was the son of Jasper and Elizabeth Winchester Trotter. He was born near Sikeston, Scott County, Mo., March 28, 1876. He was the second of twelve children, only three of whom survive him. In the community where he was born he grew to manhood, being always esteemed as possessing those rare qualities of mind and heart which commend their possessor to all who know him. When about nine years old he was converted under the ministry of Rev. S. A. Mason, and with his father, brother, and sister, united with the Methodist Church at the old historic Rich Woods Church, situated about six miles north of Sikeston, Mo. His education was obtained in the country and graded schools, Marvin Collegiate Institute, and Central College. As a student he was eager to learn, hence ever made commendable progress. He felt the call to the ministry at eighteen years of age, and it was the desire to qualify himself for his intended life work which led him to attend college. While attending Central College, he filled one or two charges in the Missouri Conference. He was admitted on trial at the session of the St. Louis Conference held in St. John's Church, St. Louis, in 1900. At Malden, Mo., 1902, he was ordained deacon. His first appointment was Hornersville and Cardwell, which he served two years. Next he served Piedmont one year, and then transferred to the Missouri Conference. Returning to the St. Louis Conference in 1906, he was stationed at Hayti, and December 26 following he was married to Elizabeth, the daughter of James Edward and Kethe Jones, of near Caruth, Mo. After serving Bloomfield Station, he was transferred by Bishop Atkins to the Montana Conference and stationed at Bozeman. Returning to the St. Louis Conference, he served Des Loge Station two years and Malden two years, at the end of which period he was sent to Advance, which work he served until December 15, 1913, when his name was transferred from the records of the Church militant to those of the Church triumphant. His remains were taken to the Rich Woods Church, and, after services by his presiding elder, Rev. W. A. Humphrey, assisted by Rev. J. W. Ham, were interred in the home cemetery, where so many of his loved ones sleep. Besides his devoted wife, he leaves three boys and one girl to long for his loving embraces again. He also leaves three sisters—Ida, the wife of Rev. J. W. Oliver, of Senath; Mrs. Edith Koerstner and Mrs. Margaret Hyslop, of Dexter, Mo. He was a good man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. Of strong convictions and very courageous, he necessarily provoked some opposition; but he was much loved, even by those who opposed his plans or his methods. There is always a place for men in every calling who possess such sterling qualities as did Arthur Trotter.—Nelson B. Henry.

Frazer, E. E. Pate, J. D. Gilliam, W. C. Hayes, W. W. Prine, T. J. Randolph, J. T. McCormick, E. M. Gibbons, George F. Cundiff, R. D. Bennett, E. N. Metcalf, D. F. Walton, A. C. Gentle, J. D. Frazer, G. B. Overton, Smith Givan, W. R. Godbey, J. C. Petrie. 28.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Charles Y. Bog-gess, John L. Brown, Joseph W. Love, T. C. Peters, D. S. Bowles, J. G. Freeman, W. B. Lucy. 7.

JOSEPH W. LOVE was born in Crittenden County, Ky., in the year 1838. His father and mother were deeply pious Methodists of the camp-meeting type. Although he was reared in such a godly atmosphere, he did not profess conversion until he had reached manhood. He joined the Louisville Conference in 1869, and from that time until his superannuation he was one of the most faithful, devoted men in the history of the Conference. His first appointment was on Tradewater and Pond River Mission. His second charge was Albany Circuit. From this time on he filled many important circuits. He was a typical "circuit rider" of the very noblest stamp—an earnest, thoughtful, and loving expounder of the Word of God, faithful in his pastoral ministrations, with a winning smile on his open, frank countenance, tanned by exposure to wind and weather. He was very successful in calling sinners to repentance, and beloved by all, both young and old. Not soon shall we forget his strong countenance, with its clear blue eyes and noble head, crowned by its heavy suit of gray hair. He reminded one somewhat of the pictures of the great South Carolinian, John C. Calhoun. For the past two or three sessions of the Conference we have missed his presence. The shadows of age and disease have been over him, but they did not chill his living hope in Jesus Christ. A few weeks ago he expressed himself as feeling very much better, but the Death Angel was near. On Saturday, September 12, 1914, at Vine Grove, Ky., he fell asleep in Jesus, leaving a wife and son to mourn his departure. This Conference deploras his home-going. We miss his presence to-day. For forty-five years he carried the stainless banner of the cross. To-day he is in the presence of Jesus.

D. S. BOWLES was born in Taylor County, Ky., November 28, 1850, and died at his home in Bowling Green, Ky., July 21, 1914. Brother Bowles was taken suddenly ill at his place of business at 9 A.M. on the day above given, and his death followed at 5 P.M., the cause being pronounced by the doctors as acute indigestion. In his young manhood he was afflicted in one of his limbs with white swelling, and this affliction followed him to his grave; but this did not touch his indomitable will, nor cloud his faculties, nor daunt his great spirit for love and labor in the vineyard of his Lord. While still a young man Brother Bowles professed religion, and early felt his Master's call to preach the gospel; and when only nineteen years of age he was licensed to preach, and in the fall of 1870 he joined the Louisville Conference at Greensburg, Ky. Due to the fact of his physical affliction, the Conference thought it best not to receive him, and so voted, but touched by the pathos of his condition, and seeing upon his countenance the message he had been commissioned to give to the world, the Conference reconsidered its action and took him into the work; and when it did, it builded better perhaps than it knew, for his work and labor will tell throughout the coming years and leave an imprint upon the affairs of humanity that will never be erased. Brother Bowles was so badly crippled that he was compelled to use a crutch in getting about. The first work he had was New Roe. He filled this charge acceptably for two years, during the time there holding many great revivals and accomplishing wonderful results for the cause of his Lord and Master. From New Roe he was sent to Glasgow Circuit where he served for two years. During this time he was married to Miss Elnora Snoddy, who proved to be a helpmeet indeed as long as he lived, traveling with him and comforting him throughout all his labors in the Church. Let the Church pray for Sister Bowles in this sad hour. Brother Bowles served

New Roe two years, Glasgow Circuit two years, Columbia two years, Burkesville two years, Auburn one year, Livermore one year, New Roe one year, Allen Springs two years, Trenton four years, Allensville two years, Hopkinsville Circuit four years, Adairville four years, Allensville four years, Woodburn two years. In 1904, at Franklin, Ky., Brother Bowles was superannuated, and immediately he settled at Bowling Green. About this time Brother R. E. Allison, a merchant of Bowling Green, had organized a mission Sunday school in the suburbs of the city. After removing there Brother Bowles began to preach at this point, and after a while, by appointment of the presiding elder, became pastor of this small congregation. His labors resulted in a new and beautiful church building (Broadway). Perhaps he accomplished his greatest work at this little mission, in the evening of his life, but he knew no night, no day, in his zeal for lost souls. This mission has now developed into a good-sized congregation, and bids fair to become a large and influential church. During the present year this church completed a handsome little parsonage, and this was largely due to the labors of Brother Bowles, he being chairman of the building committee, himself fashioning with his own weak though strong hands much of the material that went into the structure. While at Glasgow, this already afflicted man was again touched by the hand of adversity and affliction, and the limb that was sound was broken. From thence until death he was indeed a "man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," and had to get about by artificial methods of travel, using for a long time a tricycle. But neither the first nor the last affliction dampened his ardor nor sapped his spiritual vitality, for he was a man with a cause, and neither pain nor suffering was strong enough to hinder his unconquered godly spirit from overcoming the enemy and gaining the victory. Brother Bowles had a clear Christian experience, and was far more than an average preacher in ability. His sermons were clear and practical, fraught with the Holy Spirit, and delivered with such holy zeal that the unsaved were impressed and quickly brought to God. Wherever Brother Bowles was sent by the Conference he was received cordially, and left all his charges with the friendship and love of the people he had served. "To live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die." Not only was Brother Bowles a good man and preacher, but he was a successful business man, though his business interests were always subordinate to his work of the ministry. Neither wealth, nor high station, nor the plaudits of the world, could take his eyes from the cross, nor his hand from the hem of the garments of his Lord. In social converse Brother Bowles enlivened with his sparkling wit and good humor, and was so amiable and congenial that his presence in any company was one of the real pleasures of life and enjoyed by all who had the privilege of his company. Rev. J. D. Gilliam, in connection with the pastor of Broadway, Rev. J. G. Aikin, conducted the funeral service in Bowling Green in the presence of a host of people, who had come to mourn the loss of a friend and benefactor and pay silent homage to one whom "they had loved and lost a while." In the dark hours of their sorrow and loneliness, may the God of Hosts be with the dear wife and relatives, and may they have as clear a vision of the Saviour on the cross as the sainted dead had, and in the end, some sweet, happy day, meet him in the skies. "After life's fitful fever, he sleeps well." His sainted spirit, in unison with the tender and sweet memories of his loved ones left here, may with the poet say:

"Somewhere beyond the border of the world there is a hand,
That spreads the deep blue shades of evening o'er sea and land,
And drives the red sun on behind the hills—out of our sight,
And we are free from care in this great border land of night.
The afterglow above the purple peaks; sheds o'er the way
Its splendor, and the flowers that shed perfumes are bright as day,
The evening songs bear to the hearts the softest melody;
And something whispers, 'Now behold, the region, Tranquillity.'"

—Granville W. Lyon.

JOSHUA G. FREEMAN was a native of Virginia, reared in a Methodist home, converted and joined the Methodist Church when but a youth. He was licensed to preach in his early manhood. His educational advantages were such as the country afforded. Possessing a mind capable of grappling with great problems, he read nearly everything that came in his way, especially on theology, and solved many questions which to others were abstruse and difficult. He could easily have forged to the forefront and have taken his place with the leaders in his Church; but somehow, with his miraculous ability, he lacked self-reliance. He was timid, wanting in courage, faint-hearted; and yet when he was well harnessed and encouraged to action, he was one of the best all-round workmen I ever knew. He was a fine revivalist and a fine church-builder. He could do more with the resources in hand than any person I ever knew. At one time he had an afternoon appointment to preach at a schoolhouse. When he arrived he found that it was occupied by another, whereupon he said to two unconverted men, "We will build us a church." The next day he appointed them as a building committee. In a short while an elegant church was erected. Here he held a revival, in which both of these men and their families were taken into the Church, and in a little while one of them was an efficient class-leader. His timidity was so great that at times he would rather give any preacher five dollars than to preach himself; yet, while under the leadership of the Spirit, his persuasive powers were almost irresistible and his logic invincible. After he was licensed to preach, he spent some time in revival work with that prince of revivalists, Rev. John Boreing, of the Holston Conference, a man full of the Holy Ghost. Brother Freeman traveled one year or more (possibly under the presiding elder) in the Holston Conference, before the Civil War. With many others he enlisted in the Confederate Army, and after the war came to Kentucky. He taught singing school in Adair, Russell, Clinton, and other counties. He was married three times; has two living sons, the older by his first wife and the younger by his second. He was received on trial into the Louisville Conference in 1871, and traveled the following charges: Wayne Circuit, 1871-2; Burkesville Circuit, 1873; Tompkinsville, 1874-5; Albany, 1876; Summer Shade, 1878; Temple Hill, 1879-80; Scottsville, 1881; Dixon, 1882; Oakland, 1883; Bradfordsville, 1884-5; Bowling Green, 1886; Eddyville, 1887-8; Cadiz, 1889; Bowling Green, 1890; Bowling Green Circuit, 1891-2; Franklin Circuit, 1893; Horse Cave, 1894; supernumerary, 1895; transferred to Texas, 1896; back in 1897; Woodburn Circuit, 1898; supernumerary, 1899; Eliz-abettown Circuit, 1900-03; Lebanon Junction, 1904-5; supernumerary, 1906-9; supernumerary, 1910-13. He had been in feeble health for some months, had been confined almost entirely to his bed for several weeks before his death. His devoted wife, who had nursed him in his last illness, had fallen asleep. It was about 10 o'clock P.M.; he felt that he needed a little fire, and seeing his wife was taking a needed sleep, he crawled out of the bed and kindled the fire. Somehow, in a moment his clothing was enveloped in the flames; he screamed, inhaled the fire into his lungs. He lived until the next day, suffering greatly, when he was released from earth and entered the home beyond, where the redeemed of all ages shall meet to part no more.—D. S. Campbell.

CHARLES Y. BOGGESS was born in Muhlenburg County, Ky., near Greenville, August 2, 1827. He was one of ten children, seven boys and three girls. His father and mother, Robert Bogges and Rosa Reynolds Bogges, were born in Treadway County, North Carolina. When they were quite small, their parents migrated with them to Kentucky and settled in Muhlenburg County. Brother Charles Y. Bogges was reared on a farm in that county. There he learned business and formed those habits of industry and economy which characterized his subsequent history. He received a liberal education for that day in the schools of his native county. He was admitted on trial into the Louisville Conference in 1854, and during his active ministry filled some important charges. We mention a few of them, as follows: Hartford, Hawesville, Owensboro, Madisonville, Russellville, Franklin, Glasgow, and Bardstown. For the last eighteen years he was not in the active ministry, and during this period of years he lived on his farm near Valley Station, Kentucky. By inheritance, industry, and economy, he accumulated quite a good estate. He was never a claimant on the Conference during his years of superannuation, receiving only a nominal sum from the Preachers' Aid Society in recognition of his membership in it and of his former contributions to it. In 1859 he was happily married to Miss Rose Moreman, of Brandenburg, Ky. She died some ten years since, but she ever lived in his memory and had a sacred and tender influence over his life. Two sons, Dr. W. F. Bogges, of Louisville, Ky., and the Rev. Olin Bogges, of Florida, survive him. He spared no pains nor means in the education of his sons, sent them to the very best schools, and had them finish for their respective life work in Vanderbilt University. He took the keenest interest in their calling and profession, rejoiced in the fact that one son was, primarily, preaching the gospel of health and life for the body, and the other one the gospel of life and purity for the soul. Nature was very liberal with its gifts to Brother Bogges, having given him a large, well-proportioned body and a very engaging personality. He would be seen at once as a man among men. He was a manly man. There was no cant in his make-up, and he regarded all sham as among the chiefest abominations. He was very frank and made no effort to conceal anything. It may be said that he was imperious in his nature. He required those who were subject to his directions to obey his will. To those who were not well acquainted with him, he seemed somewhat austere. He was at his best advantage with those who knew him best. They could say of him that he was really gentle, tender, and sufficiently easy of approach. He was an adoring husband and a true father. His distinguished sons had the highest regard for him and loved him tenderly. As a preacher he was not visionary, and never inclined to enter the realm of speculation. He had no taste for the ornate and made no effort to be oratorical. His preaching was plain, earnest, and direct. He had a vigorous vocabulary, from which he drew skillfully, and left no doubt in the minds of his hearers as to what he wished to say. The writer of this tribute, when a boy living in the bounds of the Auburn charge, heard Brother Bogges preach a very remarkable sermon, in which he arraigned the members of the Church who were unfaithful to their obligations. This sermon gripped the boy and made the speaker a living preacher to him to this hour. For the last two years of his life our acquaintance and friendship were renewed. On August 2, 1913, he celebrated the eighty-sixth anniversary of his birth. On this occasion many of the relatives of the family and most intimate friends spent the day with him, and it was a very enjoyable time. It was my good fortune to be one of the guests. He was in a happy frame of mind, and very gracious among his family and friends. We had a private interview during the day.

He inquired about several families who lived in the bounds of the old Auburn Circuit when he served it, and called the names of several children who lived in those homes. His mind was very active, and his memory good. We closed our private conversation with a heart-to-heart talk on spiritual things, and with his body vibrating from deep emotions, and with great earnestness, he said, "I am just waiting for the call, and am longing to join my wife in the spirit world." The waiting was not long; the call was answered in less than two months. He died on September 30, 1913. His funeral services were conducted by Dr. F. M. Thomas, Rev. J. B. Galloway, and the writer. We laid his aged body to rest by that of his sainted companion, in the beautiful church cemetery near Valley Station. We feel that all is well with our departed father in Israel.

"There comes the thought of glory,
To which our friends are gone;
The far-surpassing glory,
Beyond what earth has known.
Estate of light and gladness,
Where tears are wiped away;
The joy in blessed fullness
Of everlasting day."

—A. P. Lyon.

WILLIAM BASCOM LUCY, son of Rev. John A. Lucy, was born October 23, 1851, and died at his home in El Paso, Ark., February 21, 1914, after several years of failing health and many months of very painful illness. Brother Lucy was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when quite young, and grew up to manhood a very devout Christian. He was recognized as one of the best and most spiritual boys and young men of the community in which he lived. He had good training; his father was a local preacher who lived close to God, and his mother was one of the best women I ever knew. His father preached a great deal for a local preacher. I have often heard his mother pray until God would so bless her that she would arise from her knees shouting his praise. Being reared in the atmosphere of such a home as was his father's, the son had a good start to make a man. Brother Lucy was called to preach when a very young man, but hesitated to answer the call for some few years, fearing he might make a mistake. He read, prayed, and meditated much upon what the Lord would have him do; and finally, impelled by a sense of duty, he was licensed to preach in the year 1879, and was received on trial into the Louisville Conference at Glasgow, Ky., in the fall of 1880. Brother Lucy received his education in the public schools of Clinton County, where he was reared, and in Albany Academy, Albany, Ky. He was a teacher in the public schools of his county for several years before he entered the ministry. He was twice married. His first wife died while he was pastor at Bradfordsville, Ky. Of his first marriage one son is living, Eddie Lucy, of California. He was married the second time in 1892, and has left a wife and four children. Brother Lucy was a very conscientious, sympathetic man and preacher. He was a weeping prophet. He was a good, sound gospel preacher, deservedly popular and successful as a preacher and pastor wherever he labored. Three or four years ago, on account of failing health, he took a superannuate relation, and moved to El Paso, Ark. Here he preached when his failing strength would permit, and when not able to preach he superintended the Sunday school and labored in any way he could assist the pastor. He lived long enough in El Paso for the people to see and know his pure life, which completely enthroned him in their confidence and affection. His daughter, Miss Tommie Lucy, wrote me: "Papa went to sleep in Jesus at five o'clock A.M. Saturday, February 21, and was buried Sunday at 11 A.M. The funeral services were held in the Methodist Episcopal Church here, where he had built up the Sunday school and had done untiring and faithful work until his health failed him entirely. Some of his favorite songs, "Wonderful Peace," "I am Going Home to Glory in the Good Old-fashioned Way," and others, were sung. Brother Kelley, the pastor, gave a very tender and touching talk, saying "he had never heard any man spoken so well of, and so many nice things said by so many friends as were said about him. Every one had implicit confidence in him. Many said he was the best man they ever knew." His life was pure, his death was triumphant, and he has gone on to his great reward. He toiled hard and suffered much, but now he rests from his labors and will suffer no more. After a while we shall see him again.—S. G. Shelley.

JOHN LINDSEY BROWN was born in Hopkins County, Ky., near Madisonville, September 12, 1833, and died at his home, in Temple Hill, Ky., March 23, 1914. He professed religion in 1855 and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was licensed to preach in 1858, and was admitted on trial into the Louisville Conference in October, 1859, at Bardstown, Ky. James O. Andrew was the presiding bishop. Of the class of 1859, Thomas J. Randolph, George B. Overton, Samuel C. Allen, and William T. Reid remain, but all are on the superannuate list. Brother Brown was married in 1878 to Miss Emily Walker, who, with two children, Charles Davis and Comzella, survives him. The daughter is greatly afflicted. He also left one sister, Mrs. Sallie Fugeat, who lives near Madisonville, Ky. On March 24, Brother James F. Black, his pastor, and myself conducted his funeral service at Poplar Log Church, in Barren County; and in the beautiful country graveyard near the church his body was laid to rest to await the resurrection of the just. The large congregation that attended his funeral was an expression of the popularity of the aged preacher, who was a friend to every one whom he knew. Brother Brown was on the effective list about forty years, and had been superannuated about fifteen years. He preached frequently after he superannuated until he became too feeble, and attended preaching at his home church, at Temple Hill, until prostrated by affliction. He was an humble Methodist preacher, serving without question the charges to which he was sent. During his long ministry he received a very small salary, but I never heard him complaining. He was a good man and a faithful minister of the gospel. He served his generation well, and has gone on to his reward. Brother Brown served various charges in the Columbia District many years before he was put on the retired list. He knew well that large and important field, and was greatly interested in its development. He was anxious for his home charge, Temple Hill, to develop and become self-sustaining. The writer remembers, when he had charge of the district, the earnest talks Brother Brown would make in the Quarterly Conferences, and how he would encourage the brethren to go forward. He was always an inspiration to me as a presiding elder in my quarterly meetings. As a preacher he was acceptable; his sermons were brief and practical. The people loved him and heard him gladly. He was a devoted husband and father, a kind neighbor, and a useful man in his community. We shall miss the name of John L. Brown at the roll-call of our Conference. His labor is ended, and he is home at last.

"The pains of death are past,
Labor and sorrow cease;
And, life's long warfare closed at last,
His soul is found in peace."

—S. G. Shelley.

TIMOTHY CARPENTER PETERS was born in East Tennessee, December 1, 1831. He was dedicated to God in baptism while an infant by Rev. Timothy Carpenter, a Methodist preacher of East Tennessee fame. He was born and brought up in a religious home, where, morning and evening, the inmates gathered at the family altar for prayers; and it is not strange that at the tender age of nine years he was converted in his father's home, and joined the Methodist Church. Rev. Timothy Carpenter, who baptized him in his infancy, received him into the Church. In his eighteenth year he was called to preach the gospel, and at that time he made a full and complete surrender to God and began preparation for his life work. He was a diligent student of the Word of God. After he was through school he taught three years before joining Conference. During these three years he preached frequently, held revivals, and was active as a local minister. In October, 1861, he was received on trial into the Louisville Conference, held in Louisville, Ky. Bishop Kavanaugh presided, and Rev. J. H. Owen was Secretary. July 29, 1861, he was married to Miss Rebecca Bosley Frogge, a sister of Rev. T. C. Frogge, many years a member of the Louisville Conference. The marriage service was performed by Rev. A. B. Wright. To this happy union were born four children—Mrs. W. C. Mossbarger, of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. J. H. Skiles, of Woodburn, Ky.; Prof. T. E. Peters, of Denton, Texas; and Dr. Park Peters, who died at Madisonville, Ky., in 1894. I say "happy union." I think I never knew a happier one. Being their nephew, and Brother Peters being my presiding elder, and later being his presiding elder, I was often in their home; and I think I was never in a happier and better directed home. It appeared that they lived each for the other and sought to make each other happy; and they certainly succeeded in an eminent degree. Fifty-two years ago Brother Peters was received on trial into the Louisville Conference, and the Conference has never had a truer, a more loyal member. He was a good and great man. He had a splendid physique—more than six feet high, handsome, muscular, rotund. He attracted attention among men. God put into his strong, healthy body a vigorous, active mind, and enriched him with a great soul. From any standpoint from which the real man may be seen, he was great. Brother Peters's conversion and call to the ministry were two great facts in his life from which he reckoned. They were the two epochs from which he moved out on lines of great activity and usefulness. He was a strong, forceful, gospel preacher—always sane and sound. The man behind the message made it the more effective. Brother Peters was a very religious man. He walked and talked with God. Christ was real to him. He was a very joyful, sunny Christian. To be in his presence was a positive benediction. His was a cheerful Christianity. He delighted to preach the gospel. To proclaim salvation to a lost world was to him the greatest honor God could confer upon man. He gloried in the privilege of being an itinerant Methodist preacher. His preaching was along those lines of basic principles which stirred the souls of men and produced results. He was a man of positive convictions, and had the courage to maintain his convictions. Brother Peters was evangelistic in his preaching. During his ministry he held many successful revivals, and under his faithful gospel preaching many were added unto the Lord and brought into the Methodist Church. He was a faithful, sympathizing pastor. He rejoiced with those who rejoiced, and wept with those who wept. Many a home has been blessed in his pastoral visits. He took great interest in the young people, loved the children, and they soon learned to love him. Every one knew him, and as he would pass on the streets they would speak to him, "How are you, Brother Peters?" Many fathers and mothers have been helped to rear their children by the interest he took in them and the godly advice he gave them. A good mother in Glasgow, where he was at one time pastor, told me after his death that a letter he wrote her sons after he moved to another charge had helped her to train her boys in the way they should go. Brother Peters was an able defender of the doctrines and polity of the Methodist Church. He met in public religious discussion some of the strongest representatives of the Church of the Disciples, and also of other Churches. Our people knew that Methodism in his hands was safe, and other people were convinced that he left the battlefield more than a match for his opponent. On the condition of salvation and the witness of the Spirit he was invincible. The witness of his own heart, and the unction and glow in his arguments and messages of truth, convinced his hearers that he really presented "Christianity in earnest." Perhaps Brother Peters was seen at his best in his home. I think he came as near being an ideal husband and father as I have ever known. He loved his wife and children devotedly. He was lord of his family, and managed his affairs wisely. I suppose as a Methodist preacher his salary never exceeded eight hundred dollars, and yet he lived well, educated his children, and never left debts behind him. He was a Christian gentleman in every sense, true to his friends, and never betrayed a trust committed to his hands. He dealt with men and matters in the open, and was incapable of an ungentlemanly act. His life was a beautiful example among men. Brother Peters filled the following charges during his active ministry of forty-six years: Tompkinsville Circuit, Burkesville Circuit, Scottsville Circuit, Greenville Circuit, Cadiz Circuit, Madisonville Circuit, Slaughtersville Circuit, Corydon Circuit, Franklin Circuit, Adairville Circuit, Bowling Green Circuit, Cadiz Station, Fairview Circuit, Elizabethtown District, Lebanon District, Big Spring Circuit, La Fayette Circuit, Horse Cave Circuit, Rich Pond Circuit, Madisonville Station, Elizabethtown Station, Glasgow Station, Greenville Station, Eddyville Station, Leitchfield Station, Bardstown Station. While at Bardstown, near the end of the Conference year, apparently in excellent health, actively engaged in the work he loved so much, he was stricken with paralysis, from which he never fully recovered. At the approaching Conference he was superannuated. This was a great affliction to him, because he counted it a great privilege and honor to preach the gospel, and he was anxious to be in the active ministry four more years, making fifty years in effective service. But with perfect resignation he submitted to it as the will of God, and was the same happy man during the six years of retirement and waiting that he was during the forty-six years he stood a brave soldier on the battlefield. During these six years he lived much in the past, and would often become very happy in the memory of the many gracious revivals he had held. He never lost interest in his Church, and attended services as long as he was able. There was one very remarkable thing about him: because of his affliction, his speech was so affected he could at times hardly be understood, but when called on to pray at church the congregation could understand distinctly every word of his prayer. A good man has gone from among us. We shall miss him at the roll-call at our Conference. He was ready when the end came, and has gone to join the Church of the Firstborn in heaven. Mrs. Peters writes me: "During his affliction he was always cheerful and happy. I would ask him quite often if he should have another stroke, and should be called away from me at any time, would it be well with his soul. He would smile, and say: 'It would be well; all is well.' He loved to sing; and a few days before he died, he and I sang together, 'Jesus, Lover of my soul.' He sang every word of it distinctly. He was so calm and sweet in death. He could not talk the last few hours he was with us, but his dear face was so radiant, and he went away from me like a babe going to sleep in its mother's arms. I will go and meet him some sweet time before long. And now he is home at last, and rests in his Saviour's love."—S. G. Shelley.

Ques. 19. Who are supernumerary? T. R. Clendenin, T. M. Dent, W. S. Harwell, J. B. Jordan, Lem R. Long, T. A. Matthews, P. A. Sowell, John R. Thompson. 8.

Ques. 20. Who are superannuated? R. K. Brown, J. T. Brown, S. W. Bransford, G. D. Byrne, M. W. Charles, D. B. Coleman, J. W. Cullom, T. L. Darnell, W. T. Dye, A. G. Dinwiddie, A. M. Ezell, S. L. Fain, M. N. Ford, G. D. Guinn, J. R. Harris, J. R. Holmes, Jr., H. J. Ivie, G. P. Jackson, J. M. Jordan, H. S. Kennedy, W. H. Klyce, J. G. Molloy, R. A. Reagan, J. R. Reagin, J. H. Ray, G. M. Sanders, R. E. Travis, T. H. Woodward. 28.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? John Wesley Rooker, Henry Bascom McNeill, John T. Duncan, Sterling McAlister Cherry, George H. Detwiler, John H. Nichols. 6.

JOHN WESLEY ROOKER.—It is a great joy to think and speak of a good man. It requires but a short paragraph to recount the birth and life and death of a man. But between the dates of birth and death there are many conflicts, defeats, and victories. Rev. John Wesley Rooker was the son of John Wesley and Diana Rooker. He first saw the light of life in Dickson County, Tenn., July 7, 1836. The years he lived were a part of the times of the world's greatest achievements. We need no further information to reveal to us why our brother was a Methodist rather than the name of his father, John Wesley. At the age of fifteen, under the ministry of Rev. Wellborn Mooney, he began the Christian life. For four years he was a soldier in the army of the Southern Confederacy. There were no stars on the collar of his gray uniform indicating that he was an officer, but a truer and braver heart never beat in a human breast; and no more loyal soldier ever bore a musket or marched or fought on the battle line than John W. Rooker. On July 22, 1863, near Atlanta, Ga., he lost one leg, but he never quit the service of his country—serving in the hospitals until he surrendered with Lee. After the war he asked for and received a license to preach in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In October, 1870, he was admitted on trial into the Tennessee Annual Conference in a class of twelve other young men. He served the following charges: Shiloh, Fountain Head, Beaver Dam, Pinewood, Lobelville, Dover, Linden, Clifton, Waynesboro, Lowryville, Oakland, Lafayette, Westmoreland, Greenbrier, Chestnut Mound, Bell Springs, McMinnville Circuit, Spencer, Quebeck, Pelham, Macedonia, and Marble Plains. I submit the statement that this was a career of heroic service. He was ordained deacon by Bishop D. S. Doggett in 1872, and elder by Bishop E. M. Marvin in 1874. No preacher or knight ever remembered his vows or kept more inviolate than he the sacred vow or trust, the privileges and honors of his parchments. He was no more loyal to the Stars and Bars than he was to the Cross. He never shrank from even the hardest task. Perhaps in these many years no preacher among us ever served as difficult and as poor charges as he. On June 24, 1875, he was happily married to Miss Priscilla Mallard. One son, Caleb, was born to this union. In February, 1885, after ten years of loving companionship, when the winter winds swept the leafless forests, the good wife and mother went away and left a drearier winter in his spirit. On September 29, 1890, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Collier, of Sumner County. She was a wife from the Lord to him and a kind mother to Caleb. She and the son are left to walk the rest of their journeys without him, while the cypress boughs bend over their way. He believed in God; there was no place in his heart for doubt. Jesus was real to him. His trust and love for his Master were as real as his love and trust for Robert E. Lee. He was sure that God had called him to preach the gospel. He was not great as the world counts greatness; but if greatness consists in trust in God, if righteousness of life, integrity of spirit, fidelity to duty, unselfish consecration to a task, make one great, then John W. Rooker was great. But he was great in the simplicity of his devotion to all the pure and holy obligations of life. A few years since he consented to be retired to the "honor roll" of the brotherhood of superannuates. And while his brethren went forth to activity, he quietly retired to the silent tasks of a Christian life. He conducted Sunday schools, and taught the young, and took his place among his neighbors, and labored to support his pastors and the Church of God. Brother Rooker knew what it meant to live in the midst of the environments of need; he knew what sorrow meant, as he plodded the long, hard road of the life of an itinerant. But his face was always set to the morning. No man among us waited at the Conference for marching orders with less acceleration of the beat of his heart. But he has answered the last roll-call; he has seen his brethren go out for the last time. He has gone up on high. He has outstripped us and has overtaken the noble men of God who preceded him. He will wait to give us welcome when we go.—P. A. Sowell.

HENRY BASCOM MCNEILL, son of James B. and Ann McNeill, was born in Washington County, Ark., February 12, 1851. He was converted and joined the Church in August, 1865. He was admitted on trial into the White River Conference in November, 1878, and was ordained deacon by Bishop Pierce on November 30, 1879. He was a graduate of Searcy College (1880) and Vanderbilt University (1881); was ordained elder by Bishop McTyeire on September 19, 1886. He was transferred to the Tennessee Conference in October, 1896, and served the following charges: Red River, Hampshire and Pisgah, Wayland Springs, Lynchburg, Cainsville, Harpeth, Centenary, Manchester and Summitville, Bellevue, Dickson, Brentwood, Chapel Hill, Sparta Station, Marble Plains, Livingston, Gordonsville, Alexandria and Watertown, Liberty, and Walnut Grove. He was married in Nashville, Tenn., March 13, 1882, to Miss Mattie Erwin, who died in December, 1893, leaving the four children who now survive: E. Pierce McNeill, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.; Bascom E. McNeill, Portland, Oregon; Mrs. Merlin Sweeney, Watertown, Tenn.; E. Morrison McNeill, Jackson, Tenn. He was married in Tullahoma, Tenn., December 12, 1895, to Miss Nora Wilson, with whom he lived in happy wedlock for more than eighteen years. Brother McNeill was in his fourth year at Walnut Grove, where he had done some of the best work of his life, when he was stricken with apoplexy while preaching in Walnut Grove Church on April 27, 1913. He kept fondly hoping that he could resume work, such was his improvement; but on October 9, 1913, he surrendered and moved to Tullahoma, Tenn., where he had a second stroke on January 1, 1914. He lived until the morning of January 5, when he passed peacefully away. His work was his life. He was an untiring student and worker. He prepared his sermons carefully and delivered them systematically and earnestly. He gave himself so freely and fully to his life work that he often went beyond his strength. God and near friends only knew what it cost him to desist from his "loved employ," in which his faithful wife, who is herself one of Christ's jewels, deeply shared. He was firm in his convictions of right, which made him many fast friends. He was one of the best of fathers. To his children, early left motherless, he tried to be both mother and father. He was a true husband in every sense of the word. Out of the pulpit and in his home he was at his best. His faith, which was ever strong, grew stronger as his bodily strength failed. Two days before the last stroke he looked earnestly and lovingly at his wife and said: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." There was a triumphant note in his heart to the end. The funeral was conducted in Tullahoma by Brothers E. M. Harrell and M. P. Woods on January 5, and his body was taken to Nashville and placed in beautiful Mt. Olivet, after services at the grave by Dr. Detwiler. Our brother has passed from us to the rest that "remaineth to the people of God." His consecrated life doubtless ends in a large reward.—T. L. Moody.

JOHN T. DUNCAN, son of John Tapley and Anna Duncan, was born in Stewart County, Tenn., October 11, 1850. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in August, 1861. He joined the Tennessee Annual Conference on his twenty-second birthday, at Nashville, October 11, 1872. He was twice transferred from the Tennessee to the Florida Conference, first in 1877 and again in 1884, spending five years the first time and four the last, going each time in search of health. He served the following charges in Florida: Saline Circuit, Cross Prairie, King's Ferry, Palatka, Manatee, and Indian River; and the following in the Tennessee Conference: Lobelville, Pisgah and Hampshire, Lewisburg and Cornersville, Blanche, Saundersville, Hermitage, Unionville, Lynchburg and Mulberry, Berlin, Pelham, Centenary, and Sparta. He took the supernumerary relation in 1901 and the superannuate in 1907. He was married to Mrs. Agnes Anna Everston (née Rives) on April 26, 1882. He preached his last sermon on May 17, 1914, at Tampa, Fla., quietly breathed his last on May 28, and his body was gently laid away on May 29 in the cemetery at Tampa. His wife and three children—Bessie, John, and Roy—survive him. Brother Duncan was a man small of stature, rather frail of body, but with remarkable energy and a disposition that overflowed with perennial good cheer. I first met him in 1893, being a colaborer with him on an adjoining charge. We became close friends, worked frequently together, and knew each other intimately. I have seen him bathed in tears through deep sorrow, struggling against adverse conditions and in ill health; but I remember him best as a brother who always met me with a smile and had a word of hope and faith and good cheer. His life was full of struggles, disappointments came in the order of nature and providence, but God's grace so triumphed in his heart that he lived always in the atmosphere of hope and sunshine. His nature was sympathetic, and his affections were broad. Had his purse been commensurate with his heart, every homeless child in the land would have found a protector and father in him. The things which he undertook and carried through in an unheralded way, in relieving the distress of others, were truly remarkable when measured by his limited resources. Tenderness and gentleness marked his home life. To enter his door was to come into the refreshing atmosphere of peace and love, an atmosphere pervaded by reverence and the fear of God. He was both an example and a companion to his children, guiding them in all right ways and entering heartily into their childish joys. The dumb brutes about him knew his voice as that of love and the touch of his hand as that of a friend. His children have in his memory a goodly heritage and have each of them yielded their hearts to his godly example. They will follow after him to the land of cloudless day and eternal morning. He was a man of decided and positive convictions, was never governed by policy, and did not know how to compromise with wrongdoing. His convictions were always dearer to him than the applause of the populace. Withal he was controlled neither by prejudice nor enmity, and had an eye quick to discern and appreciate the virtues of those differing from him in opinion. Brother Duncan was a soulful, earnest, sympathetic, and effective gospel preacher, preaching mostly on the great fundamental themes underlying the soul's salvation. His goal was that of every man truly called to preach—namely, the winning of men to Christ. Making this his one business, his ministry was fruitful both in the conversion of souls and in their proper nurture. He was cosmopolitan in spirit, a man of world-wide vision; his voice was that of the flaming evangel, and he truly believed that Christ had power to save all who came unto him. He had truly a catholic spirit, labored harmoniously with God's people of every name, and rejoiced in the building of the kingdom by any faith whatsoever. Nevertheless, he loved his own Church with all the intenseness of his spirit, recognized its claim to his largest and best service, and with gladness of heart laid his whole being as a sacrifice upon her altar, rendering uncomplaining and joyous service in any field to which he was sent. He was human and had his share of human frailties; he doubtless made some mistakes, but he was quick to make his humble confession either to God or his fellows and walked in the sweet consciousness of constant forgiveness. He set no false values upon his personal qualifications, but humbly trusted that the gifts which God had bestowed upon him could also be so enriched by his Spirit as to be rendered powerful and efficient in achieving his glory. His brother, Rev. Thomas J. Duncan, and his nephew, Rev. Jerome Duncan, both preceded him to the better land. He is the last of the preachers in the family, so far as I know. These two brothers, together with son and nephew, enjoy a feast of love at the table of our Lord in the infinite realm of redeemed spirits; while we, their brethren and colaborers, tarry awhile in the Master's service here till he shall say: "It is enough; come up higher; enter ye into the joy of your Lord."—T. C. Ragsdale.

STERLING McALISTER CHERRY was born in Athens, Ala., November 30, 1835. His parents were Rev. John M. and Sarah Hooper Cherry. He was converted and joined the Church in October, 1850. He was admitted on trial into the Tennessee Annual Conference at Nashville in October, 1855. He served the following charges: Rock Creek and Rich Valley Circuits, Lewisburg and Winchester, Decatur, West Huntsville and Valley Stations, and Moulton Circuit, in Alabama. He was chaplain in the Confederate States Army from 1861 to 1865. After the war he served as pastor the following charges: Stone's River, Nolensville, Harpeth, Bethesda, Richland, Bee Spring, Mt. Pisgah, Mt. Pleasant, Spring Hill, Bigbyville, Centenary, Woodbine, Hermitage, Antioch, Cumberland, East Nashville Missions, Trinity, McTyeire Memorial, Humphreys Street, Fillmore Street, Hampshire, Alex Erwin, Lynchburg, Unionville, and Hillsboro. In October, 1910, he was granted the superannuate relation. For sixty years he was in the active work of the itinerant ministry, and no man among us was more faithful to his trust. He rejoiced in the richer experiences of the Christian life. He was my pastor when I was twelve years old. My father's house was one of his homes. There were six boys of us, and in our sports and pleasantries he was one with us. His classmate and long-time friend, Dr. R. K. Brown, has thus written concerning him: "Rev. S. M. Cherry, Sr., has risen, not fallen, to eternal rewards in heaven. The alarms of earthly warfare do not disturb his everlasting repose. He was a true soldier of Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace. I remember the first sermon I ever heard him preach, from the text: 'In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer: I have overcome the world.' His whole life was one of struggle. He went wherever he was sent without murmuring and did his Lord's work with an undivided heart. Joining the Tennessee Conference in 1855, he was in the active work till a short time before his death. He filled several stations, but the larger part of his work was on circuits. During the War Between the States he was chaplain, preaching to the soldiers, distributing religious tracts, and burying the dead. None were more faithful than he, who, with William Burr, Wellborn Mooney, and Dr. McFerrin, was a source of comfort to hundreds of Confederate soldiers. When the conflict was over, he returned to Tennessee and continued his life work of ministering to the souls of men. His wife preceded him some years and doubtless bade him welcome at the pearly gates as he entered into life eternal. Two sons—W. C. and S. M., Jr.—remain behind. May they follow with fidelity the footsteps of their father! I have not been requested by the family to write this, but it comes out of a heart that loved him for his true worth; and yet a friend said to me: 'You ought to write, because he was your friend.' His name will not be written among earth's great ones, but among those who loved their Lord and 'whom the Lord loved.' He was born the latter part of the year 1835, six months after the writer. It was a source of innocent pleasure for him to say that he was younger than I, but he was crowned first. The prayer of my heart is that I may triumph in the final hours. This is written with the hope that some one may give a fuller account of his very useful life. Peace to his memory!" He felt a deep interest in every good work even after he was unable actively to participate in it. The last time I saw him was at the Midwinter Bible Conference, held in Nashville in January last. Though feeble and halting physically, he was strong in spirit and in faith. He has heard the call: "It is enough; come up higher." The following notice of his passing and his funeral is clipped from the Midland Methodist: "Rev. S. M. Cherry passed to his reward at the home of his son, Rev. S. M. Cherry, Jr., at Westmoreland, on Sunday morning, June 21, aged seventy-nine years. He was admitted into the Tennessee Conference in 1855, and up to three years ago was an active, faithful pastor. He was one of those men who accepted every appointment without murmuring or complaining. His body was laid to rest in Mt. Olivet, Nashville, Tenn., on Monday, services being conducted by Revs. E. B. Chappell, Joe B. Erwin, and George A. Morgan, Methodist preachers acting as pallbearers."

"Servant of God, well done.
Praise be thy new employ;
And while eternal ages run, Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

GEORGE H. DETWILER, D.D., was born at Findlay, Ohio, August 31, 1853, and died at the Swannanoa Hill Sanitarium, near Asheville, N. C., at 9:30 P.M. on Sunday, July 5, 1914, being in the sixty-first year of his age. He was buried in Charlotte, N. C., where he had been twice a pastor. He was the son of religious parents, to whose parental fidelity he often made grateful and loving reference in his sermons. When he was only six months old his parents moved to Mercer County, Ill. Here, in the country and later in the county seat, Aledo, he spent his boyhood, obtaining such education as his location and circumstances made possible. That he made good use of his educational opportunities is shown by the fact that in his early young manhood he was called to be a teacher. After teaching several terms in his home county, he moved to Iowa and for three years continued to teach. On February 18, 1877, he was married to Miss Mattie Griffin, who was also a teacher in the same school with which he was connected. Mrs. Detwiler survives her husband; also three married daughters, two of whom live in North Carolina and one in South Carolina. One child died in infancy. In the fall of 1877 Dr. Detwiler joined the Des Moines Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and filled successfully the following pastoral charges in that Conference: Hamlin, 1877-78; Harlan, 1878-79; Casey, 1879-80; Stuart, 1880-83; and Adel, 1883-86. He then determined, although thirty-three years of age, to take time to improve his equipment for his life work and went to Garrett Biblical Institute and Northwestern University, located at Evanston, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. Following this year (1886-87) of theological study, he spent several years in evangelistic service in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, and Colorado. He spent two winters with the miners in Colorado. From here he was called to Atlantic, Iowa, to fill an unexpired pastorate and remained there eighteen months. In 1894 he moved to Hendersonville, N. C., and took charge of a school for mountain boys and girls. He continued in this work for three years. During these three years he was still a member of the Des Moines Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1897 he transferred his Church relationship to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and became a member of the Western North Carolina Conference, where his appointments were as follows: Rutherfordton Circuit, 1897-98; Gastonia, 1898-1901; Trinity Church, Charlotte, 1901-03; presiding elder of the Salisbury District, 1903-04; West Market Street, Greensboro, 1904-08; Tryon Street, Charlotte, 1908-09; Central Church, Asheville, 1909-10. He was thus a member of the Western North Carolina Conference for thirteen years and a resident of that State for sixteen years. In the fall of 1910 he was transferred to the Tennessee Conference and appointed to West End Church, Nashville, where during three and a half years of faithful service he was universally regarded as one of the most able, beloved, and efficient pastors that this Church has ever had. It appears thus that Dr. Detwiler's ministerial life covered about thirty-seven years, the last twenty years being spent in the South. Counting the four or five years spent in teaching before he entered the ministry, he was engaged altogether about eight years in educational work. He spent five or six years in evangelistic work, served twenty-seven years as a pastor, and one year as presiding elder. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has had few, if any, more successful pastors and preachers than Dr. George H. Detwiler. Although he came to Nashville as an entire stranger to the people and was pastor of West End Church for only three years and a half, he came within that short time to be regarded by all denominations as one of the ablest and most influential preachers in the city. While the pulpit was his place of greatest power and influence, he was more than ordinarily mindful of his multitudinous pastoral duties, and at the same time he took a deep and active interest in all movements tending to promote civic righteousness and looking toward organized social service in the city. In building and conducting the Wesley House and in many other forms of service asked of him, the women of the Home Mission Society found in him a friend, counselor, and helper who could always be counted on. He was unusually tender-hearted. His ears were ever open to the cry of the needy, and his heart never failed to respond to the story of suffering by whomsoever told. It was really difficult to find a place for Dr. Detwiler; but this was not because no Church wanted him, but rather because so many Churches wanted him. It was not unusual for him to be moved before his four years were out; but this, again, was not because he was not wanted longer where he was, but because, in the judgment of the appointing powers, he was more needed elsewhere. I wish to call attention to some of the things that have impressed me most as I have sat under Dr. Detwiler's ministry and heard him preach during the past three and a half years. (1) His rich and rare fluency of speech was the first thing that attracted me—his command of a most remarkable vocabulary of choice words for the expression of his ideas. I have rarely ever heard a man speak whom I considered more gifted in the use of words. And how marvelously fluent was he in public prayer! Nor was it a lip service; but his words of devotion, coming from his own heart, seemed not only to descend to the hearts of those bowed in the pews below, but to ascend to the heart of the Father in heaven. (2) The thoughts and themes that most occupied the mind of Dr. Detwiler and oftenest found expression and discussion in his preaching were the great thoughts of religion and the great themes of the gospel. His sermons were never on trivial and sensational subjects, but always on matters of great moment and importance to personal character, or to the local Church, or to the larger kingdom of God. The gospel sources from which he drew his themes and his inspiration were the fatherhood and love of God; the divine-human person of Jesus Christ; the brotherhood of man based on the common fatherhood of God and Christ's unlimited love for all our race; the Christian life one of ceaseless service and self-sacrifice for one's fellow-men; the sins of omission and commission found in the city where he preached and in the congregation that he served, from which the gospel of Jesus Christ alone can save, but will save and must save; and, lastly, the reality and genuineness and joy of personal religion based on a belief in and experience of these great facts and truths of the gospel. Dr. Detwiler was himself a deeply spiritual man, or he never could have proclaimed with such impressiveness and power the deep spiritual truths of the gospel. (3) Another conspicuous characteristic of Dr. Detwiler's preaching—and I would name it as a source of strength and not of weakness in his pulpit ministrations—was what, for want of a better and more accurate term, I will call his unconscious egotism. The most tender and pathetic passages in his sermons, the utterances and descriptions that held the closest attention of his hearers and that brought tears oftenest to all eyes, were, as a rule, when he was talking about himself, his struggles, and his trying experiences. He had an unusually rich and varied experience both as a man and as a minister. His life covered almost every phase of ministerial service, from the humblest mountain mission to the largest and most influential city stations; and all of this experience he used to enrich and illuminate his sermons. (4) Dr. Detwiler was an ardent and loyal Methodist, but he was not an ecclesiastic of the narrow and sectarian type. He was broad-minded and broad-gauged, and he both preached and lived a gospel of love for and brotherly coöperation with evangelical Christians of all names and creeds. His ideals were democratic, both in Church and State; he believed in the people and their rights; he loved the common people, and only those who believed in and loved the common people gladly heard him preach. (5) Of one more thing only will I write. He practiced the gospel that he preached. Nothing in his personal life as a man discounted or detracted from his moral influence as a pastor and preacher in the community where he lived. Some one has said that the value of any and every discourse delivered from the pulpit may be expressed as "the sermon plus or minus the moral character of the man who preaches it." Never did the people have to place the minus sign after the sermons of George H. Detwiler. Notwithstanding the fact that his sermons were among the ablest and most eloquent ever preached in the churches which he served, they were all reinforced by the plus symbol of a pure, noble, and uniformly consistent Christian character. Our honored friend and brother is gone, but he is not lost to us. He has simply gone before, and we shall greet him again in the "land that is fairer than day."

"I cannot think of them as dead
Who walk with me no more;
Along the path of life I tread
They have but gone before;
Mine are they by an ownership
Nor time nor death can free;
For God hath given to love to keep Its own eternally."

—Wilbur F. Tillett.

JOHN H. NICHOLS.—An extraordinary personality came upon the scene of human affairs when John H. Nichols began his remarkable life. He was endowed with an unusual will, and this fact made possible the striking features of his career. He was never weak nor hesitant. A man of great decision of character, he wasted no time in parleying with circumstances. He moved on straight lines. Double-dealing was impossible in his manner of conduct. The love of truth was written in his constitution. His moral fiber was of the finest texture. Naturally the foundation of his character was granite and the superstructure steel. A second and spiritual foundation was laid at the age of twelve, which was Jesus Christ, and into the noble house which arose upon this foundation he did not build wood, hay, stubble, but the incorruptible gold of righteous and loving deeds. The grace of God could not have been bestowed in vain upon one who possessed such inherent honesty, marvelous energy, and such great capacity for labor and suffering. With those great, steady blue eyes he looked upon all lying and dishonesty with inveterate and uncompromising hatred. We should not be rash enough to assert that any man is always correct in the positions he assumes; but when Brother Nichols once took his stand upon a matter of principle, he could be relied on to remain to the bitter end and without wavering. He was a brave man. I have often thought that if I have ever seen a man who did not know the meaning of physical fear, that man was John H. Nichols. No soldier with braver heart ever shouldered a musket. While he doubtless looked upon the war of the sixties as a sad and regrettable necessity, he never had occasion to be ashamed of his war record. Seriously wounded in the battle of Murfreesboro, from which he was a great sufferer for years and a cripple for life, he manifested the same courage in quiet and uncomplaining suffering that he had shown upon many a battlefield. If any man among us could smile at pain, it was he. But he did not undertake and do what he did in his own name or strength. He had a great life companion. This companion was real to him. He talked with him often in intimate confidence and with strong faith. The cheerful ripples on the surface of his social life did not suggest the deep undercurrents of prayer and profound piety. Brother Nichols was a man of abiding faith in Jesus Christ. He believed that while he was in the line of duty God would take care of him. He was repeatedly tested on these lines and never faltered. Soon after the war a very dangerous and desperate man, who had murdered several men, undertook to drive him from his circuit with violent threats. He set the limit for him to go and stated specifically that if on a certain day he passed through a certain village to his appointment he would kill him. The people were greatly alarmed for their pastor, but Brother Nichols went straight ahead, and, greatly to the surprise and relief of his friends, the desperado did not lift his hand against him. He was equally courageous in the field of theological conflict. When a young circuit rider he was challenged by a champion debater of the Church of the Disciples of Christ. To the consternation of the Methodists, Brother Nichols accepted the challenge, but embarrassment soon shifted to the champion and his followers, while the Methodists rejoiced. I first read of John H. Nichols when a boy, in the report given of this debate in the Christian Advocate. He never issued a challenge for debate and never refused one. He debated as conscientiously as he preached the gospel or read his Bible. When engaged in a later debate with the champion before mentioned, and on the second day, while Brother Nichols was making reply to a very strong and effective speech of his opponent, a member of his opponent's Church sitting on a front seat was converted and began shouting the praise of God aloud, whereupon many others likewise began shouting, and the whole congregation was in religious commotion. The champion became furious, went out and mounted his horse, and left in search of a more congenial atmosphere. Brother Nichols told me that he had rarely, if ever, seen the power of God so manifested as on this occasion. The foundation of his polemic career was laid in an interesting and striking incident, as follows: After the war ended, and feeling that he was divinely called to preach the gospel, he went to college better to prepare for the work. While there a sick man sent for him, about twenty miles away, to come and see him at once, as he was expecting to die soon. When Brother Nichols arrived, the man said to him in substance: "You know me and know the doctrine I have believed and for many years tried to preach [he was a preacher in the Christian Church], but now, as I have come to look death in the face, I am not satisfied. I have sent for you that you may set the matter before me from your standpoint." Brother Nichols did so, and the man accepted his view of it and became a happy convert, shouting aloud the glories of such a salvation, and died happy in that faith. This incident was well calculated to make a profound and lasting impression on the young preacher. It may have inspired his career as defender of "the faith once for all delivered to the saints." My closer acquaintance with this unusual man began in Bedford County more than twenty years ago. He attracted and held me strongly in social intercourse. Deeper insight into his life and habits was obtained a few years later when he was a pastor in Giles County and I was his presiding elder. I have sometimes remarked that he was the most systematic pastor of a circuit I have ever known. He regulated his entire life in the most orderly manner. It was systematic use of all his time which made Mr. Wesley's achievements the marvel of the generations. Likewise Brother Nichols systematized his work. He visited regularly a day or so in the neighborhood of his appointment before preaching Sunday morning, and lingered a day in visitation after filling his afternoon appointment in another community. When he returned home it was not to idle away his time, but usually he was engaged mid-weekly in writing a pamphlet, a book, or articles for the Church papers. His style was forceful, as were the titles of his books. It is doubtful whether any writer of our day is more widely known in our Methodism. He has rendered effective and valuable service in setting forth the doctrines of the Bible as they are held and taught by the Methodist Church. His writings have had remarkable sale and circulation and doubtless will have for some time to come. Brother Nichols was so regular and orderly in his habits of life and work—in Bible study, family worship, observing the weekly fast, and in everything that constituted the most complete self-control and family government—that he was worthy to wear the epithet of "Methodist," which was once a term of reproach but now a word of honor. And he did these things conscientiously—not after any sanctimonious fashion, but in the most natural, unassuming, and cheerful way. Cheerfulness, good humor, self-control, and useful employment marked his daily walk and conversation. Never, perhaps, in the history of the itinerant Methodist movement was there a preacher more loyal, obedient, or uncomplaining. He served many pastoral charges, circuits, and stations, and did not often remain four years. He hewed to the line in his practical preaching and made strong friends and now and then some strong enemies. In matters of principle he did not recognize the word "compromise." He was a spiritual preacher and had good success in holding revivals on his own charges. He took into the Church about as many members as had been converted under his ministry. He was a deeply spiritual man, a close student of the English Bible, and a man of prayer. His familiarity with the entire Bible was remarkable. This resulted from his daily consecutive reading of the Scriptures. A very large number of times had he read the Bible through with care and study. John H. Nichols was a strong character, a dependable friend, who loved his fellow-men and honestly wrought for his generation. The record of his good deeds is large, and his reward will be great. One of the most engaging autobiographies I have read is that little book with the quaint title, "Proof of the Pudding," which gives some account of his interesting life. He loved his own family and home profoundly, reared his children with the greatest carefulness, and by them was respected, honored, and loved. Concerning the superannuate period of his life, his last pastor, Rev. R. H. Hudgens, says: "The writer questions whether Brother Nichols ever did more effective and lasting work in any pastoral charge he served than he did as a superannuate in the town and community of Spring Hill, where he had resided for the past six years. Aside from touching the whole community with an influence for good, he had gotten together a large class in the Sunday school known as the 'Old Guards.' He thought of this as his distinctive work and laid himself out in its behalf. Being unable to walk to church the Sunday before his death, he asked to be driven, that he might deliver another message to the class. The 'Old Guards' loved, revered, and honored him. The interest they manifested in him during his last illness and the substantial appreciation they showed of his worth in death were indeed beautiful. In the most appropriate style they quietly laid him in the little cemetery at Spring Hill without a dollar's cost to the bereaved family. His parting words to the wife and children as he commended them to God were indeed sublime. The one voice of lamentation heard throughout the community is: 'How he will be missed!' Like one of old, John H. Nichols fought a good fight, finished his course with honor, and kept the faith untarnished. He now wears a crown of righteousness." We may add that eyewitnesses relate that his death was almost a translation. Retaining consciousness to the last, he talked with perfect rationality and composure, but was ecstatically happy as he spoke of the heavenly messengers who were present and had come to accompany him home. We shall not have a reproduction of this unique life. His tired body rests in the "blessed sleep" which is to be followed by a joyous waking into the resurrection to everlasting life.—J. R. Stewart.

WILLIAM C. FARIS.—Fifty-eight years ago the thirteenth of this month, there was born into the home of Samuel Faris, near St. Clair, Hawkins County, Tenn., the subject of this sketch. From boyhood he was intensely religious. "He was born," some one said, "with his face in the right direction, and never stopped going." At an early age he came into a conscious experience of communion with God, through the influence of the country Sunday school which he attended. Soon after this he joined the Church. When he was eighteen years of age, under the powerful and soul-searching preaching of Rev. H. P. Waugh, he was deeply convicted. While in this state God unexpectedly to him revealed the fact that he must preach. As he says: "I wanted religion, but God said, 'Be a preacher'; I wanted pardon for my sins, but God said, 'Preach.' The very moment I was willing to preach all was well with my soul." He was given license as a local preacher July 7, 1877, at St. Clair, Rev. W. R. Barnett being the preacher in charge, and Rev. Grinsfield Taylor conducting the Quarterly Conference in place of Rev. Carroll Long, who could not be present. His first efforts were not, from a sermonic standpoint, notable successes, but his neighbors believed in him, and loved him, and came to hear him preach. Even in those early days he averaged about fifty sermons each year. In the short sketch of his life which he wrote he gives the following interesting account of one of his first revival efforts: "Our pastor, W. R. Barnett, asked me to preach on Friday night of his meeting. After having been released from study by Professor Bryce, I spent the afternoon with God in prayer, so as to be ready for the night service to be held in the St. Clair Academy. My text was, 'What shall I do to be saved?', and the answer, 'Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.' At the conclusion of the sermon about thirty-three persons came to the altar, and were saved in a few moments. This success stimulated my vanity as well as drove me to my knees. Oh, for such soul-winning power now!" He joined the Annual Conference at Morristown in October, 1880, and served the following charges: Grassy Cove, two years; Hixson, two years; Dunlap, three years; Scarboro, one year; Andersonville, two years; Louisville, three years; Fincastle, three years; Greenville Circuit, three years; Whiteside Circuit, two years; Trenton, three years; Jasper, one year; Ooltewah, three years; and Hixson, one year. These were, from the standpoint of salary, among the poorest in the Conference, but who shall say from the standpoint of opportunity they were not among the best? We rate our preachers and their work often by artificial standards, but God's standard is far different from ours. He was somewhat slow in his movements and very deliberate in speech. His power of expression was not equal to the character and movement of his thought. However, there were times when, under Divine influence, he seemed to lap over all these barriers and sweep his congregation with him. His early education was limited, but he overcame this largely by the constant companionship of good books. For his opportunities, I counted him a man well educated and of good general information. His favorite study was astronomy. He told me one night, as we stood under the shining stars, that he knew his way among the constellations as well as he knew the country about his boyhood home, and demonstrated his statement by pointing out numerous stars, giving their names and the groups to which they belonged. As a Christian he was one of that pure, ethical, and deeply spiritual type which impresses and influences men by kindness and love. In the Highland Park Church, which he attended with his family, his name was like ointment poured forth. His loss was felt as a sore bereavement. The final test of a man's power for good is measured by his impress on his own family. Judged by this standard, Brother Faris was a success. With his faithful, loyal, and consecrated wife, Hattie, the daughter of a Methodist preacher, Rev. William R. Rush, of Grassy Cove, Tenn., he reared a family of five children: two daughters, Bell and Mrs. Mamie Neighbors, and three sons, Fred, Robert, and Dean, of splendid character, devoted to God and the Church. How they gave the daughters a collegiate education, put the oldest boy in the university, kept the youngest in high school, and paid for a comfortable home, is beyond the ken of any but the good God who filled the widow's barrel with meal, and who still lives and reigns in the world. When the time came for his superannuation, it was a trying ordeal; but he adjusted himself to the changed conditions, taking advantage of every opportunity to preach and to witness for his Lord. For two years before his death he went regularly every Sunday afternoon to the county workhouse at Orchard Knob, preaching to the negro men in chains, many of whom, under his loving ministry, were released from the captivity of the great enemy of our souls. Could any ministry be more acceptable than this to our Lord, whose claim as the One to come was based on the fact that the poor had the gospel preached unto them? The end came December 19, 1913, so suddenly that few of us were aware of the sericus and insidiously fatal malady that years before had laid hold on him. His testimony was clear and ringing, with no uncertain sound. We laid him to rest in Forest Hills to wait the coming of his Lord.—P. L. Cobb.

JOHN HAMILTON BRUNNER, son of Joseph and Elizabeth Brunner, of Greene County, Tenn., was born March 12, 1825. December 10, 1850, he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Key, of Monroe County, Tenn., Rev. Jesse Cunyngnam officiating. He died of heart failure at his home near Hiwassee College, February 18, 1914, aged eighty-eight years, eleven months, and six days, his wife having preceded him one year and fifteen days, at the ripe age of eighty-seven years. The children numbered seven, all of whom are dead save Mr. A. T. Brunner of Hiwassee College, Mrs. Ralph Hunt of Philadelphia, Miss., and Mrs. R. C. Humphreys of Whiting, Ind. Dr. Brunner was President of Hiwassee College about thirty-three years, though not continuously. He devoted the greater part of his life, energies, and means to helping indigent young men secure an education. His mind and faculties were clear and bright to the end of his life. He told his son, Mr. A. T. Brunner, the night before he died, that the end was near, but that he was ready and willing to go, that he had no fear, and longed to be with his loved ones who had gone on before. Dr. G. C. Rankin said of him, in the Texas Christian Advocate: "The life of such a man is worthy of more than a passing notice. He came upon the stage of action in the years when Methodism was comparatively young in the hill country, and no man contributed more to its success and progress than he. When this writer was an infant, Dr. Brunner traveled our circuit in East Tennessee, and one of his regular preaching appointments was in our grandmother's house. Church buildings were scarce in those days. He and the writer's father were warm and cordial friends, though the latter has been dead fifty-two years. Dr. Brunner was a preacher of the old school, rather terse and sententious in style, but lucid and comprehensive. He was a learned man, well read in all sorts of literature and history, and a teacher of renowned ability. Nearly fifty years ago he identified himself with Hiwassee College, and here is where he did his most important work. He made it his business to see to it that no aspiring and worthy boy was ever turned down in his effort to obtain an education. Forty years ago, poor and without influential friends, this writer applied to him for entrance into that well-known school. He gave us his warmest welcome, and at no time did he ever suggest to us the financial part of it. We sat at his feet until we had finished his course, and then entered the Holston Conference. His love and confidence have followed us like that of a father from that day till his translation. Our love for him was like that of a son for a father. He stands out in memory to-day as the most valued counselor and friend we have ever had outside of the home circle. Throughout the extent of our country there are those in all the honorable walks of life to rise up and call him blessed. The last time we had the pleasure of visiting him he said to us: 'My chief pleasure is found in my communion with the Master and calling in mind the hundreds of my boys through whom I am still living and working in the varied pursuits of life. When my earthly pilgrimage closes I will still be active in the lives they are living. Among them all you stand very close to my heart.' What a blessing that we ever fell under his molding influence! Throughout all these years of toil and struggle his short, fatherly letters have come to us with the regularity of the weeks. He lived and wrought to great advantage. He had an iron constitution, a large, well-developed physical frame, a tremendous head, and a most benign face. To look at him was to see a man born to do great things. He would have been noticed in a gathering of thousands. He had a transparent heart, and a countenance frank and open. He was a judge of human nature. He knew how to size up character at a glance. When a boy once found his way into Dr. Brunner's heart he was fixed, but woe betide the one who took advantage of his confidence and deceived the trust placed in him. He knew how to love and how to confide. He knew how to punish with his keen displeasure when punishment was deserved. He made himself one with his students. There was no chasm between him and them; yet no boy ever became so familiar with him as to lose respect for his authority. Had he been ambitious, he might have shone in the wide circles of the Church. He had the brain and the training. But he was content to select a smaller sphere and devote his life to helping those who needed his tuition and accomplishment. Hence, amid the scenes of old Hiwassee, embowered amid its Arcadian groves and undulating hills, he lived and wrought and died. From there his influence has gone out almost without limit, and a score of the States of this Union are the beneficiaries of his self-sacrificing toil and devoted labor. May the clouds rest lightly over his dust, and may the flowers bloom perennially around his tomb! Father in Israel, adieu!"

CHARLES K. MILLER was born on Walker's Creek, in Bland County, Va., September 7, 1832, and died at his home in Rural Retreat, Va., December 31, 1913, aged eighty-one years. He was the son of Charles and Mary McNeil Miller, of Bland County, Va., and is survived by one brother, Alexander Miller, of Mechanicsburg, Va. There are three brothers and one sister deceased. He was happily married to Miss Amanda Young, of Grayson County, Va., on May 5, 1865. Six children came to bless this union, four of whom, together with the sorrowing wife, survive him. When a boy of fifteen, Brother Miller was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Hoge's Camp Ground, in Bland County, Va. He was licensed to preach by the Quarterly Conference of the Mechanicsburg Circuit, at Newberry's Chapel, on December 5, 1857, his license being signed by E. C. Wexler, presiding elder, and G. W. K. Green, secretary. He was received on trial into the traveling connection at Asheville, N. C., October 17, 1860, and was ordained deacon at Athens, Tenn., October 17, 1862, by Bishop Early, and by him was ordained elder at Marion, Va., September 14, 1865. He served faithfully and well the following charges: Wytheville Circuit, Va., as junior preacher; Independence Circuit, in Grayson County, Va.; Lebanon, Russell County, Va.; Jefferson Circuit, N. C.; Morristown and Jacksboro, in Tennessee; Elk Creek, Va.; Rural Retreat, Va. The Rural Retreat Circuit was his last charge. In the fall of 1884 he was superannuated on account of ill health, which relation he held until death. Brother Miller was a strong and forceful yet logical preacher, and his messages were simple and plain. He believed in the power of the gospel which he preached to save men from sin. He possessed a passion for souls. Few men of his time in the active ministry saw more people converted and received into the Church. He was once heard to say to J. T. Guy, his pastor, that there were more than five hundred professions of conversions during his pastorate of two years on the Lebanon Circuit. He did not court the plaudits of the world. His highest delight was to know what was the will of God, and then endeavor to do it at any cost. He loved God and God's ministry and people. The fires of the true itinerant continued to burn in his soul during the long years of his super-annuation. He took a deep interest in all the affairs of the Church. He never became sour or morose, but maintained a cheerful and patient spirit. No bitter speech, no unkind word, was heard to fall from his lips. He grew old nobly. As a father and husband he was kind and considerate; an honored and beloved citizen, whose counsel was respected by all. And withal he was truly a man of God. His faith grew stronger and his prospect brighter as he approached the end of life's journey. He loved to talk of heaven, and seemed to anticipate an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of his heavenly Father. No one doubts that he was ready. His pure, devout, and noble spirit has gone up to join the hosts of the Church triumphant; and that is not death, that is victory—victory over death and over the grave. It is a blessed promotion—a glorious transition from the companionship of physical weakness and pain and sorrow of earth to the fellowships of heaven.

"Forever with the Lord;
Amen, so let it be.

Life from the dead is in the Word,
'Tis immortality."

May the God of all grace comfort and bless with his gracious presence the faithful companion, in the loneliness of her widowhood, and the children in their great loss!—J. A. H. Shuler, J. T. Guy, J. S. W. Neel.

during the past year? H. W. Currin. 1.

HUGH W. CURRIN was born in the State of Virginia on April 19, 1840, and died in Sutter City, California, on June 27, 1914. When he was seven years of age his parents moved to Missouri, where he grew to manhood. Just as he reached his majority the Civil War broke out, and he responded to the call of his Southland with the readiness and eagerness of a brave and patriotic youth. He was converted in childhood and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Early in his Christian life Brother Currin received the witness of the Spirit, which was ever with him an abiding experience. In 1867 he was licensed to preach and joined the Missouri Conference. He was soon transferred to the Southwest Missouri Conference. While yet a young man he was transferred to the Montana Conference. While in Montana he was married to Miss Bertha Scorles. Two children were born of this marriage—Miss Ollie, who survives her father, and Paul, who died several years ago. Brother Currin's wife died while their children were quite small, and with the tenderness of a mother's love, beautifully blended with the strength of a father's will, he brought them to years of maturity. In 1895 Brother Currin came with his children to California, and for several years followed mining in Mariposa County. In 1898 he joined the Pacific Conference, and served the following charges: Hornitas and Cathay, Milton, Tuolumne, Sulphur Creek, Henleyville, Red Bluff, and Sutter and Grace. Brother Currin's mind was of the constructive order. He was a church builder, both of edifice and organization. He was often sent to new places to do such work. His work was always substantial and permanent. He did nothing for passing effect. For veneering he had no use, and for shams he had but scorn. Brother Currin was a man of heroic spirit. "He endured hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." He was a man of sublime faith and simple trust. He believed in the divine inspiration and the absolute inerrancy of the Bible. His trust in Providence was beautiful; with the simplicity of a little child he believed the promises of God. Brother Currin's preaching was eminently scriptural; he "preached the word." He was unsparing in his denunciation of sin and loving in his appeal to the sinner. He was popular without seeking to be so. Men loved and admired him because of his fearless and consistent maintenance of the right, and because of his unselfish interest in humanity. Patriarchal in appearance and apostolic in spirit, he was a man of marked individuality and strong influence. There was something in him that reminded us at once of the rugged fearlessness of John the Forerunner and the magnetic gentleness of John whom Jesus loved. Brother Currin was especially happy in the work of the Sunday school. Wherever he labored the Sunday school grew and flourished as a new-planted and well-watered garden of God. His last charge was Sutter and Grace. Great was the love of the people for him, and his influence among them will abide. He had not been in good health for more than a year; and yet, in his feebleness, his zeal was without abatement and his toil was unremitting. His last act of service was to conduct a funeral when he himself should have been in bed. When remonstrated with about exposing himself to the heat and strain of the day, he said his duty was at the grave of his friend. After this funeral he was seriously ill for several days, during which his intense suffering was borne with unremurmuring patience. When it was announced to him that he must die, he received the sad announcement with perfect calmness. Quietly and at once he gave instruction as to his business affairs. Then, from his big, true heart, he sent this message of affection to his brethren: "Tell my brethren in the ministry that I loved my Church and served it the best I could." When the end came, he closed his eyes and folded his hands in death as a little child lies down to slumber, sweet and still. His body now sleeps in the cemetery at Stockton beside the grave of his boy. To his surviving daughter we extend our sympathy and offer for her our prayers. We, his brethren, mourn his departure and miss his presence here to-day. We hope to stand with him when he shall receive the crown of righteousness which Jesus on that day shall give to all who love his appearing.—D. Harrison.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? William Monk. 1.

WILLIAM MONK.—I am writing now of one of the most remarkable men of Texas Methodism. Large of stature, rugged of countenance, gentle of heart, and brilliant of mind; brave as a lion and as gentle as a lamb; noble, fearless, and true—such was Rev. William Monk, who died in Lampasas, Texas, February 24, 1914, aged eighty-nine years and two days. He had been a Methodist preacher for seventy-two years, and was no ordinary preacher—really a great preacher. He was born in Greene County, Miss., February 22, 1825, and in August, 1842, when seventeen years old, joined the Methodist Episcopal Church (there was no Methodist Episcopal Church, South, then) on probation. He said, "I joined as a seeker." A few months later he was converted under the preaching of Rev. Jesse Boring, at the old Salem, or Frost Bridge, camp meeting in Wayne County, Miss. He was at once made class leader, and licensed to exhort. This was his authority to preach; and so, not yet eighteen, he began a ministry which lasted through more than seventy-two years. He was licensed to preach in 1848 by the Winchester Circuit Quarterly Conference. Jesse Boring, the presiding elder, could not be present, so Thomas Killough, the preacher in charge, presided. He was appointed junior preacher, as supply, of the circuit. Winchester Circuit then embraced all of Wayne and Clarke Counties in Mississippi, and all of Washington County in Alabama west of Tombigbee River. At the close of 1849 he was admitted on trial into the Alabama Conference, held in Greeneville, Ala., Bishop Paine presiding, and was appointed junior preacher, under R. O. Rouvall, on the Pascagoula Circuit. This circuit had twenty-three appointments scattered over Jackson and Greene Counties, Miss., and a large part of Mobile County, Ala. The next year he was appointed to the Randolph Circuit—all of Randolph County and one church in Talladega County. He was ordained deacon in Auburn, Ala., January 12, 1851, by Bishop Capers, who presided at this Conference. From 1851 to 1853 he served Center, Tallapoosa, and Cedar Bluff Circuits, under Walter H. McDaniel, presiding elder. Already he had made a reputation as a strong, spiritual preacher, and many hundreds had been converted under his ministry. He was entitled to elder's orders at the Conference in Tuscaloosa in 1853, but these were stormy days, and there was no Bishop present, and so his ordination was deferred one year, when he was ordained by Bishop Early at the East Texas Conference in Tyler, Texas, December 5, 1854. At the Conference in Tuscaloosa in 1853, Greenburg Garrett, the oldest active member of the Alabama Conference, was elected to preside. The new struggling Texas Conference was then calling for brave, consecrated, strong men, and when the appointments were read it was announced that William Monk had volunteered to go to Texas. His first circuit in Texas was Jacksonville, with fifteen appointments. L. B. Hickman was his junior preacher. He served with heroism this large, difficult field for two years, with marvelous results, there being hundreds of conversions. At the close of his second year he was located at his own request. J. W. Hughes had been his presiding elder. For seven years Brother Monk preached as a local elder in almost every community from Red River to the Brazos, and was heard by more people, perhaps, than any other preacher in Texas. In 1863 the Texas Conference was held in Columbus, Texas, presided over by Robert Alexander—no bishop being present. Here Brother Monk returned to the itinerant ranks, and was appointed to the West Liberty Circuit, which he served for two years. These were the most difficult years of Southern Methodism. Brother Monk made looms and assisted the impoverished citizens in meeting the hardships of those strenuous days following the close of the war. Two years later, at the Conference in Chapel Hill, Bishop Andrew appointed this brave man to the Palo Pinto Mission. No history can ever record the sacrificing and suffering and toiling of the two years spent here. His equipment for the work in this field was his Bible, Hymn Book, Discipline, saddlebags, Winchester rifle, and saddle pony. And when the Indians stole his pony at Davidson's ranch, where he and the presiding elder, J. M. Johnson, were holding a meeting, with his saddlebags and rifle on his shoulder he walked those wilds from appointment to appointment until friends provided another pony—only to be stolen by Indians again. The Indians had a great admiration for him, he was so big and brave, and never fired a shot at them; and they never harmed him, only stealing his saddle horses. The Bishop called him the "Stonewall," saying "he stood like a stonewall between the Indians and the white settlers." After the Northwest Texas Conference was organized he served first the Meridian Circuit, one of his most successful years, receiving nearly two hundred members into the Church in that sparsely settled country. Then Bishop Doggett sent him to the Owensville Circuit, and after one year he was sent to Georgetown Circuit, where he remained until 1871. During this pastorate, remarkable for his development of the Church, the question of locating a central school in Texas was agitated. The commission found it necessary to locate outside of the yellow-fever district, and aids for the school were asked for in the then Waco District. James E. Ferguson was appointed to canvass Bell County, and William Monk to canvass Williamson County; and to William Monk, more than to any other man, is due the credit of Southwestern University coming to Georgetown. In 1873, when Dr. Mood opened the school in Georgetown, Rev. William Monk, then the presiding elder of Stephenville District, was the only Methodist preacher present. So Southwestern University opened with thirty-three children, Dr. Mood (the President), and Rev. William Monk present. Brother Monk rejoiced in all he ever did for Southwestern University. He was three years presiding elder over the territory now embraced in the Brownwood, Llano, San Angelo, Abilene, Dublin, Vernon, and Clarendon Districts. He traveled one year for the American Bible Society, distributing Bibles to Indians and scattered settlements lying along, as he said, "the frontier of civilization." During these days he often preached to the soldiers stationed at the forts along the frontier. He said: "It was my duty to see that the people had the gospel." In 1875 he was transferred to the Los Angeles Conference and filled out the unexpired year in San Luis Obispo Station. Then he was sent to Arizona to the Tucson Mission, and organized our work in this most difficult territory. He said this was his hardest field, but that "God was with him." On his return to Texas he was stationed at Frio City for one year, and at the Conference in Gonzales, in 1878, he was appointed presiding elder of Corpus Christi District. He was a delegate to the General Conference in 1890. He served Uvalde Circuit two years and Devine Circuit one year, and during these years he was of great assistance to A. A. Sutherland along the Mexico-Texas border. He was sent to New Mexico to organize our work there among the American settlers, and it was through his influence that the New Mexico Conference was organized. He built with his own hands the first Methodist church in New Mexico, now embraced in the Conference. While engaged in this work he received a fall which injured him for life. On his return to the West Texas Conference, in 1892, he took the superannuate relation, and up to 1905 lived in San Marcos. Since then until his death he has made his home in Lampasas. These are the chronological facts of this remarkable man. Thousands were converted under his preaching. Many churches were organized all through the West under his administration. Perhaps no Texas preacher did more to establish Methodism in all the West than Rev. William Monk. He loved the Church and her great doctrines, and knew how to defend and preach with power these great old gospel truths. He rarely ever preached without conversions and reclamations, whatever his theme. He suffered many hardships and privations, but rejoiced in them. He would cheerfully have gone to the martyr's stake had there been occasion for so doing. His death was a triumph. His voice rang with the note of victory and his noble face had in it the light of a new world the evening of the night of his translation. How gently he fell asleep in Christ! Those present may never witness the like again. His presiding elder and his pastor count it one of life's greatest honors to have conducted his funeral services, in the presence of a large audience who gathered to do the old hero's memory honor. He has lain down his armor and received the conqueror's crown.—Z. V. Liles.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

JOHN NELSON DUPREE was born in Houston County, Ga., July 1, 1831, of pious parentage. The parents were poor and the family large, so that the children received but scant education. Brother Dupree joined the Church at nine years of age. But not until he was thirteen was he consciously born again. His conversion was an experience vivid and overwhelming, the memory of which stood out through all the after years. So complete and unmistakable was his consecration to God that at the early age of seventeen he was appointed a class leader, and one year later he was licensed to exhort. His call to the ministry came with his conversion, but it was only after a long and hard struggle that he finally yielded to the Divine will, being licensed to preach at the age of twenty-one. His education being so limited, he began to apply himself diligently to study, that he might become a worthy workman. At the session of the Alabama Conference held in 1852 he was admitted on trial. In 1854 he was ordained deacon by Bishop Andrew, and his ordination as elder followed in 1856, Bishop Pierce presiding at that session of the Conference, which was held in Tuskegee. Brother Dupree was first appointed a junior preacher on a large circuit, but about three months later he was given charge of the Gaston Circuit, where he remained through the year 1853. In 1854 he served the Pascagoula Circuit, and that year organized our church at Ocean Springs. In 1855 he traveled Hilla-bee Circuit, in 1856 Union Circuit, and in 1857 he served the Andrew Mission, which was a work projected in behalf of the negroes. Of his experience this year he said: "This was a pleasant and prosperous year." In 1858 he served Dadeville and Camp Hill, in 1859 Talladega Circuit, in 1860-2 Oxford and White Plains. Twice afterwards Brother Dupree was assigned to the Dadeville Circuit, once in 1865-6, and later in 1871. His active connection with the Conference ceased in 1872, when he was granted the supernumerary relation, passing over to the honor roll of the Conference in 1898. In 1855 Brother Dupree was married to Miss Mary E. Lockhart. Reared in a home of culture and piety, beautiful of face and noble of soul, this young woman gave herself to the work of God and the Church as truly as did her husband. Many were the hours of loneliness, many the sacrifices and struggles, but God wonderfully kept her through it all and spared her strength to minister to the faithful warrior when the shock of years and battles had spent his strength and blindness had dimmed his eyes. Seven children were born to them, three of whom preceded him to heaven. Of their descendants, one son and two grandsons are doing effective work as ministers in the West. The meager support given to our preachers in these earlier times and the demands of his rapidly increasing family caused Brother Dupree, after consultation and agreement with his presiding elder, to ask for the supernumerary relation. But he was busy in the Master's cause all these years. No call to visit the sick or bury the dead or comfort the bereaved was unheeded—and the calls were many. He gladly left his work to fill preaching appointments at considerable sacrifice. He also contributed liberally of his means to the support of the Church, his regret always being that he was not able to give more. He was never idle. He loved to work, and whatever he did was done with all his might. Brother Dupree belonged to the pioneer days of Methodism in Alabama. He lived in the saddle and sometimes picketed his horse and slept beneath the open sky. He never thought lightly of his mission. He realized that he was an ambassador of Jesus Christ, and as such he warned, reproved, and invited men with apostolic fervor. He gloried in a revival, and few men indeed have been more effective in bringing men to repentance and faith. In the years of his enforced retirement from the active work, when he was toiling hard for his daily bread, he never lost interest in the work of the kingdom, nor did he forget to love and pray for his brethren on the firing line. He never became sour. The religion which he had so faithfully preached to others kept him sweet and cheerful to the end of the way. On one occasion he said to the writer: "I am a back number; but I thank God that the Church has so many better men to take my place." During the closing years of his life he was totally blind. But he bore the darkness of those days of declining strength with a beautiful Christian fortitude and patience. On the morning of January 17, 1914, the heavenly messenger came to bid him into the presence of the King. For weeks he had been longing for release. On the dull eyes broke the light of eternal morning, and the frail body went down into the earth to wake one day in the freshness and strength of immortal youth. Gone forever are the hours of pain and darkness, the long nights of weary restlessness. With those who have come up out of great tribulations, with those he loved long since and lost awhile, he has found the blessed rest and companionships of heaven. "Death is swallowed up in victory."—Henry M. Stevenson.

JEHU V. EMERSON was born at Spartanburg, S. C., December 22, 1844. He came to Alabama with his parents in 1851. He was married to Miss Margaret McGehee, November 23, 1870. This union was blessed with four children, two of whom died in infancy, and two, with his widow, survive him—Rev. E. E. Emerson, of the North Alabama Conference, and Mrs. G. F. Tidwell, of Oneonta, Ala. He was converted in early life and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He labored for some years as agent of the American Bible Society. He was licensed to preach in the year 1891 at Coal City, Ala. He served as supply on Fayette Circuit in 1894; Gamble Mines Mission, 1895; Heard's Shoals Mission, 1896; Patton and Corona Mission, the latter part of 1897; Fayette Circuit, the latter part of 1898; and North Port Circuit, 1899. In the fall of 1899 he was admitted on trial by the North Alabama Conference at Birmingham, Ala., and was appointed to Cleveland Circuit, which he served one year; at the Annual Conference of 1900 he was appointed to Cottondale Circuit, which he served for four years, 1901-04; and was appointed to North Port Station in November, 1904, which was the last charge he ever served. Having become afflicted with rheumatism, he was given the superannuate relation at Athens in November, 1905. He went to Hot Springs, Ark., for treatment, but without avail. He was perfectly resigned to his helpless condition, and manifested the most cheerful spirit I ever saw until he became speechless a few days before he was called to his reward, February 22, 1914. The facts above draw but a feeble outline of the events of his noble and serviceable life. In everything, save the heralding of his name far and near, he was a great man—great in thought, great in conduct, and greatest in feeling and sympathy. His life was not a pretense, but one which ascended the throne of being and reigned in the kingdom of character. He was a man of deep convictions, which were born of thoughtful and painstaking investigation. The beautiful spirit which shone from his life was inspired by his abiding faith in God.—W. E. Aldridge.

FERNANDO K. HEWLETT was born near Danville, in Morgan County, Ala., December 30, 1846. His childhood and youth were spent in the same community. After attending school near his father's house in the earlier years, and doing his share of the farm work during the time, as a loyal son, when about seventeen years of age he was sent to Danville to school. Here he made good progress under Captain Freeman, who was the principal. I remember hearing him once say that his opportunity in this school was fine. But this high-school drill ended his school days. However, his advance and preparation for life did not end at this early date. Long after this, he gained and broadened. He picked up as he moved forward, until he reached a competent young manhood. Some time in his twentieth year he came to Trinity to live, and make his own way. Here he met Miss Mary A. Wright, whom he married on November 27, 1867. He remained in this community a few years only after his marriage, but long enough for another great event in one's life. Some time during the fall of the year 1868 he was converted at a meeting held in the Methodist church near Trinity, and was received into the Church. The night of his conversion is well remembered by me. Being earnest in nature, while under deep conviction, he seemed entirely oblivious to all that was going on in the altar, and prayed aloud in his struggle; and just before relief came, he stood on his knees, and with uplifted hands, in conforming gesture, repeatedly exclaimed, "Come nearer, come nearer!" It was the most solemn scene I ever saw. A feeling of awe pervaded the congregation. After about ten minutes of this intense agony, the lull of peace came to him. Though often together, no reference was ever made to this by either one of us. It was too sacred to mention. I have often thought that he actually had a view of Him whose pleasure it has always been to say, "Thy sins be forgiven thee," to those who repent. In the early seventies he returned to his ancestral community and engaged in farming. His membership was placed at McKendree, on the Danville Circuit. After some years, realizing a call to preach, he was licensed at Danville, at a Quarterly Conference held some time during 1879, Brother Kirk being on the district. And now we come to the preacher, a man of God, a man led by the Holy Ghost, a man of fine common sense, a strong character, a Bible student, a man who knew men, and one who loved the Church. His life and ministry hereafter were to be values •which make the world better. He was in deep sympathy with the local and Conference and Connectional movements of his day, and his contribution in judgment and plan and work will be bearing interest for many a day yet. His sturdy, dependable manhood was a quickening power wherever he lived. He began his itinerant work by supplying the Mount Hope Circuit in 1879. In the fall of 1880 he was received on trial in the North Alabama Conference, and served the Mount Hope Circuit the following years, 1880-1. He was appointed next to the Oakland Circuit in the Florence District, where he remained three years, 1881-4. At the Conference held in the fall of 1884 he was appointed to the Somerville Circuit, which he served one year, 1884-5. His next charge was the Town Creek Circuit, where he remained one year, 1885-6. From this place he was removed to the Athens Circuit, which he served four years, 1886-1890. His next appointment was the Childersburg Circuit, which he served two years, 1890-2. At the close of this year he was placed again on the Athens Circuit, where he remained four more years, 1892-6. Having spent eight years on this charge, he was ready for a new field, which he found on the Millport Circuit, where he stayed one year, 1896-7. He was then appointed to the Meridianville Circuit for the next two years, 1897-9; but his health failing in the summer of his second year, he had to desist from his loved employ and let others close up the work for him. With no hope of permanent restoration to health, he was granted the superannuate relation. From the preceding account it will be seen that his traveling ministry extended over twenty years. During this time he accomplished much for the Master. With diligence and perseverance he pursued his work. The minister of our day still has many difficult problems on hand. There are yet mountains to level down and valleys to fill. Our brother took hold of his work with a brave heart. He did his part in banishing strange doctrines, righting up false views of the Church, and towing moral derelicts into the safe harbor of salvation. His superannuate life covered a period of more than fourteen years. During this time he lived in different places in Alabama and Tennessee. At the time of his death he was living at Deposit, Madison County, Ala. With the limited income of the circuit preacher of his generation he reared and educated five children—three sons and two daughters—all of whom, and their mother, survive him. Truly our brother lived to a great purpose. His life was a fine, well-spent life. All of his sympathies were with the more advanced movements of his time, in the Church and out of it. Though his life did not extend to the threescore-and-ten limit, he accomplished a full-length amount of toil. On the tenth day of March, in his own home, surrounded by his family and friends, he passed to the rest promised those who die in the faith of the Son of God. He came to his translation with undiminished mental power and an untarnished Christian character. He was buried in Huntsville, Ala., on March 11, 1914.—M. N. Morris.

WILLIAM A. KENNAMER was born in Madison County, Ala., October 11, 1857. When he was twenty-eight years old he professed religion and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Two years later he yielded to the call of God to preach the gospel. September, 1890, he was ordained a pastor in that Church by the Presbytery convened at New Market, Madison County, Ala. For sixteen years he served the Master as a preacher in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. In November, 1906, he was received into the North Alabama Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said Conference convening in Gadsden, Ala. Brother Kennamer served the following charges: North Circuit, 1907; Langston Mission, 1908; Stevenson Circuit, 1909; Margerum and Allsboro, 1910-13; East Florence, 1914, where, on April 19, he was called to his reward in heaven. Those who knew Brother Kennamer well, knew him to be a brave and fearless preacher of righteousness. He did not compromise with sin. His words were not susceptible of a double meaning. Those who heard him preach did not go away wondering what he meant. He was a good and true man. In every place where he was sent to minister he was faithful to all the trusts committed to his care. He held up the standards of Christianity as high as any one ever did. Men believed in him; they stood by him; they were willing to follow him, because they believed that he was right. He was high and holy in thought. He never engaged in any conversation that was not lofty. He preached upon this high plane. He lived the life of a Christian: he was not afraid of the results of such a life. His humility was beautiful: he realized his limitations; he never exalted himself; he was not puffed up; he did not think of himself more highly than he ought to think. He had expressed himself, just a short time before he passed, as being anxious to die "in the harness." On the night of April 19, 1914, just after he had announced his text, he fell at his post of duty, and was dead when his friends got to him. Here, from the sacred stand, his pure spirit left this world for the "home of the soul."—George E. Boyd.

J. T. WILKINS.—On the morning of February 9, 1914, when John T. Wilkins was suddenly transferred from the Church militant to the Church triumphant, there passed from our midst one of the most faithful ministers, one of the most heroic spirits, the North Alabama Conference ever had. For thirty-one years he went up to the Conference, received his appointment (which was usually a hard one), and with the brave heart of a true soldier went out to battle with poverty, suffering, and sin. No stronger evidence of the consecration of this good man could be found than the fact that without hope of leadership among his brethren, without the stimulus of large successes in his ministry, he gladly went to the hardest fields, did his best, and left the result with God. He was born of good old South Carolina parentage at Alexandria, Ala., July 16, 1849. His family were stanch members of the Baptist Church; but when twelve years of age he was converted at Alexandria Camp Ground and joined the Methodist Church. Fourteen years later, at Morrisville, on the Alexandria Circuit, he was licensed to preach. He served for one year as local preacher, and in the fall of 1875 he joined the North Alabama Conference. The next three years he served the Chandler Springs and New Castle charges. Financial responsibilities were thrust upon him, and he felt it was his duty to locate. For six years he was engaged in the mercantile business at Alexandria; but even during these years he preached regularly three times a month, and spent much of his time in evangelistic work. In 1885, at Gadsden, he was readmitted, and served continuously in the North Alabama Conference until ill health compelled him to superannuate at the close of 1913. Hundreds loved and honored him, while scores looked upon him as their spiritual father in the following charges which he served: New Market, Jasper Circuit, Piedmont Circuit, Munford Circuit, Five Points, Rockford, Wilsonville, Ashville, Ohatchie, Steele's, Falkville, Alexandria, Sylacauga Mission, and Berry. During all these years his average salary was less than three hundred dollars per year. In 1877 he was married to Miss Sallie Powers, of Alexnadria. They reared a family of seven children, who are a credit to any home. The recital of these bare facts—disclosing as they do, in addition to the burdens of his pastorate, a life of constant struggle and hardship to provide for his loved ones—is enough to give John Wilkins a prominent place in the ranks of the unknown heroes of God's itinerant host. As this simple, unassuming man walked among his fellows, few realized the burdens he carried, the privations he endured, the crosses he bore, the heroic life he lived; but there was One who knew, and on the morning of February 9, 1914, God said, "It is enough," and without warning and without pain his pure spirit went to its reward. After his superannuation he came to Talladega to live with his son. He was at church in his usual health on Sunday morning; many will long remember his prayer, so full of assurance and divine power, at the close of the service. On Monday morning about eleven o'clock he walked out in the yard at his son's home, and in a few minutes his little grandchild discovered his lifeless body. Thus ended a pure, consecrated, heroic life.

"He lived for love; no thought of fame or fashion

E'er moved his hand in aid of one in need.

Naught but his low-bending sweet compassion

Prompted the tender and uplifting deed.

Unknown was he, yet glad his simple living;

No fears assailed him, never sin made sad;
And when he died, like strains of music ceasing,

His absence caused a void in many a heart."

—K. N. Matthews.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? The names of all the members were called, one by one, and their characters were passed.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

COLUMBUS S. WAMSLEY, son of Solomon and Elizabeth L. Wamsley, was born in Randolph County, Va., now a part of West Virginia, June 3, 1851, and departed this life at Beverly, W. Va., on Sunday evening, August 24, 1913. His early religious training was under Methodist influence, and it is not surprising that he was converted at the early age of fifteen, under the ministry of Rev. J. H. Waugh, of the Baltimore Conference, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. As he showed a desire to be active and useful in the Master's service, he was appointed Sunday school superintendent at the remarkably early age of seventeen; and when he reached eighteen years he was made class leader, continuing in that position of spiritual usefulness until he entered the gospel ministry. Having been licensed to preach in 1878, he was admitted on trial into the traveling connection by the Western Virginia Conference in September, 1879, and was appointed by Bishop Doggett to the Glenville Circuit. In 1880 he was transferred to the Pleasant Ridge Circuit. He was ordained deacon in 1881. In 1882 he was sent to Elizabeth Circuit; in 1883 he was ordained elder, and sent to Prestonburg and Pikeville; in 1885, to Jacksonville; in 1886, to St. George; and in 1887, to Meadowville. Then he took a transfer to the Virginia Conference, and was appointed in 1888 to West Goochland Mission. Thence in 1889 he went to Greene Circuit; in 1890, to West Amherst; in 1891, to West Hanover; in 1893, to Heathsville; and in 1894, to Orange Circuit. In 1896, on account of impaired health, he was given the superannuate relation, which he held as long as he lived. After his superannuation he lived for some time at Ashland, Va., then removed to Basic City, where he resided four years, and then removed to West Virginia, which was his home the remainder of his life. During these years of retirement from the pastorate, however, he was by no means idle. In addition to such pursuits of a secular character as he found it necessary to follow for a maintenance, he was frequent in rendering pulpit service as opportunity offered. The pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the community where Brother Wamsley spent his latter days writes me that he preached in the churches all through that region, assisted in revival services, supplied the pulpit of a disabled pastor for a while, and that his sermons were full of spirit and power and very effective in results. This minister adds that Brother Wamsley "was admired and loved by all the Christians of our town—was loyal to his own Church to the last, and his loss is deeply felt." His son, Prof. J. E. Wamsley, of Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C., adds this filial testimony: "The last few months of his life were especially fruitful in his spiritual life; my mother and his neighbors have often told me of the force and fervor of his preaching in that last period." This gifted son speaks also of "the simple dignity and the devoted Christian service that have made his life an ideal for me." Such testimony from those who knew and loved him best is eloquent and inspiring. Brother Wamsley was a diligent student, an earnest worker, a faithful messenger of God in the pulpit, an example of godly living in the midst of his people; and now that he rests from his labors, his works do follow him. Many hearts will tenderly and gratefully cherish his memory. About two years before his death he fell from a fruit tree and sustained injuries that confined him to his bed for several months; but he is said to have entirely recovered from this affliction. He had been in unusually good health for several months, and had preached on Sunday before his death. The following Friday he was taken ill with some acute stomach trouble that defied satisfactory diagnosis, and he passed away on Sunday evening. His remains were buried the following Wednesday morning at Mingo, W. Va. Brother Wamsley is survived by his faithful wife, whose maiden name was Hattie See Stalnaker, and with whom he was united in marriage in November, 1870; also by one only child of this union, Prof. James Elliott Wamsley, of Winthrop College, S. C. Sister Wamsley's health is sadly shattered, and the sympathies of her husband's comrades in the Virginia Conference go out to her and to the son in their sore bereavement. It is regretted that the members of this Conference did not hear of Brother Wamsley's death in time to pay tribute to his memory at our last annual session. Though dwelling far from him for years before his decease, we hope to greet him among the glad throng that await us in that "land of pure light, where saints immortal reign."—J. T. Whitley.

WILLIAM EMORY EDWARDS was born in Norfolk, Va., August 6, 1876; died at Toano, Va., December 1, 1913, and his mortal remains rest with his fathers in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond. He was the son of the late Rev. William E. Edwards, D.D., and Harriet Anne Watts, and grandson of the late Rev. John E. Edwards, D.D.—father and grandfather, deceased, members of this Conference, distinguished for their cultured, eloquent, and pious ministrations. When the subject of this memoir ceased to labor and to live, the voice of the House of Edwards, that had "prophesied" in our pulpits for nearly fourscore years, was still. With such an inheritance our brother entered the itinerant ministry. Family lore, ecclesiastical and literary associations, and ideal Christian home-training conspired together to give the Church and the world a man of exceptional mental, social, and spiritual parts. He was only three years old when he was called to preach. A sister gives the following account: "It was on a Sabbath evening when with the other children we were playing church. An older brother preached a terrible sermon on Jonah and the results of disobedience to the Lord. Suddenly, to our amazement, William began to cry; and the more we tried to pacify him the louder he cried, until our parents came and inquired of the trouble. To every question he answered, 'No, I don't hurt,' and then finally he sobbed, 'Go, tell the Lord I am going to preach.'" He desired immediately to join the church, but his prudent father advised fuller consideration, until at eight years of age or thereabout he felt he could restrain him no longer, and admitted him to membership in the Centenary Methodist Church, Richmond, Va., the church to which the father, as a lad, had himself been admitted by his father. From this early decision to preach he never wavered, although he rarely mentioned it except to members of his own family—not even at sixteen years of age when he entered Randolph-Macon College. His studious life at college and his frail health provoked four years of nervous prostration, but upon recovery he applied for and received a local preacher's license from the Lynchburg District Conference, Rev. Paul Whitehead, D.D., presiding, at Bedford City, July 31, 1902; and in November of that year he was received on trial into the Virginia Conference. He was sent to East Hampton charge, where he served three years acceptably and constructively. During these years he paid for one church, East Hampton, built and paid for another, Riverview, and bought another, (Upper) Fox Hill. The membership was doubled, and a charge left where he began with nothing but opportunity, and that not a great one. During this pastorate, at the Conference at Lynchburg in 1904, he was ordained deacon by Bishop Wilson. In 1905 he was stationed at Crozet, where he labored successfully two years, largely increasing the membership of the church. At the Conference session of 1907, held at Petersburg, he was ordained elder by Bishop Galloway. At this Conference he was stationed at Fifth Street Church, Manchester, and here he projected the splendid building—one of the very best from economic and serviceable viewpoints—now known as Decatur Street Church. The Sunday school section of this church was built during his pastorate, but before the building was completed, on account of his impaired health it became necessary, in the hope of restoring his depleted strength, to give him lighter work; so in November, 1908, he was assigned to Culpeper Station. Here his health failed completely, and at the 1909 session of the Conference he reluctantly asked for superannuation. In this relation, although never for a day able to work, the necessity of providing for his family constrained him to undertake secular employment, to which he addressed himself with heroic determination, but often the frail body interfered. On August 3, 1909, he was happily married to Miss Irma Russell Browning, of Culpeper, Va., a beautiful and devoted young woman, who loyally and affectionately shared his many discouragements and tenderly nursed him in his physical infirmities. On July 4, 1910, their home was brightened by the advent of their only child, Russell Browning. Wife and child survive him, with his mother, the relict of the late Rev. W. E. Edwards, D.D., two brothers, two sisters, a half-brother, and a half-sister, Miss Ida M. Edwards, of Dunn, N. C. Seven years of itinerant work mark the activities of his ministerial career, and they were busy years. He added to, built up, and strengthened his charges. How he planned and constructed so much supplementary to his pulpit and pastoral work will never be known, for during all these seven years he contended with consuming disease and an exceptionally weak constitution. He entered the itinerancy after four years of nervous prostration, and after about a year of service was attacked by a violent and protracted spell of typhoid fever; three times he went on the operating table under the surgeon's knife, and was never perhaps entirely free from pain. In the midst of all this, and despite it, he wrought well. His spirit never flagged even when his tired body was exhausted. During his early ministry the writer was closely associated with him at Hampton. We boarded and roomed together, and often at night I wondered if that weak heart of his (hardly perceptible at the pulse) would last until morning. If he had gone, I would not at any time have been surprised, and yet he struggled and labored on. No one but himself and God ever knew the nervous strain, the extreme weakness, and the physical pain he endured during these years, nor what he had to overcome in himself before his tender ministrations, pulpit efforts, pastoral cares, and church enterprises began for others. His advanced education was pursued at Randolph-Macon College, where he developed a love of books and a discriminating mind which served him admirably in his literary work and pulpit efforts. His mind was of the highest order, enabling him to think accurately and clearly and to sustain remarkable concentration. He was much more poetic in his temperament than logical, although he was never illogical. He delighted himself in spare moments in the company of the English poets, and often expressed the melody of his heart and the devotion of his soul in rapturous figures of speech and balanced verse. His soul delighted in groves and trees and birds and flowers; and in the quiet of shady nooks beside murmuring waters and singing birds he seemed to be in perfect harmony with Nature and in delightful communion with Nature's God. His preaching was rarely doctrinal, but practical and evangelical. The sermon was always prepared in homiletical order, and ornate with simple but classical illustrations, all interspersed with striking epigrams and decorated with an imagination of rare power and compass. Throughout every discourse breathed his ardent devotional spirit, until his discriminating and sympathetic hearers were almost lifted out of themselves. One would be struck with amazement after viewing his small, frail body, with his youthful appearance in the pulpit, to hear the resonant fullness of his matchless voice. His delivery was not didactic, though his subject-matter was always instructive—not oratorical, though he never failed to compel attention, but earnest, and at times fiery and always fluent. His manner plainly showed his own conviction of the truth of the sublime verities in which he dealt. Saints were edified, sinners were convicted and converted. His own personal bereavements and physical afflictions peculiarly fitted him in his pastoral work to succor others who were in distress or pain; and tenderly, affectionately, sympathetically he went in and out among the sorrowing and sick to their comfort, encouragement, and joy. Ofttimes I have known him "in feebleness extreme" to drag his tired body to see others, when in all reason and religion they should have ministered to him; but, like his Lord, "he came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." In the social circle he was the charming center and "observed of all observers" on account of his quaint, refined humor and brilliant conversation. Yet with the dry and garrulous he could upon occasion be both quiet and attentive, patient and long-suffering, without complaint. From earliest childhood he was an obedient and dutiful son and an innocent and affectionate brother—was never known to evade the truth nor to utter an unchaste expression. In manhood he maintained a brave loyalty to exact truth and exquisite chastity both of speech and thought. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." A faithful and devoted husband, a discreet and affectionate father, he filled a well-rounded manhood in all of the relations of life. He was a man whose friendship was to be courted, for never had one a friend more loyal and sympathetic, more courageous and unselfish, than he. He was entirely unconventional in the pulpit and out of it, and thus became approachable and enticing to young and old. His character, pure as a lily, was entirely transparent. There were no concealments or hidden motives. His stainless soul was naked and open to all with whom he had to do. He was so unconventional himself, and so practical and so genuine, that he abhorred cant and the phylacteries; nothing provoked him, but cant disgusted him. His charity literally covered "all things." He always found some mitigation for the offenses of others, even when they offended against him. And the obvious sins of other people grieved him, but never moved him to harsh criticism of them. This charitable spirit was very evident in the last years of his life—years in which to the unequal contest for strength and the struggle for bread was added the sadness of feeling that many who should have been his companions and friends utterly misunderstood, misjudged, and neglected him. He was lonely, he was sick, he was nervous; but none of these feelings caused the slightest resentment. In some instances he sustained the grossest injustice, but no uncharitable word escaped his lips, although he frequently expressed his sorrow for all who were blighted by such a spirit, and often prayed that they might be delivered. Their treatment of him was ignored, but his consideration of them was vast. I have not known a man of whom it might have been so truly predicated: "He suffereth long and is kind, envieth not, vaunteth not himself, is not puffed up, doth not behave himself unseemly, seeketh not his own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." His religious experience of his heavenly Father's providential care and love for him was clear and unfailing, and his answering love was childlike and intense. He never questioned any of the circumstances appointed him in life; they were all right. Not even the frail body, the multiplied bodily afflictions, the sustained pain, the shattered nerves, the struggle for existence, the early interruption of his work, the indifference of friends, ever strained his faith in God or disturbed his delightful and constant communion with his Father or dampened the ardor of his intense affection for him. This believing and devotional spirit permeated everything he wrote—all of his sermons, all of his conversations, and all of his thoughts. Truly, he "walked with God"; and on the first day of last December, without premonition, he turned to his devoted wife, with only a little moan at the idea of separation from her and other loved ones, and "was not, for God took him."—*J. RICHARD DAVIS SMART was born in Beaufort County, S. C., September 17, 1846, and died in Charlottesville, Va., January 4, 1914. He obtained his academic education at Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., and afterwards took a three-year course in the Presbyterian Seminary, at Columbia in his native State, as the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at that time had no theological school. He was admitted on trial into the traveling connection by the South Carolina Conference in 1870. Three years he served in circuit work, two years he served in the presiding eldership, and the rest of his active life he spent as a station preacher. Having served four years in Charleston, S. C., he was transferred to the pastorate of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Little Rock, Ark., where he spent three years. From there he was sent to the First Church, Memphis, Tenn., which he served four years. Then he was transferred to the St. Louis Conference and stationed at Cook Avenue Church (now known as Scruggs Memorial) in the city of St. Louis, where he served four years. Then, in obedience to the mandate of the bishops, he transferred his labors to the Virginia Conference, where, in the fall of 1902, he became the pastor of Epworth Church in the city of Norfolk. After a successful pastorate with this church, continuing the full term of four years, he was stationed at First Church, Charlottesville, Va., where he was very popular and abundantly useful. At the end of his second year at Charlottesville, in response to an urgent call from Bishop Hendrix, he was transferred by Bishop Wilson to the Louisville Conference, and stationed at Broadway Church in the city of Louisville. Having served this church two years, he was taken ill and fell in the pulpit after finishing his evening sermon on Sunday, October 30, 1910. Soon afterwards he was removed to Charlottesville, Va., for scientific medical treatment and pure mountain air; and having been transferred to the Virginia Conference, he was placed, at his own request, upon the supernumerary list. After resting a year, he returned to the effective list, applied for work, and was stationed at Boydton, Va., for one year. He then yielded to the persuasions of his sons, who saw that his desire to work was greater than his ability to stand the strain, and retired once more to the list of supernumeraries. After spending some months in visiting relatives in South Carolina and elsewhere, he returned to Charlottesville, June 20, 1913, where he resided until death. His remains were conveyed to Greenwood, S. C., and buried in the cemetery there beside the bodies of his two little daughters, who died in 1883. In March, 1873, he was married to Miss Julia I. Evans, of Charleston, S. C. Of this marriage there was one daughter, who is now Mrs. R. E. Wait, of Little Rock, Ark. On June 20, 1876, he was happily married to Miss Ella Gaillard, daughter of Congressman Wyatt Aiken, of South Carolina. Of this marriage there were seven children. Two of the daughters died; the other children are living. One of the sons, Rev. Richard D. Smart, Jr., is now assistant pastor of the Methodist Church, in Wusih, China, and also a professor in the Suchow University, at Suchow. Another son, Rev. Wyatt Aiken Smart, D.D., is Professor of Biblical Theology in the Theological Faculty of the Southern Methodist University, Atlanta, Ga. Dr. Frank P. Smart, a third son, is a successful practitioner of medicine in the city of Norfolk, Va. The fourth son, Henry Gaillard, resides in San Francisco, Cal. The younger daughter, Miss Ella, is with her mother as companion and comforter. Of our departed friend and brother, Doctor Smart, let it be said with emphasis that though he served the Church in six different Conferences, he never interfered with an appointment, nor asked a favor of the appointing powers. He was always loyal to his Church in the matter of appointing her pastors, as in other respects. When consulted at times about his appointments, he declined to express any wishes, leaving it entirely to the bishops as to where he should serve. In the South Carolina Conference, where he began his ministry, he was called "the peacemaker." How many souls he led to Christ and heaven, the future alone will disclose.—W. E. Judkins.

EDWARD MARCELLUS JORDAN was the son of John Parker and Zaritha M. Jordan, and was born in the State of Illinois on January 31, 1841. While he was but a lad his parents moved to North Carolina and settled in Perquimans County. Here he had such educational advantages as the community afforded, and afterwards was a student at Randolph-Macon College. During the War Between the States he was a soldier in the Confederate Army. He was twice wounded, and lay a sufferer in the hospital at the time the battle of Gettysburg was being fought. After the war he made his home in Gates County, North Carolina. Though he had come to mature manhood, and his life was outwardly moral, he had taken no decided step toward a religious life until 1867, when in a meeting held at Fletcher's Chapel during the month of August, under the ministry of Rev. W. E. Allen, he was happily converted. The turning of his mind to the subject of religion at that time was due in large measure to the influence over him of a very godly woman, his aunt, Mrs. A. J. Walton, who, for her piety, her strong Christian character, and her activity in the Church, was known throughout the entire circuit. Brother Jordan at once allied himself with the people of God and began to do work in the Church, and found increased pleasure in the service he was able to render under the direction of his pastor. It was not very long before he had seriously to consider what he believed to be a call of God to the work of the ministry. Within the space of two years he had fully decided that the call was of God, and that he could not maintain his proper relation with God without devoting his life to the preaching of the gospel of his Son. In 1869, on Gates Circuit, with Rev. M. S. Colonna, preacher in charge, and Rev. Henry B. Cowles, presiding elder, he was licensed to preach. At Richmond, Va., in November of that same year, with eight others, he was received into the Virginia Conference on trial. Brother Jordan was never of robust health, and through a large part of his ministry he labored in much feebleness of body. He was advised by his physician to discontinue the work of the ministry, and that he could only live a short while. He made the plea that, if he had so short a while to live, he craved to spend a part of that time in telling of his Saviour to men. The first year of his ministry was spent on Northumberland Circuit. He then served the Berlin Circuit two years, and was sent next to Orange Circuit, where he spent three years. On these charges he had revivals and additions to the Church. While on the Orange Circuit, in 1874, he was married to Miss Mattie Walker, who became not only a devoted wife but a helpmeet indeed. His next charge was Culpeper Circuit; from there he was sent to South Norfolk Circuit, and remained two years. He next spent four years on Norfolk Circuit; then four years on Hertford Circuit, North Carolina. From this charge he was sent to the North Gates Circuit, and remained four years. He was then stationed at Elizabeth City, where he served three years. When he had completed his third year on this last-named charge, he found his health so impaired that he was compelled to retire from the active work. With much confidence in the helpful resources of his devoted wife, he moved to Ashland, Va., where they found educational advantages for their children, and where they both rendered helpful service to a number of young men who were students at the college, some of whom are now members of the Virginia Conference. At the end of a period of seven years, having improved in health, he felt that he must enter again the active work, and at the Conference of that year held in Petersburg, Va., he was put in charge of Hanover Circuit. After this, he served Whaleyville and Somerton charge two years, and from there went to Onley Circuit, on which he remained four years. He next served Cambridge Circuit; from there he went to Cheriton, and then to Crittenden, where he spent the last two years of his active ministry. During his last few years of active work his strength greatly failed. His oldest daughter, Mrs. Dr. Will Kellam, had insisted that he retire from active work and spend his remaining days with her in her comfortable home at Onley, in Accomac County, Va. In the autumn of 1911, convinced that his active work was finished, with his devoted companion of forty years he moved to the home of his daughter. Here he enjoyed also a sweet fellowship with members of his old charge, and spent much time in reading, as was his custom through many years. While his strength gradually failed, he was possessed of the same happy state of mind and heart. As the body wasted, he grew in faith, in love, in devotion to his Lord, and in readiness for that day when, as he knew, his Lord would come and take him to a home of rest and reward. After two years of patient waiting, he realized that the end was not far away. Death had no terror for him. His unflinching faith in God and his promises seemed all sufficient. He knew that his end would be peace and his rest sure. Within the Bible, from which he had read even more than usual during the last few months of his life, was found by this writer a slip of paper on which were written by him D. L. Moody's last words: "Earth recedes. Heaven opens. God is calling me. This is my triumph. This is my coronation day." He had been confined to his room for about three months, but not to his bed all the while. After giving his wife some advice concerning her future plans and committing her and the children to the tender care of his Lord, his mind seemed fixed on things beyond the sphere from which he knew he would soon go. When on Wednesday morning, February 25, the light of day had fully come and the darkness of the night had gone, he quietly "fell on sleep." He had asked that no eulogy be spoken over his body, and suggested that a brief service at the grave would be sufficient. At midday on Friday, the twenty-seventh, assisted by one of his close personal friends, Rev. W. T. Williams, and Rev. R. T. Clarke, pastor at Onley, we laid his body to rest in the cemetery at Onancock, Va.

"There sweet be thy rest, till He bid thee arise,
To hail Him in triumph descending the skies."

As a preacher Edward M. Jordan excelled. His style was simple and attractive. His delivery was forceful. He saw truth clearly, and presented it in well-chosen speech. He was a reader of good books and loved the best literature. His preaching commanded the thought and attention of his hearers. Had he possessed the full use of his organs of speech, unhampered by a throat affection that produced a cough, he would have ranked as a great preacher. His sermons showed the mastery of his subject and the rich unfolding of truth. He made clear his statements by the application of truth, and confirmed his arguments out of his own experience. He knew Christ and loved to preach him. He was not without evangelistic gifts and loved revival work. Many were converted under his ministry. His public prayers stirred the congregation; few men have been so gifted in prayer. He prayed in secret. As a friend he was affable, genial, and confiding. He loved his brethren of the ministry and rejoiced in their success. A mutual friend writing to me of him said: "I knew him thirty-five years. He was a beautiful character, but there was no mere veneering. He was sympathetic and generous, but not ostentatious. He was diplomatic, but open and sincere. He was devoted to God and his work, but not pharisaical nor puritanical. He was physically weak, but a good, strong preacher—at times eloquent. His sermons were well thought out, but not heavy. His pulpit prayers were original, spiritual, and gracious. A man of God and of men, he served his generation well, and still serves it." Our dear brother has gone from us. We shall miss him, but we shall see him again—not on the earth; we shall find him in his Father's house.—W. T. Green.

CHARLES EDWARD HOBDAY, son of Joseph and Mary A. White Hobday, was born in Portsmouth, Va., March 1, 1844, and died in Mathews, County, Virginia, April 16, 1914. He was converted at an early age, and joined old Dinwiddie Street Church (now Monumental), under the ministry of Rev. Charles H. Davis. His parents moved to Mathews County in December, 1856. He did not take a certificate of Church membership with him; and neglecting his Church privileges, he went back to the world. He entered the army of the Confederate States at the age of seventeen and served in the Fifth Virginia Cavalry. He was twice taken prisoner: once he captured his captor and took him with him into camp; once he was sent to Fort Delaware, where he endured with fortitude the hardships of prison life. He did not surrender at Appomattox, and was paroled some time after the close of the war. After his return from the army he was thoroughly reclaimed by a sound conversion in a great revival at Old Providence Church, Mathews County, in September, 1865. He at once joined the Church and was put to work. For two years he resisted his call to the ministry, but at last yielded, saying, "Here am I, send me." He was licensed to preach September 12, 1867, and was admitted on trial the same year at the session of the Virginia Conference held in Petersburg, Bishop Doggett presiding. He was appointed in 1867 to Bertie Circuit, North Carolina, as junior under Rev. Jeremiah McMullan. In 1868 he was sent to Northampton Circuit, North Carolina, with Rev. William Grant as his assistant. During this year great revivals blessed his labors, resulting in one hundred and sixty-nine conversions and one hundred and thirty-nine additions to the Church. He served thereafter the following charges: Goochland, 1869-70; Caroline, 1871; Indian Ridge (now Currituck, N. C.), 1872-3; Chuckatuck, 1874-7; South Norfolk, 1878-9; Northampton, N. C., 1880-2; Chuckatuck (again), 1883-6; Eastville, 1887-90; Southampton, 1891; Batesville, 1892-3; York, 1894-6; Brunswick, 1897-9; Gloucester Point, 1900-02; King George, 1903-06; West Lancaster, 1907-09; and Middlesex, 1910-12. This is a record of forty-six years of unbroken service as an itinerant preacher, filled with earnest, consecrated labor for the salvation of souls and the upbuilding of the Church. He was no place-seeker—he accepted his appointments as coming from God, and heartily endeavored to do the Master's work with an eye single to his glory. In 1868 he married Miss Lavinia Green, who died fifteen months after marriage, leaving an infant daughter who soon followed her mother to the grave. On the eighth of June, 1871, while pastor of the Goochland Circuit, he was most happily married to Miss Flora Adelia Lewis, who with her son, Paul A. Hobday, survives him to mourn their irreparable loss. Plain, simple, strong, and useful, describe the man and his work. He was straightforward in all he did; one always knew where to find him. He claimed no man as his master. He was his own man. He despised shams. He loved the true and the good. He wrote and spoke what he believed to be the truth, regardless of what others might say or think. He said: "I have tried to do my duty; I have not hesitated to say what I thought." As a man and a pastor he was greatly beloved. He was genial and sympathetic, and had a keen sense of humor. His presence brightened and blessed the home he entered, and made glad the hearts of both young and old. He loved the young, and they were strongly attached to him. As a preacher he was clear and strong. He used no untempered mortar. He spoke the truth in love, but he always spoke the truth. His voice was clear, sympathetic, and pleasing. His preaching edified saints, and brought sinners to repentance and salvation. He was a true evangelist, and God blessed his ministry to the salvation of many souls. My acquaintance with Brother Hobday began in 1868, when I was admitted on trial into the Virginia Conference. In 1869 we were thrown closely together, being on adjacent circuits. An intimate friendship then began which strengthened through all the intervening years. We had much in common. We were Confederate soldiers and comrades; members of the same Conference, and soldiers of the Cross; the bond of affection and friendship was sweet and strong. We loved, trusted, and confided in each other. His heart was of pure gold. In his growing affliction of deafness he leaned upon me as his friend, to be ears for him. He was deeply interested in all the proceedings of his Conference. He could be seen ever near the front, oftentimes kneeling at the chancel, with elbow on the rail and with hand to his ear, so anxious was he to hear. To me as his friend he would come at the close of the session and say: "Tell me what was said and done; I cannot hear." What a pleasure to give him the desired information! To-day his ears are open to hear the music of angelic choirs and the Master's "Well done!" It was my privilege twice to be his presiding elder, and to enjoy frequently his hospitality. His home life was beautiful. He was a very considerate, tender, and affectionate husband and father. His hospitality was unostentatious, but sincere and genuine, in which he was graciously and well assisted by his noble wife. To superannuate was to him a great hardship. He received that relation on his own motion. His charge was willing to receive him again, his friends urged him not to retire; but he said: "I cannot hear; I cannot do my work; I must retire." To his quiet, modest home in Mathews County, on the East River, he retired and began work on his farm. On the morning of April 16 he came in from his work and said to his wife, using his affectionate appellation for her: "Baby, I cannot finish the work." He sat down in a chair with his head resting on his wife's bosom, and in a few moments his gentle, pure spirit was with God. His work on earth was finished, and he had entered into eternal rest. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."—J. C. Reed.

LEROY WILLIAM GUYER was born in Richmond, Va., August 31, 1862. He was converted in boyhood, and united with Union Station Church, where he immediately became active in Christian work. Early in life he entered business, continuing until he had risen to the position of manager of one of the large tobacco factories of his native city. But in the development of his religious experience he became conscious of a call to preach, and as a local preacher rendered successful service for several years. Having been received on trial into the Virginia Conference in 1901, his first appointment was to West Street Church, Petersburg. After this he served successively and successfully Owens Memorial, Portsmouth; Ettrick, Petersburg; Owens Memorial, again; Chatham Circuit; Cabell Street, Danville; and Madison Heights, Lynchburg. In the second year of his pastorate at this last charge he laid aside his armor and entered into rest. Brother Guyer was three times married: in 1882, to Miss Faudree, of Richmond; in 1889, to Miss Annie Louise Myers, of New Kent County; and in 1909, to Miss Elizabeth Christian Watson, of Chatham. He is survived by his widow and by six children of the second marriage. The disease which terminated fatally May 16, 1914, first seized him during the latter part of his pastorate at Cabell Street. At that time his health declined to such an extent that his friends feared he might be forced to seek a superannuate relation; but after some months of skillful medical treatment, he was sufficiently restored to accept another appointment. But he was never a well man afterwards. For about two years he attempted in suffering and weakness to do his work, but finally succumbed to the encroachments of Bright's disease until his worn-out body refused to respond to the spur of his indomitable will; and surrounded by his loved ones, he passed peacefully away.

"Life's labor done, as sinks the clay,
Light from its load the spirit flies,
While heaven and earth combine to say,
'How blest the righteous when he dies!'"

The funeral services were held in the Madison Heights Church, and were conducted by his presiding elder, Rev. W. H. Edwards, D.D. Rev. J. N. Latham, D.D., delivered the discourse, a beautiful and tender tribute to the deceased, based upon Acts xi. 24: "For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith; and much people was added unto the Lord." The body was taken to Chatham for interment. Here Doctor Edwards, assisted by Rev. L. D. Stables, in the midst of a large gathering of friends and former parishioners, committed the body to the ground, to await the resurrection morn. By the side of his daughter, Grace, who had preceded him to the grave by about a year, our fallen comrade sleeps in Jesus: a "blessed sleep, from which none ever wakes to weep." Brother Guyer was a man of splendid physique. Like King Saul, he stood head and shoulders above his brethren. His physical strength promised years of activity and usefulness. Not one of us supposed that we should so soon be called on thus to memorialize Leroy Guyer. But perhaps his realization of superior strength is partially responsible for his early decease. He never spared himself, but gave himself so unremittingly to his work, with no apparent fatigue or thought of physical decline, that it is possible in this way inroads were made upon his constitution that finally resulted in his death. So, trading upon supposed unlimited physical resources, he gave himself no opportunity to renew the supply of strength that had been exhausted in the constant expenditure of physical and nervous energy involved in his work, until he faced sudden and serious collapse. Even then he refused to apply the brake longer than was absolutely necessary. In his condition men of less heroic type would have sought relief from the exacting and wearing duties of the pastorate. Not so with him. As soon as partial recovery made service possible, he again devoted himself to the activities involved in his mission, and dragged his weak and tired body the round of his daily task. He seemed to have caught the inspiration of the spirit and example of the Apostle to the Gentiles: "Neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus." For months before his death he attempted to do his work, despite the suffering and weakness imposed by an incurable disease. For some time failing eyesight prevented his reading, but he memorized the service, that his ministry might not be interrupted. For two months before the end he persisted in doing his pastoral work, though he was then too weak to fulfill his pulpit ministrations. The passion of a high vocation had seized the soul of this man; and, staggering and stumbling under the burden, his dauntless spirit compelled his wasted body to serve the purposes of his devotion, until from sheer exhaustion he fell on the field, and nature paid the penalty of the infraction of physical law. But he left us all the thrilling example of a great consecration, and his heroic devotion to the Master's work will live long in our memories, though his own body could not long survive the strain. Michelangelo used to say as the chips fell from the marble on the floor of his studio, "While the marble wastes, the image grows." While the strength of our brother was drained by the demands of his indomitable spirit, the high quality of that spirit was more richly revealed in the self-sacrificing nature of his service. It was like the Master he loved, that he should think of his work rather than of himself. In this example he leaves his brethren of the Conference a rich legacy.

"But they whose lives are true, whose hearts are high,
 Those shining spirits by the world untamed,
 May at the end unshamed
 Look on their days gone by."

In his youth our friend was deprived of such educational advantages as he wished for. The Civil War left the financial resources of the family in a depleted condition; so, with an unselfishness that characterized him in every circumstance and relation of life, he relinquished his cherished ambitions, and, contenting himself with preparation for a business career, entered the realm of commerce, that he might immediately become self-supporting, and might contribute according to his ability to the family exchequer. When, in later years, he responded to the divine call to preach and gave himself to the work of the ministry, he found his hands full and his time taken up with constant attention to the calls of the pastorate, and with the pressing problems of church management. He clearly discerned the need of practical ministry in the charges he served, and could not begrudge the time he might have given to studious seclusion, to activity in the care of his membership, and to the promotion of the many important causes involved in a successful pastorate. He was constantly busy tugging at the load his conscience compelled him to pull. So heavy was this load, so long and hard the road, that frequently the day ended with the goal unreachd, and the lengthening shadows of the evening found him weary with the work. Nevertheless, he did not neglect the development of his mind, nor the preparation necessary to make him an effective preacher of the Word. He was by nature endowed with an oratorical temperament and equipped with talents that gave him power in the pulpit. A commanding presence and a sonorous voice were his. His soul glowed with passionate earnestness, and an invincible faith in the verities of the gospel clothed his utterance with convincing power. Back of the spoken word was an evident and profound sympathy with the needs and longings of those to whom he spoke; and a genuine care for souls added a tenderness and a pathos to his discourses that gave him at times an almost irresistible influence with his audience. Those to whom he spoke were quick to discern, what every audience is sure to detect, that he who spoke was moved only by the desire to bring them into saving relations with the Christ, and to establish between them and the Source of life such connection as would make them the beneficiaries of God's sufficient and unfailing grace. While his sermons then were not marked by the manifestation of scholarly attainments or profound reasoning, they were helpful and inspiring because the triumphant faith of the preacher had levied upon the principles and promises of the eternal gospel, and a discriminating mind had presented such truths as were of practical value in a world of temptation and constant need. Perhaps his most conspicuous power as a preacher lay in his evangelistic gifts. All his preaching was permeated with the evangelistic spirit, and all his pastorates were marked by evangelistic success. He was much in demand in the conduct of revival meetings, and through his instrumentality hundreds of souls have been brought to a saving knowledge of Christ. In the pastorate he was much beloved. His great body held a great heart. He was a friend of men, and gave himself, his strength, his sympathy, in full measure to the service of the community in which he lived. Men told him their troubles, because they found in him a brother; women confided in him, because they trusted him; and children loved him, because he loved them. He was to them all "Brother Guyer," and they levied upon what resources of help he had, because he revealed to them a spirit of brotherliness which gave assurance that his joy was great in sharing with those in need the treasures of his great heart and the strength of his great body. He served nowhere that his friends are not legion. In St. Paul's Cathedral, London, I read the famous tablet erected to the memory of "Chinese Gordon." With no violence to the truth, I think we may substitute for the name of Sir Charles Gordon the name of Leroy Guyer, and the inscription thereon would be justified: "To the memory of Leroy Guyer, who always and everywhere gave his sympathy to the suffering, his substance to the needy, his hand to the helpless, and his heart to God." Among us, his comrades in the Conference, he was highly esteemed and loved. His sunny smile, his cheery greeting, his readiness to respond to the call for help, the genuineness and strength of his friendship, the absence of egotism and all unworthy self-seeking, compelled admiration and affection from those among whom he moved and whom he so much loved. I knew him well. In all the years I knew him I never heard him speak unkindly of a brother, nor have I heard a brother speak unkindly of him. If there is one among us all, between whom and Leroy Guyer there existed any restraint, any interruption of friendly relations, I do not know it. We meet today to pay our tribute of affectionate regard to the memory of one whom we all loved. It is not a perfunctory service. In our hearts we remember his worth, and with our lips we recite his virtues, because he was to us all a comrade in Christ—a friend who never failed us in the faith of the gospel, or in the practical expression of the fraternal spirit.

"Forgive our grief for one removed,
Thy creature whom we found so fair;
We trust he lives in Thee, and there
We find him worthier to be loved."

Into the sacred precincts of the domestic circle we may not obtrude. Behind the closed door of the home we know not what occurred. The memories there are too sacred to be placed upon public parade; too deep and tender is the affection to court display. It must suffice in this hour to quote, and only to quote without comment, the words of one who writes in her grief and loneliness, from an experience sweet and intimate: "He was the kindest, most indulgent father; the gentlest and tenderest husband." We must bring this imperfect account of the life and character of our friend to a close.

"No farther seek his merits to disclose,
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode
(There they alike in trembling hope repose),
The bosom of his Father and his God."

On the crest of a hill, in the quiet city of the dead at Chatham, where the sun shines warm upon his grave, and overhead in the branches of the great oaks the birds sing their songs of gladness and of trust, the body of our brother lies. He faced the last enemy with a courage and a complacency born of triumphant faith in Christ. The worst that death could do to him was to thrust the sword into the warrior's body and liberate a conqueror's soul. The shell of him lies sleeping beneath the sod; the spirit of him, emancipated and unfettered, wings its flight out into the land of all our dreams and all our hopes, the blessed land where life and love and liberty abide forever hard by the throne of the Eternal King.

"I think of death as some delightful journey

That I shall take when all my tasks are done.

Though life has given me a heaping measure

Of all best gifts, and many a cup of pleasure,

Still better things await me further on.

"This little earth is such a merry planet,
The distances beyond it so supreme,

I have no doubt that all the mighty spaces

Between us and the stars are filled with faces

More beautiful than any artist's dream.

"I like to think that I shall yet behold them,

When from this waiting-room my soul has soared.

Earth is a wayside station, where we wander,

Until from out the silent darkness yonder

Death swings his lantern and cries, 'All aboard!'

"I think Death's train sweeps through the solar system

And passes suns and moons that dwarf our own,

And close beside us we shall find our dearest,

The spirit friends on earth we held the nearest,

And in the shining distance God's great throne."

—G. H. Lambeth.

RICHARD GREGORY JAMES was born in Chesterfield County, Virginia, December 31, 1861. He was the son of John Wesley and Margaret Elizabeth James, a devout couple, who feared God with all their house. His paternal grandfather was Rev. Garland James, a local preacher; while an uncle, Rev. Marcellus James, was for a time a member of the Virginia Conference. With godly forbears, the boy early turned his feet toward the testimonies of the Lord, and from the time of his conversion there was a marked consecration of his whole being to the service of God. When scarcely more than a lad, he was active in the Sunday school and took part in the neighborhood prayer meetings. All the time he felt that God was leading him to give his life to some distinctive religious work; and so when he had reached his twenty-third year, he felt a definite call to the ministry and began preparation for this high calling. In the fall of 1892 he was received on trial into the Virginia Conference. We have had men of more conspicuous abilities; we have hardly had one of deeper piety or of fuller consecration. He was a good preacher—clear, thoughtful, orthodox; but the greatest power for good in his ministry was in a life “hid with Christ in God.” His character was so transparent that all who saw might read. No sinister motive was there, no pretense, no sham. He loved the truth, and nothing that smacked of falsehood could find place in his life. He accepted the itinerancy literally. He never sought nor shunned a place. Quiet and modest, he accepted without question the assignment of the bishop, and went to his charge believing that God ruled in this, as in all else that concerned him. He was never physically robust, and several severe attacks of illness threatened his life. Once after weary months of suffering in a hospital, it was feared he was permanently disabled; and indeed for several years he was unable to take an appointment. But his health improving, he came again into his loved employ, and prosecuted the work with fidelity and success. For him to see a need in the work was a call to meet that need. His personal convenience had nothing to do with it. While on the King George Circuit he saw that our people at Colonial Beach were without a pastor. The town was twenty miles from the parsonage. The roads in winter were extremely difficult, but he never hesitated. Through heat and cold he ministered to the little flock there, and was largely instrumental in developing the present flourishing station. He always did good, steady, faithful work, and every charge he served improved under his care. Gentle, refined, courteous, he made friends wherever he went. No coarse or vulgar utterance fell from his lips, nor was there seen in him conduct that was unbecoming in a Christian. A cultured minister of the Protestant Episcopal Church once said to the writer that Brother James was as fine a character as he had ever seen in the pastorate, and that he felt that a visit from him was a blessing to his home. Early in his ministry he was happily married to Miss Lilly Sale, of Ashland, Va. This devoted wife entered into his work with perfect sympathy, and much of our brother's success was due to her entire adaptability to the often trying position of the itinerant's wife. God blessed their union with six bright, interesting children. These are all living with their mother in Gordonsville. The end of his earthly career came to him while pastor of Gordonsville Circuit. A severe attack of neuritis was followed by a painful and unyielding heart affection; and although the best medical skill was employed, he lingered but a few days, when his pure spirit went to be with God forever. There was no fear when he approached the end. He knew “whom he had believed.” He had pointed others to this same Source of life and strength, and he knew his Lord would not fail him. His end was peace. In the quiet churchyard in Chesterfield, where lie the earthly remains of many of his kindred, they laid his body. Rev. W. F. Hayes was there to say the last solemn words. They made a new mound, and upon it lovingly placed beautiful flowers. But he was not there, for God had taken him.—W. G. Boggs.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters examined and passed, with the exception of John C. Rosser, who surrendered his credentials and withdrew from the ministry and membership of our Church.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

WILLIAM FRANKLIN LLOYD.—One by one we are passing from the battlefield of earth to the home of the good. It has fallen to my lot to present to this Conference a tribute to the memory of our departed brother, Rev. William Franklin Lloyd, who was born in Taylor County, Ga., November 25, 1855. His parents were devout Christians, who had the true conception of life, and possessed those traits of character which stand for the most in life. They fostered in their children by precept and example those virtues so essential to true manhood and womanhood. The hallowed home environments were absorbed in early life by our esteemed brother, so that when about fifteen years of age he was converted and joined the Methodist Church. His father died when he was nine years old. This handicapped him, because it devolved upon him to aid his mother in supporting the family, which consisted of six children. After his conversion he led in family worship. In 1873, at the age of eighteen, he was licensed to exhort and in a short time thereafter to preach. In 1875 he was admitted on trial in the South Georgia Conference, which convened in Americus, and was assigned to the Glen Alta Circuit. He served this charge one year. Near the close of the year he was united in marriage with Miss Jessie Grace, with whom he lived happily to the end of life. To this union six sons and three daughters were born. The next year he was assigned to the Girrard and Trinity charge in the suburbs of Columbus. It was here that a friendship was formed with Bishop Key, which matured during the following years, ultimating in deep devotion to each other. The following are the other charges he served in Georgia: Blakely Circuit, 1877-9; Boston Circuit, 1879-81; Brunswick, 1881-3; Fort Valley, 1883-5. He was presiding elder of the Waycross District 1885-7; St. Paul Church, Columbus, 1887-90. He was transferred to the Northwest Texas Conference in 1890 and succeeded the writer as pastor of First Methodist Church in Fort Worth. His success here was most remarkable in all departments of Church work. He projected two missions—one of which terminated in what is now Weatherford Street Church. Near the end of his quadrennium he was elected President of Polytechnic College. For five years, under the most unfavorable conditions, he strove as heroically and unselfishly to establish a first-class college for the Church as it was possible for a man to do. But while he failed to accomplish fully his cherished ideal, he made it possible for successors, under more favorable conditions, to build up a great school, which is largely indebted to Dr. Lloyd for the foundation laid. In 1899 he was transferred to the Kentucky Conference and stationed at Walnut Street Church, Louisville, where he served a quadrennium. From thence to Bowling Green in 1903, where he served until 1906. He was then returned to Louisville as pastor of two churches, Walnut Street and Chestnut Street, to perform the delicate and difficult task of uniting them. With much tact and energy he succeeded in doing it, but at the expense of his health. This made it necessary for him to have lighter work. Consequently he was sent to Jeffersonville, Indiana. At the end of this year he was transferred to the Western Virginia Conference and stationed at Johnson Memorial Church in Huntington. This proved to be his last work. Before the close of the year his health gave completely down, and he was forced to leave the charge in the hands of his son Ernest to complete the year. He came to Texas in quest of health. But alas! disease had sapped the foundation of life so that human willpower, endurance, and fortitude, assisted by medical aid, were impotent before the encroachment of death. One year ago from this writing, the thirteenth day of November, 1913, in Stephenville, he passed through the valley of the shadow of death to the home of the good. Physically he was robust, large, and well developed, and of commanding personality; of impressive appearance, a notable character in any assembly. He was endowed with a massive brain. Although his educational advantages were limited, yet, by close application and with his natural endowments, he moved in all the circles of life with facility, and was the peer of college-bred men. From the beginning of his ministry his advancement in the Church was rapid, attesting his gifts, grace, and application to books and the work in hand. His home life was beautiful. The family he and his good wife reared is a standing testimony of a well-regulated Christian home. And the eight living children and the one dead reflect the devotion and efficiency of their sainted father, and live to honor his name. May the mantle of the father rest upon his preacher son. He was a strong, interesting, convincing, and attractive preacher. He gave no uncertain sound, but preached the Word—Christ and him crucified. While logical, he was lucid and practical; absolutely free from affectation or sensation. He drew and held large congregations, and was eminently successful as a pastor. He was a great and good man, viewed from any angle of life. He was broad, genial, and free from selfishness and conceit; large in body, intellect, and spirit. He exemplified the virtues of genuine and deep spiritual life; free from cant or affectation. He was honest, sincere, chaste in life. He was a congenial Christian gentleman, and an ardent and constant friend. He was a man of power. His faith in God was remarkably strong, which served him unflinchingly during the fiery ordeals through which he was called to pass. He did what he conceived to be the will of God heroically, never stopping to count the cost, or consider himself, or fear results. He endured as seeing the invisible. He had a deep religious experience, which was satisfying and abiding. As one of his personal friends, I remember him with brotherly love and great esteem, and delight to record this tribute so justly due him. But my friend and yours—for he was the friend of mankind—has gone to join the redeemed hosts; and as we say farewell to him and others of our friends who have so recently passed over the cold river of death, we rejoice in the doctrines of the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body which inspire the glorious hope of a happy reunion in our Father's house not made with hands.

—R. C. Armstrong.

JAMES WILLIAM DOWNS, son of E. R. Downs and wife, was born June 30, 1868, in Panola County, Texas, and died in Mineral Wells, Texas, March 29, 1914, being forty-five years and eight months of age. He was reared in a Christian home, attended the public schools, then the Summer Hill Select School of Smith County, and later Southwestern University. In early youth he was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. From the beginning of his Christian experience he heard the call to preach, but delayed answering this call until 1892, when he was licensed by the Quarterly Conference of Edom Circuit, at the Ashburn Camp Ground, August 13—Rev. T. P. Smith, presiding elder, and Rev. S. N. Alden, pastor in charge. Brother Downs was admitted on trial in the East Texas Conference at Nacogdoches, the following December, and was appointed to the De Berry Circuit by Bishop Hargrove. The next year he served the Kilgore Circuit, and was received into full connection at Jacksonville in December, 1894; he was ordained deacon by Bishop Hargrove at the same Conference. From this Conference he was sent to Longview Station, where he served two years. He was ordained elder by Bishop Hendrix at Marshall, December 20, 1896, and was sent to Timpson Station, where he served three years. His next charge was Pittsburg Station, where he served three years. In 1903 he was presiding elder on Pittsburg District, and in 1904-6 presiding elder on Marshall District. His next appointment was Crockett Station, where he served one year. On account of failing health he was transferred to the Northwest Texas Conference, and sent to Mineral Wells, where he served four years. When the Northwest Texas Conference divided, he remained in the Central Texas Conference. From Mineral Wells he went to Polytechnic; the following year he was sent to Ennis, where he finished his itinerant life after twenty years and a half of efficient service. His brethren recognized his ability and faithfulness and called him to many places of honor and responsibility. He was secretary of his Conference from 1899 to 1907; was elected on the first ballot to the General Conference held in Birmingham, Ala., in 1906. For many years he was President of the Board of Trustees of Alexander Collegiate Institute, and Curator of Southwestern University. As a man Brother Downs came from good stock, inheriting noble qualities, which were developed under the influence of a godly father and mother. Converted in early life, the wonderful power of Christ commenced its marvelous work of molding, shaping, and directing, and through the years brought him into the likeness of "Him who is the chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely." Brother Downs, as I knew him, was a Christ-like man, a man with the mind and spirit of the Master. Measured by any true standard, Brother Downs ranked high as a preacher; out of a deep conscious religious experience of the saving and keeping power of Jesus Christ, and the full assurance that God had called and sent him forth with full authority to proclaim the good news of salvation, he preached with such simplicity and power that sinners were converted, saints comforted and strengthened, and the work of the kingdom established. Brother Downs was happily married to Miss Mollie Gray, daughter of Dr. A. J. Gray, before he began to preach. She was ever a most capable and efficient helpmeet to him in his life work. To them were born three sons, Ernest, Otis, and Curtis, and one daughter, little Mary. The members of this Conference join Sister Downs and her children in this sore bereavement and pledge them our love and assistance while they continue the journey of life without him who was so much to them and us, knowing that we shall meet our loved, our own, some sweet day, a day that shall be cloudless and unending.

NEAL W. TURNER.—Startling and awful was the news that flashed over the wires that Neal W. Turner was drowned. He lost his life in endeavoring to save his son and another boy, who were also drowned. The triple tragedy occurred in a lake near Corsicana, August 22, 1914. Neal W. Turner, son of Rev. and Mrs. S. W. Turner, was born in the Methodist parsonage at Henderson, Texas, February 18, 1879. He received his education in the public schools, supplemented with a two years' college course in Polytechnic and Weatherford Colleges. In November, 1900, when a young man engaged in business at Cisco, he was happily married to Miss Ellen Eddleman. Of this union two children were born, Herman and Edith Wilson. The daughter lives to mourn with her broken-hearted mother the untimely death of a devoted husband and father. Brother Turner was converted in childhood, and when about twelve years of age ratified the Church vows. He was licensed to preach by the Brownwood District Conference—W. H. Matthews, presiding elder—in 1904, and joined the Northwest Texas Conference in November, 1905. He was ordained deacon in 1905, and elder at Waco in 1908. His first appointment was Gatesville Mission, which he supplied in 1905 under his father, the presiding elder of the Gatesville District. As a member of the Conference, he served the following charges: Evant Mission, 1905-6; Valley Mills, 1906-8; Clifton, 1909; Meridian, 1910-11; Eleventh Avenue, Corsicana, 1912-14. In every one of these pastoral charges his name is a household word with the fragrance of pure spikenard; and being dead, he still lives in the hearts and lives of the people. Neal W. Turner was a prince among men. Nature had generously endowed him with rare gifts. Physically he was every inch a man—athletic, handsome, and possessed of a winning personality. His intellect was of a high order and finely poised. In breadth and sweep of soul he was God's nobleman. There was nothing little in his entire make-up. To associate with him was to feel the kinship of a real man and catch the inspiration of a noble life. This man among men was a Christian with a religious experience. He was converted when a boy twelve years of age, and lived and died in the Church. His religion was personal as well as professional, something to be enjoyed as well as preached. His heart was enriched by the grace of God, and his life was beautifully consistent. The writer has toiled with him by day and taken sweet counsel with him in "the wee sma' hours of the night"; but never in the most abandoned moment did he hear him utter a sentiment that could not with propriety have been spoken in the presence of a refined, pure woman, nor witness a deed that would not stand the test of the Judgment. "An Israelite, indeed, in whom is no guile." The Methodist faith that was in his itinerant parents was also in their son Neal. In recent issues of the Texas Christian Advocate and the Christian Advocate appeared an article from his pen defending preachers' children. Being himself the son of a preacher, his own life was a living epistle known and read of men as the unanswerable argument. Like his father, he knew the gospel and gloried in its proclamation. How he could preach—instructive, edifying, and at times sublimely eloquent! He was easily the peer of any young preacher in Texas, and one of Southern Methodism's coming men. In his death the Central Texas Conference has lost one of its brightest jewels. Brother Turner was no less a faithful pastor than an able preacher. He took an intelligent and sympathetic interest not only in his pastoral charge, but also in every member of the Church. Like the Great Shepherd, he knew his sheep by name. His hand was on every department of the Church, and under his wise and progressive leadership new methods and plans of work were constantly being introduced and the whole line of membership kept advancing. In his eyes the very drudgery of Church work was noble, and every task for Christ was an easy yoke and a burden light. Brother Turner's conception of the ministry was to serve. Like his Lord, he lost his life in order to save others. At the end of his first year as pastor of Eleventh Avenue Methodist Church, his presiding elder suggested that there might be a demand for him in a larger field. He said he preferred to be returned, although another appointment might pay more money, giving as his reason that he loved his people and they loved him, and he believed he could do them good. While not indifferent to money, as it meant a better support for his family and more books, with him it was not a question so much of salary as of doing good. He indulged in no talk about "promotions" and the opening of "leading appointments." He was a Methodist preacher who always gave the ring of the true metal. It is not strange, therefore, that he was generally beloved and that churches everywhere prospered under his administration. This servant of the Church was effective in his ministry and excelled in any task to which he laid his hand. He was a good preacher, a ready writer, a fine secretary, an accurate accountant, and always dependable and ready and willing to do what needed to be done. Neal Turner was a hard student. He read the latest and best books and kept abreast of current literature and daily events. His ambition was to be thoroughly furnished as an able minister of the gospel. In the possession of the writer is an unanswered letter of recent date in which this young Timothy asks advice about going to Atlanta and taking a course in our new School of Theology. His promotion day has already come; he has graduated on high.—John R. Nelson.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and in every case the answer was, "Nothing against him."

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? A. T. Bell A. G. Gantt, J. D. Gibson, J. A. Marr, Harold Turner, and I. F. Cotton and R. H. Hasty, preachers on trial. (7.)

HAROLD TURNER, son of William and Elizabeth Turner, was born November 8, 1869, in Manchester, England; moved in early childhood with his parents to London; spent his youth in that great metropolis, where in his seventeenth year he was soundly converted to God and united with the Wesleyan Methodist Church. In March, 1889, he came with the family to America, and located in Asheville, N. C.; joined the Central Methodist Church and as a young layman became active in various departments of Church work. In September, 1892, he entered the freshman class in Trinity College. He was a diligent and apt student, and while carrying on his college work he also served in the capacity of secretary to the President, and graduated with credit in the class of 1897. The same year, heeding the call of the Spirit, he was licensed to preach by the Asheville District Conference, and was admitted on trial into the Western North Carolina Conference at Asheville in November. Then for seventeen years he faithfully served the Church in the following charges: Hot Springs, 1898-1900; Burkhead, Winston, 1901-04; Spring Garden, Greensboro, 1905-06; Brevard Street, Charlotte, 1907-08; Broad Street, Statesville, 1909-12; Central, Concord, 1913-14. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Key in 1899, and elder by Bishop Hargrove in 1901. On March 1, 1901, at Hot Springs, he was happily married to Mrs. Margaret Johnston Shaw, who was in every respect a most worthy and affectionate helpmeet, sharing with him the heavy responsibilities of his work and inspiring him by her constant and sympathetic coöperation. On Sunday morning, October 11, 1914, while preaching to his people on the blessed privileges of the saints of God, he was stricken with paralysis and then removed to the parsonage, where, on the following day, his pure spirit left the mortal body and winged its flight to the "City which hath foundations." This was the glorious ending of a beautiful life, for literally he died in the harness, as he wished to do, going direct from active service to eternal reward. This brief sketch covers the most prominent points in his career, but conveys a very faint idea of the character which belonged to this saintly man. He was a high-minded, noble-spirited, pure-hearted, God-fearing man.

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mixed in him that Nature might stand up And say to all the world, This was a

A son of consecrated parents, nurtured in the lap of piety, trained to be reverent and devout, his heart opened early to the influences of grace, and he dedicated his young life fully to the Master. He never gave anxious care or worry to his parents. He never sowed wild oats, but rather busied himself in good works, and when he reached young manhood he was anchored strong in the faith and prepared to withstand the allurements of the world. His college record was good, his work thorough, his influence uplifting; he commanded the respect of his fellows, he made them his friends, and held them constant through all the later years. His home life was beautiful, for love ruled, and there was happiness. He was always so gentle, so thoughtful, so considerate of the comfort and pleasure of the good wife and the other members of the household. When he came to his life work he was splendidly equipped in body, mind, and spirit for his holy calling; and from the day of his enlistment to the very hour he laid down his armor, he was active and diligent in the service of the King. He was a good preacher, thoroughly versed in Scripture, with a rich experience of the truth in his own heart. With a mind well furnished, he was also a hard student and a constantly growing preacher. When he came to the pulpit, his subject-matter was well prepared and his thought was saturated with prayer. He used beaten oil, and his messages were evangelical. God signally honored his ministry in building up the saints and saving the lost. Every church he served was blessed with gracious ingatherings, and he was so successful in revival work that he was in demand as a helper in meetings all over the Conference. It would be difficult, therefore, to estimate the vast number led to the Saviour through his ministry. He not only rendered highly acceptable service in the pulpit, but he was a painstaking, conscientious pastor, who went among his people, knew them by name, knew their condition and brought comfort and sympathy to them in their troubles, and was welcomed equally in the homes of the humble poor and the well-to-do. Wherever he labored the Church grew and prospered, but the visible results of his work in Statesville seem to stand out in bolder relief, for during his pastorate there not only was the splendid new church completed and the handsome parsonage built, but the membership was largely increased, so that at the end of his quadrennium he left it one of the largest and most influential charges in the Conference, and he was loved by all classes and creeds. Ever since the Children's Home was organized he has been on the Board of Trust, and for several years also a Trustee of Davenport College, being on the Executive Committee of both these institutions. For many years, too, he has been Assistant Secretary of the Conference, and rendered highly efficient service in that capacity. He possessed a magnetic nature, which drew the people to him. All who knew him admired him, and as they came to know him better, loved him. He was my friend, constant and true, for many years. I knew him intimately as few men knew him, and the closest inspection revealed more and more of purity and true worth, hidden away deep down in his nature. I loved him as a brother and trusted him completely as a friend, and that confidence was never misplaced. We journeyed along together as intimates for long years, but when he went away the other week our roads parted for a season; but we shall meet again some time, somewhere, never to sever. On Wednesday afternoon, October 14, in Central Church, Asheville, from which he began his ministerial life, the funeral was conducted by Dr. J. C. Rowe, Dr. D. Atkins, Rev. J. B. Craven, Rev. E. M. Hoyle, and the writer. Despite the inclement weather, a large number of friends were present. At the conclusion of this service we proceeded to Riverside, and there the sacred dust of our sainted brother was tenderly laid to rest in the bosom of the great mountains which he loved, and the grave was covered with beautiful flowers expressive of the love of many friends.—William L. Sherrill.

ADOLPHUS TAYLOR BELL, son of John Gray and Dorothy Taylor Bell, was born in Manchester, England, March 3, 1854, and died at Hemp, N. C., March 15, 1914. Being left an orphan with a competency at eleven years of age, he was sent to school at Gainford, where he remained till he had pursued the classic course to completion. Then, according to English custom, he was apprenticed to learn a trade or occupation, the one chosen being the timber-merchant business. Although his inclination was toward a profession, rather than a commercial life, with characteristic tenacity he served the allotted time of apprenticeship. At the age of twenty-one the timber dealer changed his occupation for that of teacher of mathematics and languages in a "gentleman's private school," of which he later became headmaster. He continued in this work until December, 1886, at which time, having previously contracted a lung affection, he was compelled to give up his position and move in search of health. Meanwhile Adolphus T. Bell and Elizabeth Berkley had become man and wife. With this marriage, in 1873, a family life closely approaching the ideal was begun. Suited by disposition to be the companion and complement each to the other, the two journeyed side by side through joy and sorrow till the husband finished his earthly course. Before coming to America, Brother Bell had united with the Church of England, being identified with the more evangelical section, which had been largely affected by Methodism. Consciously and soundly converted at maturity, after having been reared in a religious atmosphere, he at once entered actively into religious work, giving his time largely to sacred music, Sunday school teaching, and temperance lecturing. Music was from early life a passion with him and it never lost its charm. He loved to organize and train choirs, bands, and orchestras, and for several years he had charge of the choir and pipe organ in All Saints' Church, Sunderland. During the last year of his life he taught violin lessons and trained a large band at the place in which he lived. It was in September, 1891, that Brother Bell left his mother country and crossed the Atlantic in search of health. He settled in the pine hills of Mississippi, hoping that open air and the aroma of the pine would bring his strength back again. In this he was not disappointed, for in 1892, less than two years after having come to America, he was able to go to Natchez and join the Mississippi Conference. Fortunately he had settled near the Methodist parsonage, and a friendship between him and the circuit pastor had begun to grow up immediately. For a man of his religious experience, it was easy to find in the Methodist Church a congenial Christian home and in the ministry of that Church a proper field of labor. He served the following charges in the Western North Carolina Conference: 1892, Waynesville Circuit; 1893-4, Marion Circuit; 1895-6, Daleville Circuit; 1897, Waynesboro Station; 1898-1900, Shubuta; 1901-02, Murphy; 1903-04, Haywood Street, Asheville; 1905-07, Centenary, Greensboro; 1908-09, Leaksville; 1910, Calvary, Charlotte; 1911, Wilkesboro; 1912, Uwharrie Circuit. Appointed to Uwharrie in the fall of 1912, he served it with great acceptability and efficiency until during the middle of the summer he suffered such great impairment in health that it became necessary for him to turn over the greater part of the work to his son. However, he remained in charge of the circuit until the Conference of 1913, which granted him the superannuate relation. Brother Bell was a kind, careful, and sympathetic pastor. He was a strong, interesting, systematic preacher. His deep and clear Christian experience, as well as his firm grasp on Christian doctrine, gave a definite content to his preaching, and his gift of utterance enabled him to convey that content to the minds of his congregation. He loved to dwell upon the great themes of the gospel, such as repentance, faith, the Fatherhood of God, the saving power of Christ, and the presence of the Holy Spirit. While his preaching was profound, it was so clear in language and statement that all enjoyed it and profited by it, not only the educated, but the ignorant as well. Especially did he enjoy revival preaching. He usually held his own meetings, and invariably received sheaves for his hire in his revivals. All who knew Brother Bell recognized in him the highest type of Christian gentleman. In the days of his prime he was gentle and considerate, kindly and genial, warm-hearted and tactful, loved by old and young. When his strength failed him, the serenity of his soul was unruffled and his confidence in God sure. He enjoyed to the last day of life the greatest of all blessings—the love of God shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Spirit. The presence of this godly man among us was a continual blessing. Now that he has gone away, we miss his pleasant face and cheerful greeting. His memory lingers as a benediction. We have no doubt as to his destination, and hope by the grace of God to meet him.—G. T. Rowe.

ALBERT GAMEWELL GANTT, son of Tyre and Rhoda Gantt, was born June 27, 1843; died at Fort Worth, Texas, from injuries received while riding in an automobile, which came in contact with a passing street car, on February 22, 1914. He joined the Church in his youth, his parents being Methodists before him. At the age of eighteen years he entered the Confederate Army, and served throughout the entire war without being wounded or imprisoned. He was sergeant in the Fifty-fifth North Carolina Regiment in Hood's Brigade. After the war he entered Rutherford College, from which he graduated. He joined the South Carolina Conference at Cheraw, 1869. Married Miss Emma Catherine Browning, of Summerville, S. C. He came to the North Carolina Conference in the change of Conference lines, remaining with the North Carolina Conference until the formation of the Western North Carolina Conference in 1890. For lack of information we cannot give the charges he served either in the South Carolina or North Carolina Conferences. In the Western North Carolina Conference he served the following charges: 1891, Cherryville Circuit; 1892, Henrietta; 1893, Shelby Circuit; 1894, North Cove; 1895-6, Table Rock; 1897, Watauga; 1898-9, Cherryville; 1900, Silver Creek; 1901, supernumerary, and later superannuated, in which relation he died.—H. G. Stamey.

JAMES DAVID GIBSON, son of Odam and Caroline Gibson, was born in McDowell County, N. C., April 29, 1848; died of pneumonia at Central Falls, Randolph County, N. C., February 6, 1914. At an early age he gave his heart to God and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. At the close of the War Between the States he and his brother, Rev. T. F. Gibson, of the South Carolina Conference, entered into a solemn compact to get an education. This meant hard work almost day and night and the practice of the strictest economy; and the lessons he learned in these early years of his life fitted Brother Gibson for the rigid work of the afterwards successful and efficient Methodist "circuit rider." It was work by day and study and read by pine torch at night. Brother Gibson was licensed to preach in Weaverville Circuit in June, 1884; and after teaching school for several years, he joined the Conference at Winston in 1892. He never flinched from hard tasks nor swerved from the path of right. He knew, loved, lived, and preached the great doctrines of the Bible, and especially those taught and understood as Methodist, exemplifying and teaching the fundamental principles of Bible truth. He was a Methodist through and through—loved her altars and read her literature. The people, old and young, felt comfortable in his presence. He loved men, and the people loved him. This man felt the dignity of the call to preach the gospel of the Son of God, and through his life and his preaching he led many into the light of the cross of Christ. He never wore the glitter of some, but down deep in his human heart there was a likeness of the blessed Lord. He was a preacher of more than ordinary ability—not eloquent, but sound in argument; and under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit sinners have often been heard to cry for mercy, as God would show them the awfulness of their own lives, while Brother Gibson would describe and picture the Broad Way that leads to despair, and the Strait Gate and narrow way that lead to the Father's house. He always gladly and joyously went to the work of telling men of a Christ to save. He had great faith in his Lord's finally bringing all men "to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus." When the appointments were read at the Winston Conference in 1892, he was sent to the North Cove Circuit, in McDowell County; and these are the works he traveled as pastor: North Cove Circuit, 1893; McDowell Circuit, 1894-6; Bald Creek Circuit, 1897-1900; Saluda Circuit, 1901-2; Cane Creek Circuit, 1903-4; Green River, 1905-8; Rural Hall, 1909; Mount Airy Circuit, 1910-11; Yadkinville, 1912; Deep River, 1913-14, where he died February 6. After preaching for ten years, he found in Henderson County, Miss Maude Justus, whose heart and hand he won. They were married by this writer on November 12, 1902. To this union were born five children, four of whom are still waiting on this side of the river. A day or two before the end came he called his wife and children to the bedside and told them that he could stay with them but a short while longer, and his wife asked him if he was ready for the change; he looked up into her eyes and asked her what she meant, saying: "Of course I am ready. It would be a poor out if a preacher were not ready to die." He then began to sing, "I'll soon be at home over there"; when that was finished, he sang, "I'm going home to die no more"; at its close he said, "Good-by," and went away to wait and live with Jesus.—J. W. Kennedy.

JOHN ATKINS MARR was born December 2, 1878; died June 26, 1914. He professed faith in Christ and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in early life. He was educated in the common schools of Swain County, and later attended the State School at Cullowhee, N. C. He engaged in teaching for a number of years. In this he showed marked ability, and his work was quite successful. In 1907 he was married to Miss Parcie White. He is survived by a wife and four children. While eminently successful in teaching, there was a moving in his soul—a call to something higher. After having long and seriously pondered the matter, he ventured to state his convictions to his pastor. He was licensed to preach and admitted on trial in 1910. From the Conference in Statesville he was appointed to the Hayesville Circuit. He went to the charge to learn both to preach and to be a pastor. It was soon evident that he was not mistaken in his calling. The people were encouraged with his beginning; but his health was poor, and the first year, therefore, was much of a struggle. At the Conference in High Point in 1912 he was appointed to Fines Creek Circuit. It was here that he began to show his real talent. I have seldom seen a people more fond of a preacher than those people were of Brother Marr. At the Conference in Charlotte in 1913 he was received into full connection and reappointed to Fines Creek Circuit, where the people had unanimously requested his return; and it was here that he was to surrender his beloved employ. Brother Marr was never well after he entered the Conference. Could he have enjoyed health, he gave promise of a bright future. Evidently he would have reached the front rank in the Conference in a few years. He had as nearly all the qualities of a successful pastor as any young man I have known. He was plain, unpretentious, and agreeable in the social circle. Kind and courteous in manner, entirely without conceit or egotism, he won and held the esteem of all who knew him. Brother Marr had rare gifts as a speaker. Relying on what I have heard from those who are competent to judge, I can say his endowment must have been of the first order. He desired to live and preach the gospel. In the last letter he wrote me, he expressed a desire to live and preach. He suffered much, but he was patiently and calmly submissive. He met the last enemy in full triumph of Christian faith. On the last day he sent for his pastor, Brother Rhinehart, and requested that he remain with him, for he said, "I am going to die to-day." On June 28, in the presence of a large congregation, we laid his remains to rest at Maple Springs Church. I loved Brother Marr. I rejoiced at his prospects in the ministry. I felt a distinct loss in his death.—L. T. Cordell.

ISAAC F. COTTON, eldest son of John W. and S. J. Cotton, was born in Montgomery County, N. C., February 20, 1889; died at Grace Hospital, Morganton, N. C., August 5, 1914. He was converted at the age of ten years and joined the Methodist Church, on the Gold Hill Circuit, under the ministry of J. H. Bradley. In early boyhood he felt called to preach, and at the Salisbury District Conference in 1910 he was granted license, and did faithful service as a local preacher until 1913, when he was sent as supply to Micaville Circuit. He was admitted on trial at the Conference held in Charlotte in 1913, and was sent to Burnsville Station. He entered upon the work with great enthusiasm, and was faithfully discharging all the duties of the pastorate, when on July 23 he was stricken down by typhoid fever. He made an heroic fight for his life, aided by skillful physicians and capable nurses; but in less than two weeks his pure, gentle spirit took its flight to be with his Lord and Saviour. He was very ambitious for an education, but being of limited means, the way seemed very dark; but in the good providence of God and through the generous kindness of Rev. D. Atkins, he was enabled to enter New London High School, where he remained for one year. He later entered Rutherford College, where he spent three years, completing the course in the spring of 1913. While at Rutherford he was manager of the boys' dormitory. By his exemplary life and zeal for the cause of Christ he exerted a very fine influence among the student body, and no young man was more highly esteemed by both faculty and students than he. He was not a brilliant man, but possessed a good mind, and with his studious habits had acquired a good working education. Had he lived, he would have achieved large success in the ministry. Although he was cut down in the very flower of his young manhood, he left a fine impress upon many others who will profit by his example, and his influence for good will abide. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. R. Ware, presiding elder of the Salisbury District, assisted by Rev. J. H. Brendall, in the Methodist church at Richfield; and his body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Richfield, to await the resurrection of the just.—H. H. Jordan.

ROGER HUNTER HASTY, son of D. W. Hasty, of Scotland County, N. C., was born May 6, 1885, and passed to the heavenly home October 18, 1914. Brother Hasty was converted in childhood and joined the Methodist Church at Caledonia. He early applied himself to study, and after attending the preparatory schools, spent two years in Trinity College, after which he taught school for several years. At the Rockingham District Conference at Biscoe, N. C., in May, 1911, he was licensed to preach and recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial, and was admitted at the session of the North Carolina Conference at Kinston, N. C., in November, 1911, and appointed to Kennekeet Circuit. He went to this charge gladly and served faithfully until the spring of 1912, when his health began to fail, and he gave up his work to rest and recover. But not content to stay out of work which he loved, he began to cast about for another place to labor, and found an opening at Hot Springs, in the western part of the State, where he was sent to finish the year started by another. He served this charge faithfully until Conference, and in the fall was transferred to the Western North Carolina Conference and reappointed to the Hot Springs Circuit for 1914. In June of this year his health gave way, and he was carried to the hospital at Asheville, N. C., where everything possible was done, but to no avail. He grew steadily worse, and was brought to his father's home, where he died on October 18. The funeral was held at Caledonia Church, conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. V. McRea, pastor of the Methodist Church at Maxton. In the summer of 1911 he was happily married to Miss Elizabeth

Wall, of Dunbar, S. C., who, with one child, survives him. Brother Hasty was always cheerful, carrying sunshine on his face—brave and heroic in the discharge of his duty; but he has answered the roll call of the Great Conference above and taken his place among the faithful ministers who have passed on before him.—J. C. Humble.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Joseph A. Wright. 1.

JOSEPH A. WRIGHT was born in the year 1880 in the Indian Territory. He was married December 7, 1899. To this union two children were born. Only one of these lived to any considerable age. Brother Wright was licensed to preach in the year 1911 by the District Conference of the Choctaw-Chickasaw District, and the same year was admitted on trial in the East Oklahoma Annual Conference. He was received into full connection in 1913. He died March 19, 1914. He was a good man, and did good work for the Church. He is missed by the charge he served and by his own people. Although in the ministry but a short time, he was faithful to his charge here, and we are confident that he has entered into the rest that remaineth for the servants of God.—J. A. Kenney.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters passed, except C. H. McGhee and E. V. Dowell, who had withdrawn from the ministry and membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

WILLIAM PRESSLEY LOVEJOY was born in Meriwether County, Ga., September 26, 1845; was converted at eleven years of age. Home influences were the most potent factors leading to his conversion. His father, Rev. Anderson Lovejoy, was the local elder of our Church, of great devoutness and fervor, and was a highly and widely appreciated collaborer with our itinerant preachers of his day. He received his first education from the country and village schools of his native county. From the preparation thus obtained he entered Emory College, graduating in 1869. He was licensed to preach in the fall of 1866; was ordained deacon by Bishop Doggett in November, 1870, and elder by Bishop Pierce in November, 1873. He was admitted into the North Georgia Conference in 1871. He was appointed to the Oostanaula Circuit in 1873-4; Eaton-ton, 1875-6; Summerville Circuit, 1877-80; White Plains Circuit, 1881-2; agent for Emory College, 1883-6; presiding elder of Elberton District, 1887-9; Augusta District, 1891-2; Rome District, 1893-4; First Church, Athens, 1895-7; Athens District, 1898-1900; South Atlanta District, 1901-4; Marietta Station, 1905-6; Dalton District, 1907-10; La Grange District, 1911; Atlanta District, 1912-14. Guided by a short and modest sketch of his life, written by request several years ago, we give a few facts of his earlier ministry: "No marked revivals have attended my ministry. This has been a source of grief to me. At one time in my itinerant life this fact came near driving me back into the local ranks. I even went so far as to suggest to my presiding elder that I ought to locate, as I was a failure as an itinerant preacher. He and the other members of the cabinet thought otherwise, I suppose. At any rate, as far as I know, this question of locating me has never been raised in the cabinet or elsewhere. Still I have witnessed many clear conversions. When on the Summerville Circuit I was holding a protracted meeting at one of my churches. Sunday night, after preaching, I called for penitents. The altar was crowded. During the prayer that followed the sermon the Spirit descended, and in a moment ten or twelve souls were gloriously saved. I witnessed something of the same sort at Poplar Springs Camp Ground, in Franklin County, Ga. Rev. John R. Parker, of our Conference preached at eight o'clock in the morning and left. I was the only remaining preacher. At eleven o'clock, three, and night, I preached as best I could. The tide of interest which had been rising during the meeting reached the flood at the night service. There was no great demonstration. There were over thirty or forty penitents in the altar. I personally questioned each one before the last prayer; not one of them professed to be saved. After the prayer, during which there was no great excitement, I again talked to the penitents; the last one had been converted. The most remarkable work of grace I ever witnessed was at Elberton in 1886, during the pastorate of Rev. J. W. Roberts. A temporary booth had been constructed with a cotton platform for a floor to accommodate the crowds. For more than two weeks the Spirit was in the community, in stores and shops, everywhere, convicting men. At the tent they found peace. There was not much preaching; the work being quiet, but deep and effective. More than one hundred and fifty were added to the churches. How many were converted and reclaimed no one knows. What I am best fitted for, or what is the most marked feature of my itinerant life, if there is anything noticeable about me, or my work, except what is to be regretted, I am unable to say." This short, simple, unadorned record from his own pen, tells us quite plainly what, according to his estimate, was most worthy of preservation—his interest in the things above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God. Sinners turning to God from their evil ways and finding a new life in Christ Jesus our Lord and Saviour, held the supremacy over all other considerations by which he would have his life interpreted. His career was undulating, not long confined to any one point of studying the illustration of the divine power of our glorious gospel. He was circuit preacher, station preacher, presiding elder, college agent, college trustee, often our representative in the General Conference of our Church, trustee of our Conference organ, president of our Legal Conference, hardly any part of our militant harness that he did not wear, and every part seemed to fit him. His intellectual development was gradual. There were no leaps, no spasms. He grew so silently and quietly that we were surprised at his attainments, wondered how he had reached such heights, such telling efficiency of tongue and pen. He grew in his knowledge of our Church as a religious system until he could give us a book on that much-discussed subject. He was familiar with our missionary operations, our Sunday school work, our Epworth League plans and fruits, and our financial systems. Whatever organization was formed for the betterment of our Zion he was soon found belted to it. His last vision embraced, when through with his last appointment, a circuit of the globe as a student of our missionary fields, hoping to be able to leave us another and his last book on the triumphs of Christianity in the far-away stretches of heathendom; but the Master chose for him a higher point of vision than this globe can furnish, and wider stretches than can be found on all our continents. On last Wednesday our brother exchanged the comradeship of Bishops Wilson, Candler, and Denny, and his associate elders, and all who spoke so tenderly over his casket, and the large congregation whose tears mingled with ours, and the inner circle of friends who bore his body away to be placed by the grave of his devoted wife, for those higher and broader ranges,

"Where the saints of all ages in harmony meet,
Their Saviour and brethren transported to greet;
While the anthems of rapture unceasingly roll,
And the smile of the Lord is the feast of the soul."

—George W. Yarbrough.

JOHN BRADLEY ROBINS, son of T. S. and Sarah Robins, was born in Putnam County, Ga., September 23, 1851, and died in Elberton, Ga., November 23, 1913. Dr. Robins was reared and prepared for college in the county of his birth. His education was finished at Emory College, from which institution he was graduated in the class of 1872. After leaving college he was admitted to the bar, and practiced law in Eatonton until he entered the ministry. In 1874 he was married to Miss Macie Alford, of Putnam County. She was his first and only sweetheart. To them seven children were born, five of whom are now in life. Two preceded him to the grave; one died in infancy, and the other after he had grown to manhood. While he was pastor of the First Church, Atlanta, he had the great misfortune of losing his wife. She went away leaving him with the burden and responsibility of rearing their children. He never married again. While a student at Emory College he was converted. It is probable that at that time he felt his call to preach, but did not yield to the call, and as a consequence suffered for a time in his religious experience and life. In 1877, while he was busy in the practice of his profession and in the neglect of his religious duties, one of his children was taken very dangerously sick. This awakened him, and he turned to the Lord for help. He went out in the night under the stars to wrestle with the Lord. As he called on him he made a full and complete surrender. He told the Lord whether the child lived or did not live would make no difference with him as to his duty to preach. He was ready to take up his cross. God heard his prayer, accepted him, and his child lived. The sacrifice laid upon the altar that night was never taken off until God called him home while he was in the pulpit preaching the gospel of his Son. There were times when he was severely tried. His first circuit paid him a very meager support for himself and family, but he was happy and hopeful. Then there came a time when he felt that his brethren did not understand him, and he was subjected to criticisms; these things deeply wounded his spirit. No doubt his own sensitive nature exaggerated these criticisms, and his sense of loneliness was more in his own feeling than anywhere else, and was not justified by the attitude of his brethren toward him. But however much he may have suffered, he had no idea of abandoning the work of the Christian ministry. He had enlisted for the war, and was ready "to endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." He was admitted to the North Georgia Conference at the session held in Gainesville in 1877. At that Conference he was appointed to Rutledge, and served that work during 1878. His subsequent charges were as follows: Cedar Valley, 1879; Athens Circuit, 1880; Cave Springs, 1881-3; Cartersville, 1884-5; Dalton, 1886-7; Elberton, 1888-9; Cedartown, 1890; Dalton District, 1891; Atlanta, First Church, 1892-5; Atlanta, Park Street, 1896-7; Athens District, 1898-1900; Griffin District, 1901-02; Augusta District, 1903-06; La Grange District, 1907; Rome, First Church, 1908; Harlem, 1909-10; Atlanta, Trinity, 1911-13. From the beginning of his ministry Dr. Robins was a diligent and successful pastor, and as a popular preacher all classes heard him gladly. In his first charges he was a true pastor-evangelist, and was blessed with revivals of power. This part of his ministry was remembered by him with peculiar pleasure. He went among the plain, common people, won their love, and won them for his Lord. Some of the most valued friends of his life he made in those days. Dr. Robins was a life-long student. He was a man of thought and of much reading. His stock of general information was unusually large. He was especially fond of philosophy, and we have few men among us who have done as much reading in that field of study as he had. He gathered together a large library of philosophical books, and mastered them. Dr. Robins was the author of two books. His first book was entitled "Christ and Our Country," written when he was stationed in Elberton, and was written for the purpose of counteracting a gloomy view of the times that had found expression in a book which was finding a very extensive sale, and was holding a large place in the thought of the hour. Dr. Robins felt that the view of the facts, taken by the author of the book, was not large enough to give a hopeful conclusion in regard to the future. He sounded a more hopeful note, one that was true to the gospel of Christ. His other book was entitled "The Family a Necessity of Civilization." In this work he sought to enforce the great need of a better family life. He recognized the great truth that the home was the foundation of our civilization. He also edited, as a work of love, a brief autobiography of Dr. Simon Peter Richardson. He was, besides, a frequent contributor to our Church periodicals. He was honored by the University of Georgia with the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Twice his own Conference elected him to membership in the General Conference. Dr. Robins was always an entertaining and instructive preacher. His treatment of a subject was never commonplace. He had the insight of a poet, and in this quality of mind somewhat resembled Phillips Brooks. In the discussion of a familiar text he would see its new and striking truths that would hold one's attention and provoke thought. His preaching pleased and inspired, comforted and consoled. The common people, as well as the most cultured, heard him gladly. As a pastor he was diligent. In his contact with his people he was thoughtful, sympathetic, and kind, and his people learned to love and to trust him. The door of his heart was wide open for them, and in times of trouble they came freely to their pastor and found in him sympathy and help. He was especially the friend of the children, and he had the rare gift of becoming a child with children, entering with interest into their pleasures, making them feel that he was one of them. He was a man of whom it may be said, "The poor and little children loved him." As a presiding elder no man ever sympathized more with his brethren. When he found cases of special need, he was ready to help. He gave assistance to the children in the families of the preachers on the hard works. These things were done without display, but in a true brotherly spirit that helped him without humiliating. As a friend Dr. Robins was constant. He clung to men when others turned away from them. Without condoning the wrongs, he loved them in spite of their fault and failures; he would suffer with them and try to help them. He was a man who loved his friends, and one to whom the love of friends was a necessity. His nature demanded the fellowship of kindred spirits. He could not be happy without some one to whom he could freely unbosom himself. In the intimacy of companionship of friends he would uncover the deep feeling of his nature. His going away has made some among us very lonely. Dr. Robins was blessed with a strong body; it enabled him to do a great amount of work, and to do it with comparative ease. He was a temperate man, taking good care of the strong body he had inherited. He and his friends expected he would live to be an old man; but the strongest have no certain hold on life. Two or three years ago his health began to fail, and when he came up to our last session at Elberton his friends saw he was far from being a well man. When he was appointed to preach on Sunday night, some, fearing he was not able to stand the strain, urged him not to undertake it; but he would not be persuaded. He was anxious to deliver the message he had; he thought he would be able to do it, but he was mistaken. Soon after he had begun speaking the hand of Death was laid upon him. He was carried from the pulpit, and the sermon begun was never finished. In a little while he knew, as he had never known before, that "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." He had known him and loved him here, and he found the same Lord over there.

"From pulpit to throne—it is well—
The messenger of his Lord,
Preaching the gospel of Jesus, fell
And went to his reward."

CHARLES E. DOWMAN, son of Charles and Winifred Nesh Dowman, was born at Footscray, Kent, England, August 28, 1849. When a child he came with his parents to America, and was brought up in Fulton County, Georgia. As a boy he evinced uncommon mental gifts, and was characterized by marked seriousness of purpose. His striking excellencies attracted the attention of Dr. Atticus G. Haygood, when the latter was the presiding elder of the Atlanta District, and through his influence and assistance the earnest lad was entered as a student in Emory College, where he graduated with the highest honors of his class in 1873. He was licensed to preach before entering college, and upon his graduation he was appointed City Missionary to Atlanta in connection with Trinity Church. He discharged this pastoral responsibility with great fidelity and success, and at the session of the North Georgia Conference held at Newnan in December, 1873, he was admitted on trial into the traveling connection. His first appointment after his admission on trial was as junior preacher to W. Watkins Hicks on the charge of St. John's Church and City Mission, in Augusta. The senior preacher left the charge in the course of the year, and young Dowman served with efficiency and success as preacher in charge of that grand old church until the session of the Conference held in Cartersville, December 2-7, 1874; at the close of which he was transferred to the Florida Conference and stationed at Quincy, where he served during the years 1875-7. During the year 1878 he served Live Oak and Madison. On February 28, 1878, he was married to Miss Julia Munroe, of Quincy, the noble woman who, as his devoted wife, contributed so much to his happiness and usefulness from the day of their marriage until the day of his death, May 16, 1914. In 1879-80 he served First Church, Jacksonville, Fla. During 1881 and until September, 1882, he was the presiding elder of the Tallahassee District. While serving on the Tallahassee District he was called to take charge of the sub-freshman department of Emory College, in which work he continued from September, 1882, until September, 1888, when he accepted a professorship in Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Ga. There he remained until December, 1890. When he entered upon his work at Emory College, in 1882, he was transferred to the North Georgia Conference, and continued a member of that body until December, 1890, when he was transferred to the South Georgia Conference and stationed at the Wesley Monumental Church in Savannah, where he served during the years 1891-3. He was the presiding elder of the Americus District in 1894, and of the Waycross District in 1895. During the years 1896-7, and until June, 1898, he served St. Luke's Church, Columbus, Ga. In June, 1898, he was elected President of Emory College, in which position he rendered most efficient service until July, 1902, when he resigned and was appointed presiding elder of the Atlanta District, having been previously transferred to the North Georgia Conference in 1903. He served as presiding elder of the Oxford District from 1907 through 1910. In 1911 he was the pastor of First Church, Gainesville. When the chair of theology was established at Emory College he was elected to fill it, and in this work he continued until his death. No Methodist preacher in Georgia, if we may not say in the whole Connection, rendered more various and valuable service in his day than did Charles E. Dowman. As pastor, presiding elder, college professor, and college president, he was equally efficient and always faithful. He did every sort of work well. He was a man of strong native intellect and excellent scholarship. With all his rare gifts, he was remarkably modest and utterly free from the spirit of self-seeking and self-serving. There was nothing about him akin to what men call "showiness." His conspicuous characteristics were solidity, strength, and reliability. Men knew they could depend upon him. He was at different times a member of three Annual Conferences, and it is a striking testimony to the confidence and esteem entertained for him by his brethren that he was elected by each of these three Conferences to represent them in the General Conference—the highest judicial and legislative body of his Church. He was loved and trusted by all who knew him, and well deserved the affection and trust accorded him. Charles E. Dowman, as a man, an educator, and a minister of the gospel, served well his generation by the will of God. He fulfilled an honorable career and passed to his heavenly reward in favor with God and men, leaving to the many thousands who loved him nothing to regret except that he is gone. The writer of this memoir knew him intimately for forty years, and testifies that he never knew Charles Dowman to utter a word or do an act that was inconsistent with the highest Christian character. In his greatness he was good, and in his goodness he was great. He was a man of a richly affectionate nature. His noble heart loved God and man. He loved the Church and gave it the invaluable service of a strong, consecrated man.

ISAAC S. HOPKINS.—A pleasurable emotion comes to me when I think of the character and life of Dr. Isaac Stiles Hopkins. The elements of mind and heart that are helpful to the world were so harmoniously blended in his life as to produce gratification and admiration whenever they were contemplated. Those elements were never on display or thrust ostentatiously before the world. In fact, excessive modesty, or reluctance in allowing his gifts to be placed prominently before men, was perhaps a fault in his admirable career. He had such a contempt for sham, ostentation, self-seeking, and all forms of selfishness as possibly to have caused him to keep his gifts in too strict retirement, and thus to deprive both Church and State of some of his best services. The old maxim, "The office should seek the man, and not the man the office," had its birth in the kingdom of true patriotism, and that was born in the kingdom of Christ. It is a noble maxim, and with its cognate sentiments it ought to be observed everywhere to-day, especially in the Church of God. Its strict observance was one of the virtues that crowned our friend Dr. Hopkins, though it no doubt caused our Church to fail in fully recognizing his merits and use them to the best advantage. Dr. Hopkins was born in Augusta, Ga., June 20, 1841, and died in Atlanta, February 3, 1914. His parents were Thomas and Rebecca (Lambert) Hopkins; and fortunately they appreciated the great worth of proper home training and educational equipment, and hence gave him the advantages of both. Being endowed with a fine native intellect, he had a good foundation for the developing influence of these educative agencies. He was graduated in Emory College in 1859, when he was about eighteen years of age, and with high standing in his class. His career while in college seems to have been an index to his whole career in life. While there, his deportment was that of a gentleman in every relation, and his studious habits brought him, so far, the educational equipment for which he and his parents were seeking. In after life he was more and more the polished Christian gentleman, and to the end he never ceased to be a close student in every line of useful information. After his graduation at Emory he was in the Medical College in Augusta until he received his degree there in 1861. At the close of that year he was admitted on trial in the old Georgia Conference. From that time, with the exception of one year, 1864, when he was a member of a company of scouts in the Confederate service, he was engaged in the pastoral work until 1869, being then called to a professorship in Emory College. He continued there as pastor and president (with an interval of two years in the Southern University, Ala.) until 1887. He was President of Emory from 1883 to 1887. While engaged there he was impressed with the necessity for a branch in the college for the technical training of some students, and hence began a tentative work in that line. From that enterprise came the conception and organization of the Georgia School of Technology, now in operation in Atlanta, in the inauguration of which Dr. Hopkins was the chief agent. He devoted a year to details in establishing that school, and in 1888 he was elected its first president. He held that office for eight years, during which time the school made rapid progress, gained wide reputation, and gave impetus to the inauguration of like enterprises at other schools in the South. He received his degrees A.B., A.M., and Ph.D. from Emory College, that of M.D. in 1861 from the Medical College of Georgia, and the degree of D.D. from Central College, Mo. Accompanying and following his college work Dr. Hopkins was often engaged in lecturing for educational assemblies and in writing magazine articles on philosophy and literary subjects, in all of which he was a wise instructor. When he retired from college life he was engaged from 1896 until 1908 in pastoral duties in the largest churches in Atlanta, Ga., St. Louis, Mo., Chattanooga, Tenn., Athens, Ga., and La Grange, Ga. At the latter place his health failed, and he was compelled to retire from active service. Dr. Hopkins was gifted by nature with a handsome physical person, and to this was added an open, attractive, and manly face that beamed with those richer elements that came alone from the heart within. His face was elegant with culture of a high order, and blended with that was the refinement of kindness, gentleness, and a love for all men that invited the young and the old to him when they needed help. The children of his pastorates and the college students under his tuition felt free to go to him at any time for counsel, and the older ones turned to him readily in times of perplexity and trouble. And in all this his duties were performed so quietly and so entirely without display as to attract too little notice of the nature and magnitude of his services. For thirty years or more, in every conversation I had with Dr. Hopkins, as well as in every sermon or address I heard from him, I was more or less impressed with the broad range and accuracy of his learning. I have known men of greater pretensions and some who were perhaps better posted in one branch of knowledge, but I have never known one who had read more extensively, thought more profoundly, and held his information at more ready command. In all of this he was no smatterer. He was well versed in every branch of mathematics, in many of the foreign languages, in all departments of English literature, in the best authorities on science and philosophy, and in well-nigh every field of popular and higher education. It has been a wonder to me that one head could contain so much, and could make such ready use of the gathered store of best information. As a theologian Dr. Hopkins had two traits that were essential to success and were prominent in all his life. One was the desire to know the real meaning of God's word, and the other was the ability to present truth in the simplest and most forceful manner. In the first he had the advantage of a penetrating mind, which gave him a correct insight into the word and enabled him to harmonize and array truths in the natural order and most logical connection and application. Human life, embodied in the great mass of people who have lived, now live, and will live hereafter, is rather a complex machine, and it is not always an easy task to apply vital truths to individuals and social conditions in the simplest and most effective way. The word of God is plain and simple to those who open their minds and hearts to its leadings; and yet, where there are so many natural proclivities and surrounding influences, it is often a delicate work so to present it as to reach the worldly mind and conscience. Our friend and brother was peculiarly gifted in performing that task, and there are many witnesses ready to testify to the truth of this statement. Having this insight into the truths of God's word and their logical connection and application, Dr. Hopkins sought the best vehicle for conveying them to the minds of others. To this end, he made himself master of the English language and its proper use. And without doubt, in the apt choice of words and in combining them into sentences for the best expression of ideas, he was a master. He seemed to have an intuitive discrimination in selecting the language that was eminently expressive, that made him an elegant, eloquent, and impressive speaker, and enabled him always to command attention. One may often hear more fervid and impassioned orators, but has heard few, if any, who reached the heads and hearts of the people with greater effect and profit than did this gifted man. Add to all this the fact that our dear brother had a profound reverence for God in all his attributes, and a fervid desire to serve him and the world of humanity in every possible way, and you have a man of the highest ideals and rare equipment for working out those ideals. His warm heart and generous emotions kept him in close touch and sympathy with a suffering and struggling people, and called out the best of his life in their behalf. In both head and heart he was eminently qualified, an ideal man, for the episcopal office in our Church, and I often expressed myself by word and ballot in his behalf toward that office. Wherever he was called to work he proved himself a master workman, one "that needed not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." His seven children, whom he loved dearly, honor and revere his memory and have a rich inheritance in the godly life he has left them; and there are thousands of others, whose lives he has broadened and brightened, that remember him gladly, and in the "great beyond" will contribute laurels for the beauty and honor of the "crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give him in that day." He was admitted on trial into the Georgia Conference, December, 1861. In 1862-3, junior preacher of Columbia and Colored Mission; 1864, preacher in charge of Richmond and Colored; 1865, junior preacher of St. James, Augusta, Ga.; 1866, junior preacher of Asbury and Harrisburg Mission; 1867, preacher in charge of Harrisburg Mission; 1868, preacher in charge of Waynesboro, South Georgia Conference; 1869-75, professor in Emory College; 1875-7, professor in Southern University, Ala.; 1878-83, professor in Emory College; 1887-96, professor in the Georgia School of Technology; 1896-7, preacher in charge of First Church, Atlanta. In November, 1898, he located at his own request; September, 1898, he was readmitted in the St. Louis Conference and served during 1899-1901; 1902, preacher in charge of Centenary Church, Chattanooga; 1903-06, preacher in charge of First Church, Athens, Ga.; 1907-08, preacher in charge of First Church, La Grange, Ga. During the year 1908 his health failed, and he was granted a superannuate relation, which relation was continued to the close of his life—W. F. Glenn.

EDWARD C. MARKS was born in Owensboro, Ky., March 2, 1839; licensed to preach October 4, 1884; admitted on trial in the Tennessee Conference October, 1885; ordained deacon by Bishop Wilson, October, 1887; and elder by Bishop Keener, October, 1889. On account of the health of his wife, he transferred to the North Georgia Conference, 1890, and from that date to his superannuation at his own request in 1911, was a faithful worker in our ranks. He died after a short illness, January 12, 1914, in the city of Atlanta, Ga., and was buried by the writer, assisted by Revs. W. H. Cooper, G. W. Barrett, E. A. Ware, A. J. Hughes, and C. C. Cary, in West View Cemetery, January 13, 1914. His faithful wife, formerly Miss Mary Rumble, of Monroe County, Ga., and Mrs. Hattie Towls, a daughter of a former marriage, are left behind to mourn his going. Mr. Marks's life was divided between the practice of medicine and the Methodist ministry. For twenty-two years he was a practicing physician, building up a large practice and making for himself a reputation. He was a surgeon in the Civil War, serving during the entire struggle. After the war he became chief surgeon in the Tennessee penitentiary, which position he resigned when his brother was elected Governor of the State, thinking it "not seemly to hold office in a State institution while his brother was Governor." Such sentiment sounds strange to-day—but it is a true index of his character. Several letters are before me, written after his resignation as surgeon of the penitentiary by prisoners or their friends, testifying to his great service to them. One quotation will suffice: "I owe my poor life to your Christian spirit. If you had not interceded for me, I now would fill a convict grave. You, dear sir, will I always regard as my savior. I have never violated the faith and confidence you gave me by power of your office as prison physician." Others might be telling of his interest and efforts that led to their salvation. It was the joy of leading others to the

Saviour that he experienced as prison physician which led him, though late in life, to give up his practice and devote himself entirely to the ministry; and for twenty years he gave himself and all that he possessed to preaching a Saviour's love and power. Had he entered the ministry in early life, he might easily have reached the highest place among us, for his mental equipment was equal to the task, and his consecration was entire. Dr. Marks was a gentleman by nature, a Christian by regeneration, and a saint by grace. He was a peculiar man in the strength of his character, in the strength of mind, body, and simple faith. There was much of the martyr in his make-up; humble concerning his attainments, he was bold in his convictions. He believed something, knew why he believed it, and was ready to stand by it or fall with it. He sought neither place, power, nor money, being satisfied to labor in what men call small places; and though he left a large practice, no one ever heard him complain of the salary he received, or boast of the sacrifice he made to enter the ministry. He was simple in his taste and direct in his manner. He was born one or, maybe, two generations too late to be what we call to-day a popular preacher. He was the type of the pioneer Georgia Methodist ministry, and in that day would have been an eminently successful minister and popular preacher. He would have made a worthy companion of Uncle Allen Turner and men of that type. He called a spade a spade, reproved sin, and exhorted all to nobler living. In eight years' intimate association with him in the work of his pastorate, I never knew him to dodge an issue or fail to stand where duty called or the Church put him. Modern moral contortions had no charm for him, as the gospel met all the deepest needs of his nature. Dr. Marks was not a narrow sectarian, nor did he seek controversy; but woe to the man or institution that provoked him to unsheath his sword in defense of Methodist doctrine or polity. With a power of analysis and clear statement highly developed, he could uncover fallacy, expose error, and state truth so clearly that it would not be misunderstood. In preaching or conversation he had no attraction for a fool, but sensible people were drawn to him. He always left thoughtful truth-seekers stronger than he found them, but he had no pearls for swine. Probably the most distinguished characteristic of Dr. Marks was his hold upon child life. Children loved him and flocked around him. They were drawn by the childlike simplicity of the man, and held by the unconscious magnetism of a saintly life. His face invited confidence, and the man behind the face never failed to fulfill the expectations and impressions of his saintly face. After superannuation Dr. Marks bought a few acres of land near Acworth, and here he and his wife and faithful horse settled after they had borne well the heat and burden of life's itinerancy. It was an unpretentious home, but it was home. Here he entered upon the superannuate life with the glee of childhood. What a picture for a painter's brush—the old man, bearing the scars of a well-fought battle, sweetened by age, cheered by the companionship of his wife, in the day-time toiling in his little patch to supplement the slender allowance of a superannuate preacher, tending his cow, feeding his chickens, talking to the horse as if she were human, visiting his neighbors, making joyful the hearts of the children of the town by rides behind Maude, while his own merry laugh made melody with theirs; in the night-time recalling life's friends, recounting life's battles, maybe looking at some of the scars of the conflict, mementos alike of his faithfulness and his Father's care, mindful that like the Apostle to the Gentiles he had fought a good fight and was ready for the accounting and the crowning. No wonder he could write a few days before his last sickness, "I am the happiest man in Georgia." So death found him, but our hearts cry out, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" Dr. Marks was received by transfer from the Tennessee Conference in December, 1890. In 1891 he served West Point Circuit; 1892, Morrow's Station; 1893, Palmetto Circuit; 1894, Canton; 1895, Canton; 1896, Mountville; 1897, Alpharetta; 1898-1900, Duluth; 1901, Flowery Branch; 1902, Auburn; 1903, Dahlonega; 1904-05, Bethlehem; 1906, Grovetown; 1907, Jenkinsburg; 1908-09, Cave Spring; 1910, West Wilkes; 1911, Watkinsville. He superannuated in November, 1911, and continued in this relation until his death.—W. L. Pierce.

WILLIAM ALBINUS HARRIS came of good human stock. On his mother's side he was descended from a family that for nearly a hundred years has had representatives in the Methodist ministry in Georgia. His maternal grandfather was Rev. W. J. Parks of blessed memory, a man who gave more than fifty years to the work of the itinerant ministry, and in his day was one of the leading men in his Conference. His father was Rev. John Howard Harris, who, while pastor of a church in Atlanta, died in the very meridian of his ministerial life. His mother was Mrs. Mary E. Harris, née Parks, and she was a woman of great good sense and force of character. When her husband died, leaving her with a large family of small children to rear, she decided to go back to the country neighborhood where she had spent most of her early life, and located on a farm. This community was round about New Salem Church in Banks County, a vicinage that has given, first and last, nearly a dozen preachers to the itinerancy. Here her father, like a number of the preachers of his day, had a settled home for his family, while he himself went far and wide over the State in the discharge of his duties as pastor and presiding elder. Buying a little farm in this neighborhood among numerous relatives, Mrs. Harris set herself to the task of bringing up her children, a responsibility she met with rare good sense and success. Al Harris, as his friends always called him, the subject of this sketch, was a boy of eleven when his father died, and going with his mother to Banks County, he received the benefits of that practical education and training which are best obtained on a farm. William Albinus Harris was born at Cotton Hill, Ga., December 9, 1865. As already stated, much of his childhood was spent on the farm. He showed great aptitude for study, and availed himself of every educational advantage that was accessible to him, and thus, before he was sixteen years of age, was prepared to enter Emory College. But he did not stay there long. The exigencies of his mother's farm and family made it necessary for him to give up his college course and return to her and his sisters and brothers. For the next ten years he gave himself to work on the farm, and was the mainstay of his mother and the family. It was during this time that he established a little paper called The Banks County Boss, which was said to be the smallest newspaper published in America, and which attracted wide attention. He set up his type with his own fingers, and printed the little sheet on a hand-press.

He did all this out on the farm, and the tiny periodical abounded in homely wit and homely verse, all of which appealed very strongly to his neighbors and friends. He was thus a worthy associate of Colonel Turner, the publisher of The Countryman, which was said, though not with exact accuracy, to be the only paper ever issued outside of a town, and on which Joel Chandler Harris learned the trade of a printer. It would be altogether proper to say that Brother Harris's religious life began with his natural life. Reared in a home such as his father's, and descended from such ancestry, it was not a matter of surprise that heredity and environment were supplemented early in his childhood by the gracious work of the Spirit. He joined the Methodist Church when a boy, and though he was a natural, normal youth, full of all the impulses of the critical age intervening between childhood and manhood, his youthful years were free from dissipation. He was licensed to preach at New Salem, the church of his ancestors, on May 3, 1890. He did not enter the itinerancy at once, but remained with his mother until her death two years later. On November 7, 1892, he was married to Miss Hope White, of Elbert County, Ga. The young couple celebrated their marriage by going at once to California, at the call of Bishop Haygood, and Brother Harris served one year as supply at West End, Los Angeles. The next year he was admitted on trial into the Los Angeles Conference, and appointed to the Valley Center charge. At the close of this year he was ordained deacon by Bishop Fitzgerald, his parchment bearing the date November 4, 1894, and the place San Bernardino, Cal. He was assigned to Phoenix, Arizona, in 1895-6. He found the water there so unwholesome that he was ordered by his physician to transfer back to Georgia, if he would save his life. Under these instructions, he came to the North Georgia Conference at its session at Dalton in 1896, and was appointed to the Rockmart charge. He remained at Rockmart three years, and it was here that he did some of the most effective work of his ministry. It was while pastor here that he had an experience he sometimes spoke of to his confidential friends, always humbly, which was to him a Pentecostal baptism of the Spirit, and which made of him, then and afterwards, one of the most successful revivalists in the North Georgia Conference. At the close of his first year in the North Georgia Conference he was ordained elder. This took place at Athens, November 28, 1897. From Rockmart Brother Harris went to Canton Station, where he remained three years, and where he had gracious success. He served the Senoia charge in 1903-05. Here his health failed on account of overwork and the malady that he brought back with him from the West. He took the superannuate relation, which he retained for four years. Returning to Rockmart, where he had many warm friends, he entered business and was successful in his efforts to maintain himself and his family. But his heart was always in the work to which he had consecrated his life; and his health improving, he gave up what promised to be a profitable enterprise and reentered the active work. He was appointed to Stilesboro in 1910-12, and here the same success, that had always attended his ministry, marked his return to the pastorate. At the session of the Conference in Carrollton in November, 1912, he was assigned to the Manchester charge in the La Grange District. Here he finished his life, and his work for the Lord and his Church. No part of his ministry was more successful than the year and a half he spent at Manchester. His death was a great shock to his friends, as it came quite unexpectedly. Finding that his eyes were failing, he went to Atlanta to consult a specialist. The latter found upon examination that the failure of his sight was only a symptom of a more serious condition, and sent him to the Wesley Memorial Hospital for treatment. Here the disease, the beginning of which came to him while in Phoenix, Arizona, developed rapidly, and the end came May 10, 1914. The approach of death found him unafraid. When he knew that he must go, he rejoiced with great joy over the prospect, and the hope of meeting his Saviour and the loved ones gone before. His body was borne to Rockmart and buried there—a fitting place for it to rest, since while living he had done so much for the people of the picturesque town among the hills of Northwest Georgia. He left a widow and four noble sons; and may the mantle of their father and grandfather and great-grandfather fall on one or more of these sons! Al Harris was a man among men. He was a preacher of the gospel who magnified his work. He left a name and a character unsullied, as a heritage to his family. He was a faithful servant of his Lord. His work was a benediction to the Church, and will remain such till the last battle with sin is fought and the world is conquered for God.—C. H. Branch.

THOMAS HOLMES TIMMONS was born in Coweta County, Ga., June 2, 1841. There were seven brothers and one sister in his father's family. He survived them all—falling asleep, dying as quietly as "a wave along the shore," on Sunday, October 8, 1914, just as a sweet prayer was being offered by his pastor, Brother J. H. Mashburn, at the eleven o'clock service of the Methodist Church in Thomaston, Ga. The day and the sacred circumstances of his passing into the heavens could not have been more fitting, and more in accord with his wishes, if the ordering of his exit had been directed by himself. Brother Timmons was of noble parentage. His father's ancestors were of English origin. The great ancestor of his paternal grandmother was Rev. William Turner, of Scotland. His great-grandfather, Zaddock Turner, was one of the descendants of Rev. William Turner. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and fought with General Washington in the battles of Brandywine and Trenton, in the campaigns of Philadelphia and New York, and was War President when the British surrendered at Yorktown. He is buried in an unmarked grave in Sparta, Ga. Rev. William Timmons, father of the subject of this tribute, was born in Hancock County. He was a man of rare consecration to Christ, a holiness man of the highest order, and it was under his preaching that W. C. Dunlap, a member of long standing in this Conference, was brought to see the truth that the doctrine of sanctification and perfect love was within the reach of God's children—a doctrine advocated earnestly and faithfully illustrated to the end of his life, a life we all remember to this day. Brother Thomas H. Timmons drank of the same spring unsealed in the home of his saintly father from childhood to the end of his long and useful life. Four sons out of seven followed in the steps of their godly father as earnest, faithful, successful preachers of the gospel of Jesus Christ. This fact of raising four sons out of the seven for the Methodist itinerant ministry justifies the associating the name of that noble father with the subject of this sketch and his three preacher brothers. Our Church has a right to look to the families of its preachers for recruits to her ministry, and a failure here should awaken within us thoughtful, earnest, prayerful self-examination. A group of sons following a father who considered it his highest honor to preach the gospel, singing through the conflicts, trials, and triumphs of the Methodist itinerancy, "We are traveling home to God, in the way our fathers trod," is an uplifting sight, and feeds the faith and hope of our cause for the future. Brother Timmons was converted and joined the Church at the age of ten years—something rare, but not without precedent, and not to awaken wonder when the atmosphere of his home is taken into account. From a child he knew the Scriptures, which made him wise unto salvation; and while in youth his educational advantages were limited, he availed himself of every help within his reach, and early in life forming the habit of close observation and persevering application, he grew to be a student, the purpose to get all he could out of life never forsaking him. About the time he was beginning to reach out into broader views of life and to seize its inviting opportunities, the Civil War began, and the patriotic blood of his Revolutionary ancestors moved him to enlist in defense of his country. Joining the Fifty-sixth Georgia Regiment in 1861, he served in the Kentucky and Tennessee campaigns. The war over, he was ordained local deacon by Bishop Wightman at a session of the Alabama Conference in 1865, and through the influence of his brother, Rev. Robert A. Timmons, a member of that body, he was appointed to Calhoun in the Florida Conference. He remained in Florida two years, but on account of bad health he did not work for more than a year. In 1869 he was appointed by the writer to a circuit in the Marietta District, North Georgia Conference, to take the place of a pastor who had broken down on the work. In December of the same year, 1869, he was admitted on trial by the North Georgia Conference at Rome, Ga. In 1870 he was junior preacher with John W. Kings on the Putnam Circuit; in 1871, on the La Fayette Circuit; in 1872, Long Cane; in 1873-4, Palmetto and Jones Chapel, Atlanta; in 1877, Cartersville. In December, 1877, he transferred to the South Georgia Conference, where he remained one year, serving the Lumpkin and Weston charge. In December, 1878, he was transferred to the North Georgia Conference, and appointed to Forrestville for 1879. In 1880-1 he had charge of Appling Circuit; in 1882, Thompson; in 1883-4, Harlem; in 1885, Sparta; in 1886-7, Jackson; in 1888, Summerville; in 1890-1, Culoden; in 1892, Senoia; in 1893-4, Jonesboro; in 1895, Lawrenceville; in 1896, West Monroe; in 1897-9, Appling Circuit; in 1899, close of the year, he was placed on the superannuate list, and this relation he sustained until his death. He was ordained elder by Bishop Paine at Newnan, Ga., in December, 1873. Brother Timmons's cast was military, chastened by a genial flow of spirits, a uniform kindness and affability of manner, warm and abiding in his social relations, and all regulated by great prudence. As a pastor he was watchful over the flock; firm in discipline, but never severe—the religious element of his character controlling his administration so clearly and impressively as to win the admiration, love, and esteem of all under his care. By steady and persistent application he rose to the grade of a most acceptable and useful preacher, and as a Review writer and a contributor to our Christian Advocate he was recognized as reaching a rank of decided merit. In his book published a short time before his death, "Beyond the Valley of the Shadows," he shows us a thorough delineation of Christian character, and the influence of the gospel in all the avocations of life, and the triumph of faith over death. In one of his unpublished sketches of himself he records: "The soul, secure in its immortality, smiles at the drawn dagger and defies its point. I wish all men well. My motto has been, not to live and let live, but to live and help live. I have no treasure here, and when this earthly house shall fall, I wish to be buried in the clothes I preached in; and when my body is laid beneath the dust and dew, I ask for no costly shaft to mark the spot. I ask for no polished marble sculptured verse to designate my silent house of clay, but let some gentle hand trace on artless board, or simple stone, this epitaph: "Thomas Holmes Timmons, who never rested, rest. Hush!"—George W. Yarbrough.

CHARLES C. SPENCE was born at Lawrenceville, Ga., October 2, 1846. Though a mere boy when the Civil War opened, he did valiant service for the Confederacy. Up to the spring of 1863 he served in the First Georgia Regiment, Partisan Rangers Cavalry; from then to 1864 he was a member of Company K, Sixteenth

Georgia Battalion Cavalry; from then to the end of the war he served in the Thirteenth Regiment Cavalry. While he never lost his love for the Old South, still his heart was too big for sectional prejudice, and his last years were full of every evidence of love for our common country. In 1866 he was converted, joined the Methodist Church, and was licensed to preach. He graduated from Oxford in July, 1870; and the same year he married Miss Mattie Harper, daughter of Major J. A. H. Harper, of Oxford. After several years of work as a local preacher, he joined the Indian Mission Conference in 1884, Bishop Galloway presiding. In the Creek Nation, Indian Territory, he worked as superintendent of Asbury Manual Labor School. During the time spent there, he taught, labored with, and preached to about one thousand Indians. He transferred to the North Georgia Conference, and served Cleveland Circuit in 1888. In 1889, while pastor at North Rome, he was moved in June and placed at the head of Young Harris College. It was under his presidency that Young Harris graduated its first class, and his tireless energy and work of love were the prime factors in making it a blessing to all North Georgia. It was during these years that his fine life really reached its climax of usefulness. Day and night he watched over hundreds of boys and girls with a jealous, fatherly love. Praying, exhorting, teaching, pouring out his soul in sympathy and encouragement to those who needed him, and preaching with humility and zeal of a prophet whose heart was warmed with fire from off God's altar, his whole life was a sermon, a benediction, and an inspiration. In after years he often said that Young Harris was nearer heaven to him than any place on earth. Leaving Young Harris, he moved to a farm in White County, where he lived for two years, during which time he worked as pastor in White and Lumpkin Counties. In 1897 he was elected to the presidency of the school at Demorest. Beginning there with a town high school, and helped by loyal citizens, he founded J. S. Green College. During the financial hardships which pressed him and this school, he sold his own life insurance policies to pay his teachers, choosing rather to suffer penury than the failure of his work. In his last years his heart was gladdened by his seeing this school rise to the rank of a first-class college and provided with a liberal endowment. His last years of active service were spent in the pastorate of Cornelia and Demorest. Ripened by many years of tireless work for humanity, and rich in experience of grace, his two years' service here was a blessing to all. During his work in schools and colleges he had the oversight of about eight thousand boys and girls. It would be hard to estimate the number of these that he brought to Christ; but all this host so loved and revered him as to call him "Brother" Spence. Brother Spence's Conference history was as follows: Received by transfer from the Indian Mission Conference, December, 1887. Appointments: 1888, Cleveland Circuit; 1889, Forrestville Circuit; 1890-4, President Young Harris College; 1895, Porter Springs; 1896, supernumerary; 1897, Young Harris charge (not connected with the college); 1898, Green Collegiate Institute, at Demorest; 1899-1901, President of J. S. Green College; 1902, Demorest Mission; 1903, Cornelia and Demorest Circuit; 1904, supernumerary; 1906-10, superannuated; 1911, Cornelia and Clarksville; 1912, Cornelia and Demorest; 1913-14, superannuated. He died June 19, 1914; and is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mattie H. Spence. His last conversations on earth were made beautiful by the tributes of love which he paid to her who had borne his life's burdens by his side. We buried him at Cornelia, in sight of the mountains he loved; and all felt sure that his spirit was already gladdened by a vision of the delectable mountains of a better world.—John E. Ellis.

J. B. HOLLAND.—The city of Barnesville was sadly bereaved by the death of Rev. J. B. Holland, which took place at the home of his son, Mr. O. W. Holland, on Friday, March 27. While he had been in feeble health for a long time, he was confined to his home for only about a month before his death. It was known from the beginning of his last illness that his chances for recovery were very slim, and the end was not unexpected. In his death the town loses one of its best citizens, and the Church one of its purest and most devoted ministers. Brother Holland was born in Monroe County, September 6, 1845. At the age of seventeen he shouldered his musket and as a brave soldier fought in defense of the rights of his State until the surrender in 1865. In 1867 he was happily married to Miss Mattie Wright, who with one son,

Mr. O. W. Holland, survives him—four children having preceded him to the other world. He was converted at about twelve years of age, and joined the Methodist Church, of which he was a member at the time of his death. Feeling a call to preach, he was granted license in 1885, and in 1886 at Augusta, Ga., was admitted on trial into the North Georgia Conference, and served the following charges: Blairsville, 1887; Upson Circuit, 1888; The Rock, 1889-90; Forsyth Circuit, 1891; Norwood, 1892; Winterville, 1893-4; White Plains, 1895-6; supernumerary, 1897-8; Norwood, 1899; The Rock, 1900; Watkinsville, 1901; Douglasville, 1902. At the Conference of 1902, his health having broken down, he was superannuated, and was never able to resume active work. But he loved to preach, and as his health permitted he did so, always with joy to himself and profit to those who heard him. Brother Holland was above the ordinary in ability, often preaching with great power. As a pastor he was popular, and no charge ever suffered at his hands. Diligent, persevering, and faithful, his work was always well done; and when the end came, he entered into the joys of his Lord. There were several elements that entered into the character of Brother Holland which made people respect and love him. First of all, he was a modest man, never pushing himself unnecessarily into notice. Second, he was honest and sincere with all men. In the next place, he was a man of convictions and had the courage to stand by them, even though it might be unpopular to do so. These things made him many friends, whom he held to the end, and who now mourn his departure. The funeral services were held at the Methodist Church at 11 o'clock Saturday, and were conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. C. T. Ivey and Dr. A. J. Moncrief; after which his remains were carried to his home place in Monroe County and interred in the family burying ground. A large crowd of his former neighbors were at the cemetery to pay the last tribute of respect to his memory. A good man has fallen, but the world is richer for the life he lived.—S. B. Ledbetter.

JOHN F. BALIS was born in Oneida County, New York, April 21, 1846. He came of Irish stock, and this fact was one of the potent forces in the formation of his character, and in his warm-hearted attachment to his family, his Church, and his friends, as well as in his ministry. He came South in October, 1865, and settled first in Mobile, Ala. Later he moved to Macon County, Ala., where, on July 30, 1871, he married Miss Sarah Frances Stringfellow. This good woman, who survives him, was to him a wife in the fullest and best sense of the word, contributing in no small degree to the success of his ministry and to the happiness of his home. His religious life began, only a few weeks after his marriage, with a clear conversion and an experience which grew brighter as the years went by. He immediately united with the Methodist Church at Bradford Chapel. Coming with his wife to Georgia in 1875, he settled at Douglasville, and for a number of years followed the trade of a shoemaker, in which he was very skillful. But his religious life deepened into a conviction that God had called him to preach the gospel. He was licensed to preach at Yorkville, then on the Rockmart Circuit, in September, 1879—the name of Dr. Simon Peter Richardson, presiding elder, being affixed to his license. His efficiency as a local preacher brought him into demand, and in 1884 he supplied the Paulding Mission. The next year, 1885, he was admitted on trial into the North Georgia Conference at Newnan. His Conference appointments were as follows: Blairsville, 1886; Dawsonville, 1887-8; Dahlonega, 1889; Fulton Circuit, 1890-91; Logansville Circuit, 1892; Orchard Hill, 1893; Palmetto Circuit, 1894-6; Danielsville, 1897; Flowery Branch Circuit, 1898; Chickamauga, 1899; Murray Circuit, 1900; Monticello Circuit, 1901-02; Homer Circuit, 1903. Here his health failed, after a severe attack of la grippe, and he was very reluctantly constrained to take the superannuate relation at the Conference in Griffin. It was the lot of Brother Balis to serve what are generally considered hard fields. His average salary for the seventeen years of his active ministry was two hundred and sixty-six dollars. He could have earned twice this amount every year as a shoemaker. But nobody ever heard John F. Balis complain of hardship. His ministry was by no means barren. During his pastorate he received four hundred and forty-four members into the Church on profession of faith, an average of twenty-six each year. His work was his joy. At camp meetings and revivals he sang and shouted and rejoiced with newborn souls, his impulsive Irish nature responding quickly and readily to the work of the Holy Spirit in the salvation of men. After his superannuation he settled once more in Douglasville, where, as his strength would permit, he followed his old trade as a shoemaker. Here his earthly life ended on July 7, 1914. Brother Balis and his wife, having no children of their own, adopted a little girl who grew to womanhood in their home, and with her foster-mother still lives. His end was peaceful, triumphant. When his mind seemed closed to everything else, the mention of the name of his Saviour and heaven and eternity would arouse him to consciousness; and so the ruling hope and passion of his life were strong in death.—C. H. Branch.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters were passed.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? W. M. Taylor and L. L. Johnson. 2.

WILLIAM M. TAYLOR, son of Thomas J. and Sarah Taylor, was born in Polk County, Ark., June 8, 1852. He was converted at twenty-six years of age, and was licensed to preach about 1885 while attending what is now Hendrix College, where he spent two years preparing himself for his life work. He was admitted into the Arkansas Conference on trial in 1888; was ordained deacon in November, 1890, by Bishop Fitzgerald, at Eureka Springs, Ark.; elder by Bishop Keener in November, 1893, at Clarkesville, Ark. By request, he transferred to the Indian Mission Conference in the fall of 1900, serving a number of charges in the eastern part of the State before the division of the Conference, when his lot fell with the West Oklahoma Conference. On account of failing health, he was granted a supernumerary relation in 1909, and a superannuate relation in November, 1913. He died on June 23, 1914, at the residence of his sister, near Meeker, Okla. Brother Taylor was married on January 5, 1879, to Miss Lina Baskin, who shared the toils and triumphs of an itinerant's life for over twenty years, and who is left alone to await the summons to meet him on the other side, no children ever having been born to them. Our brother was always faithful to the work of the Church and to the calls of humanity, and we doubt not but many will rise up in "that day" and call him blessed.—J. B. McCombs.

LEROY LEE JOHNSON, the subject of this sketch, died at Clinton, Okla., on Sunday night, October 1, 1914, from heart failure. The following was written by Brother Johnson, and I incorporate it in his obituary: "My full name, Leroy Lee Johnson. Named for Rev. Leroy M. Lee, D.D., of the Virginia Conference. My parents' names, Kelly and Nancy Johnson. My father was born and reared on the hill a few hundred yards east of where Old Trinity College stands, in Randolph County, N. C. My mother was born in Davidson County, N. C., two miles northwest of Thomasville, near Old Zion Church of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Both of my parents were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and lived and died consistent Christians. My grandfather's name was Joseph Johnson, and my grandfather's name on my mother's side was John Veach. There is a history of my father's and mother's people filed away with this. I was born one mile north of Old Trinity College, in Randolph County, North Carolina, August 2, 1852. Converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, about the first week in October, 1866, at Trinity College, Randolph County, N. C., under the ministry of Dr. Braxton Craven, who was then President of Trinity College. I was licensed to preach November 22, 1879, at Pleasant Hill Church, Randolph County, N. C., by Dr. Marquis L. Wood, presiding elder. Joined the North Carolina Conference, November 24, 1881, at Durham, N. C., Bishop Pierce presiding. Ordained deacon on December 2, 1883, by Bishop Keener, at Statesville, N. C. Ordained elder on November 29, 1885, by Bishop Keener, at Charlotte, N. C. Married on July 16, 1879, at the home of Wiley K. Welborn, one mile south of Trinity College, Randolph County, N. C., to Crissie J. Welborn, who to this day has made me a cheerful, helpful, and Christian wife and companion. We were married by Rev. Charles H. Phillips, a very saintly man, preacher in charge of Randolph Circuit, North Carolina Conference. In November, 1895, I was transferred, by request, from the North Carolina Conference to the Western North Carolina Conference by Bishop Duncan. Then in September, 1898, I was transferred from the Western North Carolina Conference to the Southwest Missouri Conference, by request, by Bishop Fitzgerald, and stationed first and second years at Carthage, Mo. From youth up I have desired to make this world better." The above was written October 22, 1899, while he was stationed at Carthage, Missouri. The charges served by Brother Johnson are as follows: In the North Carolina Conference—Jones Circuit, 1881-3; Pleasant Garden, 1883-4; Burlington, 1884-8; Carr Church, Durham, 1888-90; Haw River Circuit, 1890-2; Carr Church, Durham, 1892-5; Lexington Circuit, 1895-6; Albemarle, 1896-8. In the Southwest Missouri Conference—Carthage, 1898-1900; Belton Station, 1900-01; Morrisville College, 1901-03. In the Indian Mission Conference, now East and West Oklahoma—

Afton Station, 1903-05; Duncan Station, 1905-06; Mangum Station, 1906-09; Chickasha District, 1909-12; Clinton District, 1912-14. To his home were born six children. The oldest, Miss Ola, a young woman of rarest Christian character, left the family circle at Mangum, Okla., October 31, 1907, and took up her abode in the heavenly world. Her death was a heavy blow to her father as well as to other members of the family. Fred H., of Chicago, Ill.; Leroy, of Stratford, Okla.; and Rev. Wade W. Johnson, of the North Texas Conference, Dallas, Texas; two beautiful daughters, Athline and Lida, together with his precious wife and a large company of loved ones and friends, live to mourn his death. For the past six years he has been in failing health. Everything was done for him by skillful physicians and loving hands that could be done to restore him to health, but to no avail. His life was like a rainbow, in that all the Christian graces shone forth with such splendor. He was undoubtedly the best loved Methodist preacher in our new State. Because of his perfect frankness in dealing with his brethren, he was sometimes misunderstood, for a season only. I never heard him speak evil of any man, and he was charitable in his judgment, never harsh nor unkind, but as tender as a young mother in his dealings with his brethren. My! My! What a fine example he has set for us who follow after him! Four years ago he was elected a delegate to the Asheville General Conference. His brethren delighted to honor him, and yet I dare say he never sought an honor in all his life. His good influence was as precious ointment poured out to enrich the lives of all he touched. We shall miss him greatly, but God needed him for larger service and took him home to the better world. Our hearts go out to the dear wife and children who leaned upon his manly arm. God bless them in their loneliness and sorrow! May the blessed gospel which he loved so well to preach be the power that shall lift his entire family up into the presence of God! Brother Johnson was a splendid gospel preacher and the best pastor I ever knew. As a presiding elder he was aggressive, yet safe—a good judge of men. The writer preached his funeral sermon at Clinton, Okla., on Tuesday evening, October 13, 1914. The next day we took his body to Mangum, where a memorial service was held in the church. We then laid it in the grave by the side of Miss Ola's, to await the resurrection morning. Good-by, my dear, good friend, for a short while only.—N. L. Linebaugh.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? John E. Thompson. 1.

JOHN ERVIN THOMPSON was a man of quiet spirit and bore a good name. He was self-sacrificing and keenly alive to the needs of the common people. Always a welcome guest in the best homes of the pastoral charges he served, he did not neglect the poor; and they, too, were glad at his coming. As a preacher he was sometimes strong, always edifying, and clear and persuasive in his purpose to win men to Christ. He attained more than average success in revivals, and usually those converted under his ministry became useful members of the Church. Brother Thompson, son of Hugh and Lucy Thompson, was born in Robeson County, N. C., January 21, 1840. One of a family of five boys and four girls, he was brought up on his father's farm, and attended first the common schools of the county, then a high school near the present site of Maxton, and Trinity College, which he left in the spring of 1862 to enter the Confederate Army. He enlisted as a private in Company E, Fifty-first Regiment, North Carolina troops, Clingman's Brigade, and served through the war. He was in the battles around Charleston, S. C., and Richmond, Va., and was taken prisoner at Cold Harbor in June, 1864, and carried to Elmira, N. Y., where he remained a prisoner until July, 1865. He was a good soldier in the ranks, a man who did his duty, as did his ancestors who came from England before our Revolution and fought in both our wars with Great Britain. But it is his religious life, and the forty-seven years he preached the gospel that especially invite our attention. Both his parents and grandparents were old-fashioned Methodists, who believed in a religion that produced results—that made people both good and happy. Brother Thompson himself was converted at about the age of seventeen one night in his room during a revival meeting in old Providence Church (now Asbury) on the Robeson Circuit, conducted by Revs. Paul J. Carraway and Joseph B. Martin, and joined the Church, of course. He was licensed to preach in September, 1865, and was admitted on trial into the North Carolina Conference at its session in Raleigh the same year, Bishop Early presiding. He was ordained deacon at Wilmington in 1867, and elder at New Bern in 1869, by Bishop Doggett, who held both Conferences. His appointments were: Cumberland Circuit, 1866; Asheboro Circuit, 1867; Uwharrie Circuit, 1868-9; Smithville (now Southport), 1870; Smithfield Circuit, 1871-3; Rolesville Circuit, 1874; Cary Circuit, 1875-6; Granville Circuit, 1877-80; Amity (now Mattamuskeet) Circuit, 1881; Clinton Circuit, 1882-4; Buckhorn Circuit, 1885-8; Snow Hill Circuit, 1889-90; Jonesboro Circuit, 1891-3; Mount Gilead Circuit, 1894-7; Aberdeen Circuit, 1898-1901; St. John's Station (Goldsboro), 1902-03. With great fidelity he served all these charges, and in them all the people loved him much. Pure, gentle, firm, he lived the gospel he preached, and the people took constant knowledge of him that he had been with God. At the session of our Conference held at Goldsboro in 1903, on account of failing health, Brother Thompson asked for and was granted the superannuate relation. From then until a short time before his death he lived in his own home in the town of Aberdeen, where all the folks, notably the Pages, were kind to him and regarded his presence in their midst as a benediction. On November 14, 1866, Brother Thompson was happily married to Miss Jennie Buie, of Fayetteville, N. C., the ceremony being performed in Hay Street Church by the pastor, Rev. T. W. Guthrie. They lived happily together with the children that were born to them until 1881, when she was called from the Church militant to the Church triumphant, and her body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Amity Church in Hyde County, where her husband was then pastor. Soldier of the Cross that he was, it was fitting that he should leave his beloved dead on the line of march as he went from place to place fighting the good fight that should earn at last a golden crown and a mansion not made with hands. In 1882 Brother Thompson again plighted his troth to a worthy daughter of good old Fayetteville, Miss Mary Buie, sister of his first wife. She, too, was a real helpmeet to him and a devoted mother, and it was given him to enjoy her companionship till his Lord called him over the river. His children still living are: J. E. Thompson, Hamlet, N. C.; Mrs. W. C. Kinsland, Waynesville, N. C.; Mrs. Archie McLauchlin, Riverdale, Ga.; Mrs. S. E. Mercer and Mrs. A. M. Norton, Maxton, N. C.; Albert L. Thompson, Fayetteville, N. C.; and Gerald B. Thompson, Princeton, W. Va. There survives him also a brother, Rev. Wesley Thompson, McDonald, N. C. In his last illness Brother Thompson was in the home of his son Albert in Fayetteville, and every attention of skillful physician, trained nurse, and loving wife and children was his. Patiently and gently he waited for his change, and heard the last clear call on December 27, 1913. The next day, which was Sunday, he was buried from Hay Street Church, Fayetteville, the services being conducted by Rev. W. R. Royall, the pastor, assisted by Rev. T. H. Sutton, of Siler City. And they laid his body away in old Cross Creek Cemetery, to await the resurrection morn, when he shall see "the far-away home of the soul," of which he so delighted to sing. During the four years Brother Thompson was on the Granville Circuit I was on the adjacent Oxford Circuit, and we frequently helped each other in our revival meetings. I never had a more genial associate or more faithful fellow-laborer. Later, I was eight years his presiding elder, and there was only sweet comradeship and earnest work for the Master in it all. I knew his home life, and it was simply beautiful. He was the most devoted of husbands and the most loving of fathers. May God comfort his widow and each of his children. I look forward to meeting him again in our Father's house, where we shall talk over the incidents of our journey and gladly recall our joint labors for the Master.—J. T. Gibbs.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? One by one their names were called, and all passed the examination of character, except W. E. Hocutt, who had surrendered his credentials and withdrawn from the ministry and Church.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? John Adams, T. B. Vinson, G. V. Ridley, W. E. Washburn, J. T. Kirkpatrick. 5.

JOHN ADAMS, son of William and Susanah Prenter Adams, was born in Paterson, New Jersey, May 7, 1830, and died in Tyler, Texas, June 3, 1914, being eighty-four years and twenty-six days old. He was descended from good Irish stock. His parents emigrated to Texas in 1840, settling temporarily in Bastrop. In 1843 they moved to Rusk County, where his father located his head-right for six hundred and forty acres of land, and built his home thirteen miles north of Henderson. Here the thirteen-year-old John grew to manhood; here seven years later (1850) he was converted under the ministry of Rev. W. W. Calder, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and here seven years later still (1857) he was licensed to preach by W. K. Wilson, presiding elder. In November of that year he was admitted on trial into the traveling connection by the East Texas Conference at Rusk, Bishop Kavanaugh presiding. From this date he served the Church as pastor and presiding elder faithfully, intelligently, and efficiently for forty-five years. He filled the following charges: Carthage Circuit, 1858; Jefferson Circuit, 1859; San Augustine Circuit, 1860; Liberty Circuit, 1861; Carthage Circuit, 1862-3; Melrose Circuit, 1864; Henderson Circuit, 1865; Palestine Station, 1866; Palestine District, 1867; Palestine Station, 1868; Palestine and Kickapoo, 1869; Palestine Station, 1870-2; Rusk and Stovall Station, 1873; Palestine District, 1874-7; Starville Circuit, 1878; Palestine District, 1879-82; Marshall District, 1883-4; Palestine District, 1885-7; Tyler District, 1888-91; Marshall District, 1892-5; Tyler District, 1896-9; Pittsburg District, 1900-02. This closed his active ministry. The minutes of the Conference of 1902, held at Crockett, contains the following: "At their own request, the names of C. H. Smith and John Adams were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the superannuate relation." For the next twelve years he walked humbly, cheerfully, faithfully, sweetly among his brethren, showing them how a superannuate could live. Territorially Doctor Adams's ministry was confined to twenty-two East Texas counties, in which he spent nine years on circuits, eight in stations, and twenty-nine on districts—serving seven circuits, two stations, and four districts, making but thirteen charges in all. Eighteen years of this ministry were spent in Palestine—six in the station and twelve on the district. He was one of the curators of the Southwestern University twenty-five years; for many years a member of the Joint Board of Publication of the Texas Christian Advocate; and five times a member of the General Conference. At the end of it all, he wrote: "My love for the Church increases with my advancing years." Viewed from any standpoint, Doctor Adams was a truly great man. He was denied the advantage of the schools, yet mastered their text-books, and so completely familiarized himself with the Bible, with theology, science, literature, etc., that the Southwestern University in 1875 conferred on him the honorary degree of Master of Arts, and in 1878 that of Doctor of Divinity. They were worthily bestowed. The following from the ready pen of Dr. G. C. Rankin, editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, is from its issue of June 11, and is so worthy of our ascended brother that it should find a place in this memoir: "In person he was large and commanding, and he bore himself on all occasions as a man born to lead. Mentally he was far above the average. Providence blessed him with extraordinary endowments, and by diligence and study he improved his gifts to a wonderful extent. He was a student of good books and good literature all his life. He was wonderfully well informed on the leading subjects of religion, and his range of knowledge covered a wide scope touching other fields of inquiry. He knew the doctrine and the theology of the Church, and in preaching these themes he was a master in the pulpit. In his best days he was the peer of any man in the Texas pulpit; and with it all, he was a man of deep spirituality. In his pulpit ministrations he was wonderfully evangelical. People were convicted and converted and edified under his preaching. Doctor Adams was a broad man in his catholicity of spirit. He did not deal in small affairs of idle talk. Large themes engaged his thought and conversation. He had a singularly pure mind and heart. Nothing coarse or vulgar ever escaped his lips, for such matters had no place in his thoughts. He lived on a high plane and breathed a pure atmosphere. His communion with God was clear and unmistakable, and companionship with Christ was a daily joy and experience. He had the evidence of a sound conversion in his bosom, and his growth in grace through his long years was steady and permanent. He developed into great ripeness of life and character. It was always a benediction to sit at his feet and learn from him as a teacher of the deep things of God. He had a tender, confiding heart, and a personality as beautiful as that of a cultured woman. He embodied all the genuine elements of a true gentleman, and no whisper was ever uttered against his piety and religion. He had the universal confidence of man. Righteousness was the law of his life, and he has left a record as pure as the snow, and as polished as the marble. His very name is a synonym for all that is good and noble and true. The passing of such a man is no ordinary event in the history of a community. It is no wonder that the business houses closed their doors, and that the people of Tyler stood with uncovered heads at his grave. And his whole Conference is touched deeply by his death. But he is not, for God has taken him. He closed out a splendid career, and the gates stood wide open for his entrance when his royal spirit left its tabernacle of clay." And this from Judge L. N. Cooper, of Fort Worth: "I have heard with grief and tears of the passing of my boyhood friend, Rev. John Adams, D.D. Some will read these lines who will recall many Methodist preachers who found welcome shelter beneath the roof of my father and mother at Crockett, when I was a boy. None were more lovingly received than John Adams. I recall his big frame, his big heart, and his great intellect. His simplicity of manner and his courage in defense of matters believed to be right always impressed me and had an influence over me which is felt after the lapse of forty years. As a Christian he was without guile; as a preacher he was a spiritual athlete; and as a patriot he was the peer of any man. Wherever along the walks of life he passed, there lingered a fragrance filled with gentleness and goodness. It is difficult to conceive how any man could better serve his day and generation than did this unassuming, able, and lovable man. Truly he could have said, 'Thy gentleness hath made me great.'" The writer of this memoir does not hesitate to write Doctor Adams down as a great preacher. He was not blessed with the delivery and voice of the orator, and yet he was an orator. I have heard him when his great, towering, giant body was swayed by the power of God, and his giant intellect staggered under the burden of his own great thoughts; when the defects of delivery and voice were cured or forgot, and when a flood of sacred eloquence that melted, stirred, and soothed swept his audience, as with the breath of God, far, far out into fields of thought and holy emotion they had never known before. Doctor Adams was happily married in his forty-fifth year. Of it he says: "I was married on January 28, 1876, to Miss Mary Blanche Hale, of Paducah, Ky. God bless her forever! She is one of the most faithful women I ever knew. We have but one child, our son Langston, who now lives in Houston, and is credit man of the Houston Packing Company." On the morning of his last day on earth he called his wife to his bedside and told her he would soon go home to heaven; told her what he wished her to do; asked her to telephone for Brother Smith. I went and sat near his side on his bed. His mind was clear and active, but he was very weak and spoke with much difficulty. He said: "Brother Tom, I may not go immediately, but can only hold out a day or so. I want you to conduct my funeral, and have Doctor Andrews assist you. Make the service short; don't tire the people. I want you to prepare my obituary for the Advocate and the memoir for the Conference, and want you to make a talk at the memorial service." Then he gave me some other directions, and our talk turned to our years of love, confidence, and fellowship of the past. He pronounced his blessings on me, on my wife and children, and I bade him my last good-by. Next morning, near three o'clock, his mind still clear, he called his wife in the old familiar home way, "Marm, Marm, Marm," and, grasping her hand tightly, pointed upward and said, "Heaven, eternity"; and without an apparent struggle, entered into rest. It is probable that I knew Doctor Adams better than any man now living knew him. We had been closely acquainted for thirty-two years. I knew him in my home, knew him in his home, knew him out in the field of ministerial toil, in the private counsels of the Church; and as I knew him, he had more in him to praise and less to find fault with than any man I ever knew. After the most careful survey of his life, I write him down as the best man I ever knew. I never knew him to speak an unchaste word, do an unkind deed, or speak harm of any mortal. For years he began or closed all his talks with, and closed his biographical sketch with, "I believe with all my soul that 'God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.'" On the afternoon of Doctor Adams's funeral all the business houses in the city were closed, out of respect to his memory. There was a large attendance upon the funeral services, the sermon being preached by Bishop Mouzon. This sermon was a very just estimate of Doctor Adams's life. It would be hard to describe the sermon as delivered. Rev. B. R. Bolton of Jacksonville, Rev. New Harris of Dallas, and other prominent ministers, were in attendance. Our sainted brother is gone from us, and our Conference mourns his absence, but we rejoice that God gave him to us so long. His great, tired body, worn with years, rests in Woodlawn Cemetery in Tyler, Texas. His gentle, refined spirit has joined a mighty host of his old Conference comrades in heaven's land. He was a prince and a mighty man in Zion, "a man sent from God," "an Israelite indeed," and "he walked with God," and is not, for God has taken him.—J. T. Smith.

THOMAS B. VINSON, son of Rev. W. D. and Eliza A. Vinson, was born five miles south of Iuka, Tishomingo County, Mississippi, August 30, 1857. He was baptized in infancy, and was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when ten years of age. In his unreserved consecration to the service of God, his first cry was, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" The answer came, he faltered not; and from that hour he delighted in the service of the family altar, assisting his two older brothers in leading his mother's broken family in worship. Before he was seventeen years old he was licensed to exhort. His first message to the public congregation was, "Prepare to meet thy God"; and true to this scriptural injunction, he ordered his life. He was married to Miss Etta Lowery, in the neighborhood in which he was reared, and came to Texas in the fall of 1876. He was licensed to preach by the Quarterly Conference of the Garden Valley Circuit in October, 1885; and was ordained deacon by Bishop Key, December 15, 1889; at which time he was appointed, as a supply, to the Mount Enterprise Circuit from the East Texas Conference at Rusk. The next fall, 1890, he was admitted on trial into the East Texas Conference at Tyler. He was ordained elder by Bishop Hendrix at Marshall, December 20, 1896. He served the following charges: First, as a supply, Mount Enterprise Circuit, 1890; Beckville Circuit, 1891; De Berry Circuit, 1892; New York Circuit, 1893-4; Tyler Circuit, 1895-7; Edom Circuit, 1898-9; Daingerfield Circuit, 1900; Winfield Circuit, 1901-03; Tenaha Circuit, 1904; Gilmer Circuit, 1905; Queen City Circuit, 1906; Shelbyville Circuit, 1907; appointed to Harleton Circuit for 1908, but was stricken down of nervous prostration on March 20, and was relieved of his work for the remainder of the Conference year. At the ensuing Conference, it being clearly seen that he was in no condition to resume work, he was given the superannuate relation, which he sustained until his discharge from his labors on earth for promotion to the ranks above. He often assisted his brethren in their meetings when his health would permit it. The records of the Conference show his fruits in the ministry, while the recording angel's book will show it as it will appear in the final judgment of the world, when many shall rise up and call the faithful preachers blessed. His father and his two brothers and himself were all Methodist preachers; and on his mother's side, back through four generations to the Simmonses in South Carolina, he was in the line of succession of Methodist preachers, while he found himself a Methodist back contemporary with John and Charles Wesley, in the person of his father's great-grandmother. He therefore both knew and loved the doctrine of his Church, and was thus prepared to give out no uncertain sound, believing her teachings to be the interpretations of God's Holy Word. He coveted no secular pursuit, determining to know nothing among his people "save Jesus Christ and him crucified." His barque was not always plying placid waters; but he steered for the haven. From eight years of age he was fatherless; but being blessed with a Christian mother, and the pious impress left on the family by his sainted father, he enlisted for field service in the army of the Great King. It was not his policy to seek the line of least resistance, but that of duty; and in that his zeal surpassed his strength, resulting in his ultimate and premature breakdown. And even after that no cloud ever eclipsed his star of hope in God, but he met it with a faith that knows no doubting, endeavoring to exemplify in his life the gospel he preached. He exulted not in his own achievements; but like the Psalmist, his heart sentiment was: "My soul shall make her boast in the Lord; the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together." Couched in the sincerity of his life was the desire to keep sacred the Golden Rule; and in this he expected the same at the hands of his fellow-man. Making no compromise with the spirit of insincerity, and not being infallible, at times he may have been somewhat exacting; but withal he strove to keep inviolable the two "great commandments"—not simply to avert the Divine disapprobation, but rather because he loved to love. He bore the very tenderest love for his brethren in the ministry, and for his people whom he served on his charges. During the years of forced retirement he kept in close touch with the work of his Church, and rejoiced greatly in the success and victories won by his brethren in their different fields of labor. He delighted in the fellowship of his brethren, and never allowed an opportunity of attending his Conferences to pass by unimproved, if he was able to go. Frail of body, and wasted by long years of suffering, he came to life's close with not a shadow over his sky, for "he endured as seeing Him who is invisible." With the passing days his hold on life became more and more uncertain, and it was quite evident to those with whom he was thrown that the end was not far ahead. He, too, realized that he was nearing the river's crossing; but that thought brought no fear or dread. His last days were days of peaceful waiting, and to friends and loved ones who visited him and waited on him he talked calmly of the triumph that was just ahead and the crown that was waiting. He sent messages of love to his brethren of the Conference and said, "Tell them I love them, and the way is bright, and all is well"; and with this spirit of assurance he sheathed his sword and folded his hands in peaceful rest, and on March 10, 1914, went up to find his place in the many-mansioned city.—J. E. Vinson.

GEORGE VINCENT RIDLEY was the fifth son of George Martin Ridley and Martha Young Ridley. He was born in Maury County, Tennessee, March 2, 1840 (possibly 1839), and died at Rosenberg, July 21, 1914. The great-grandfather of George Vincent was Captain George Ridley, who came from Virginia to East Tennessee, later to Nashville, and there built what was known as the Block House, about 1790. The father, George Martin Ridley, with his family, came to Texas in 1852 and settled at San Marcos. After a few years the family moved to Kerr County. The mother was first a Cumberland Presbyterian, but became a Methodist with her husband. Both parents were devout and intelligent Christians. In the atmosphere of this godly home the son, when sixteen years old, experienced the joys of conscious salvation; a few months later he was licensed to preach, and at this early age served a short pastorate as supply. Brother Ridley's itinerancy began in 1863. His recommendation for admission came from the Victoria District, which at that time was in the Texas Conference. His appointments have been as follows: 1864, Texana, junior preacher under O. A. Fisher; 1865-6, Eagle Lake and Colored Mission; 1867, no appointments of the Conference are on record; 1868, Columbia; 1869-70, Richmond and Wharton; 1871, Hempstead Circuit; 1872, Hempstead and Harrisburg. At the close of this year, at his own request, he was granted a location; but reentered the Conference in 1878, and was appointed to Hempstead, which he served in 1879-80. It is probable that he also served Richmond a second time, 1881. At the close of this year, because of physical conditions, he again entered the local ranks, remaining therein until 1887. On his readmission into the Texas Conference he transferred to the East Texas Conference, and was appointed to First Church, Beaumont, which he served four years, 1888-91. His other pastorates have been as follows: Orange, 1892-3; Nacogdoches, 1894-5; Jefferson, 1896; Jacksonville, 1897; Trinity and Lovelady, 1898-9; Malakoff, 1900; Mineola, 1901-3; Gilmer, 1904-6; Mount Pleasant, 1907-9; Rusk, 1910; Athens, 1911; Rosenberg, 1912-14. From the beginning of Dr. Ridley's itinerancy to its close there is a period of fifty-one years. Deduct the nine years in which he was local, and it will be seen that he was forty-two years a pastor. In his young manhood he prepared himself for the practice of medicine and dentistry. When not in the traveling connection, he engaged in the practice of these professions at Hempstead. In him a strong body was joined to a good intellect. This was shown both by his long life and the unflagging activity of body and mind. He was a continuous worker. Into the homes of his people—the rich and the poor, the well and the sick, but especially the poor and the sick—he was sure to go. That home not convenient to the church, whose inmates were not so situated as to be able to attend church worship, was sure to be visited by this pastor. Those who had moved into the community without bringing certificates of church membership met in him a pastor who insisted that a church home was necessary for a good life. His love for the pastorate never grew old. In his seventy-fifth year he was reading new books, making new sermons, visiting from house to house, attending carefully to the details of his charge, and when the face of the country was covered with water he was the busiest of the busy in rescuing those in danger. It was said of him, "Had he been less concerned for others, he might have lived longer." Rarely gifted in language and blessed with the habits of a student, he acquired a splendid working knowledge of Latin, Greek, German, and Spanish. Perhaps it was his interest in young life that kept him young in spite of what the calendar said. His record for helping the young people, that they should make the most of things most important, was well sustained in his last pastorate. "The little children loved him," was the beautiful tribute paid him by many older people, who also mourned his departure. Of the things that made him a suitable leader and companion for young people may be named this: He was a man of clean lips. Those who knew him well, and were in close association with him, heard only chaste language. He spoke no words that brought a blush to the cheek or would tarnish the lips of a maiden. Dr. Ridley was twice married. His first wife was Miss Somie Jerome Merefee. The marriage took place June 7, 1863. Her death occurred in San Antonio, August 9, 1887. In Beaumont, November 26, 1888, he and Miss Cortez Keath were united in marriage. To this union four children were born. An infant son died in 1894. Three daughters, with their mother, are passing through a sense of loneliness which comes only to those deprived of a husband and father, whose relation to them may be expressed by the word "Beautiful." Sister Ridley, in a letter referring to his diaries, says: "I find touching entries which I wish you could read. They express a spirit of devotion, abiding faith, deep humility, earnestness of purpose. To me one of the loveliest of his virtues was the brotherly love that always abounded in his life."—Charles F. Smith.

WILLIS E. WASHBURN was born in Monroe County, Arkansas, October 4, 1862; was baptized in infancy; was converted to Christ and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, near Conroe, Texas, in 1892. That same year, at a Quarterly Conference presided over by Rev. J. C. Mickle, he was licensed to preach; and in 1894 he was admitted on trial into the Texas Conference. During his effective ministry he served, among others, the following charges: Leon Mission, Waller Circuit, Durango Circuit, Buckholts Circuit, Lyon's Circuit, and Petteway Circuit. In 1907 the Conference granted Brother Washburn a superannuate relation on account of his failing health. This relation to the Conference he retained until his death, which occurred at Haskell, Texas, January 20, 1914. He was stricken with apoplexy, and lived only a few hours. Brother Washburn was twice married. His first wife was Miss Emma Mitchell, who lived only about three years after they were married. His second wife was Miss Leola Pugh. To this union one child was born. Mother and child survive him. Quiet and unostentatious in his work and life, earnest and faithful in his ministry, sympathetic and helpful in his pastoral labors, he was respected and esteemed by all who knew him; and by him many were led to Christ. His friends know that with him all is well. His body rests in Willow Cemetery at Haskell, in Haskell County. His record as a Christian and a minister of the gospel is on high, while his ransomed spirit is with Him who bought it with, and cleansed it in, His own precious blood.—T. S. Williford.

J. T. KIRKPATRICK was born at Macon, Ga., March 25, 1866; departed this life at Corrigan, Texas, October 17, 1914. This sentence tells of the beginning and ending of his days upon the earth; but between these date lines is the story of a life of loyal, faithful service for God and for men. Coming with his parents to Texas at the age of eleven years, the following summer he was soundly converted and received into the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. When just twenty-one years of age, he was granted license to exhort; and after one year in this relation, being found worthy, he was by the proper authority in our Church given license to preach. He was admitted on trial into the traveling connection at the session of the North Texas Conference of 1891; ordained deacon by Bishop Hargrove in 1892; ordained elder by Bishop Hendrix in 1896. In the years following, these charges were served: Redwater Circuit, two years; Dalby Springs, one year; Musgrove, one year; Crockett Circuit, three years; Groveton, one year; Woodville, two years; Burkeville, two years; Livingston, two years; Quitman, two years; Big Sandy, two years; Willard, one year; Corrigan, two years; Appleby, one and one-half years—called away from his task in the busy day, but under the blessing of God permitted to die "in the harness." For the two years just passed Brother Kirkpatrick suffered greatly, as disease preyed upon his body; but he was cheerful and hopeful, and as devout as he was humble, to the end of the way. His farewell word to his brethren in the ministry was full of assurance of a triumphant faith in his Lord, and tender love for those with whom he had served as true yoke-fellow in this ministry for these twenty-three years. Two children, a son and a daughter of the wife of his youth, live in Corrigan, and they have been so trained that they are worthy and faithful members of our Church. The good mother of these children went on to the better world thirteen years ago; and after her death, Brother Kirkpatrick was married to Mrs. Alice Wallace, with whom he lived in confidence and happiness till the day of his release from earth's duties. These three live to mourn his going away. Brother Kirkpatrick was in one sense not a great preacher, but by a tender, appealing message and a great warm heart he won many souls for Christ and the Church; and by a life of solid piety and consecration he proclaimed the gospel every day he lived. No man ever questioned his integrity; no man ever thought of him as other than a Christian gentleman. He served the hardest places without complaining; he told the story of the Cross as best he could; he became a living epistle; and now this may be said: "He was faithful unto death." We may with perfect assurance write it down that God gives him a "crown of life." The tired body of the circuit rider rests in the grave, but we believe in our hearts the spirit is with the Lord, in whose service the faithful preacher found his highest joy.—J. W. Mills.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters passed, except that of W. H. Beaty, on trial in the class of the first year, whose presiding elder reported that he had been tried on a charge of immorality and expelled from the ministry and membership of our Church.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Griffin, O. H. Tucker. 26.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? J. D. Rutledge, J. E. Dunaway, J. W. House. 3.

J. E. DUNAWAY was born in Lauderdale County, Tenn., February 28, 1844, and died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. B. Brackett, in Boone County, Ark., August 1, 1914, being in his seventieth year. Brother Dunaway professed faith in Christ in his boyhood, and joined the Methodist Church, and at the early age of fifteen was appointed class leader. On August 24, 1867, he was licensed to exhort in the Memphis Conference, Rev. G. W. D. Harris, presiding elder. He was married to Miss Mary A. Moore on February 7, 1865. To this union were born two children, Robert and Mrs. Brackett. In January, 1871, he moved to Arkansas, and was licensed to preach on May 14 of that year. He remained in the local ranks six years. In the fall of 1874 he was employed as a supply on the Clinton Circuit by Rev. C. H. Gregory, his presiding elder, and supplied this work for three consecutive years. In the fall of 1877 he was admitted on trial in the Arkansas Conference and appointed to Wiley's Cove Circuit. He was on the effective list thirty years. "Brother Dunaway was not a great preacher as the world counts greatness. There was no sparkling brilliancy, no tremendous flights of oratory, yet his expositions of the Bible were sure, clear, and pointed. He spoke as one who was certain of his utterance. There was no hesitancy, no apology for his message. He seemed to feel that he was the mouthpiece of God, and that he spoke to carry to the hearts of those who heard him the message of the Father." In the fall of 1911 he was placed on the superannuate list. On the first day of last August he was transferred to his heavenly home.—S. S. Key.

JOHN WILBURN HOUSE was born in Columbia County, Ark., July 7, 1862, and died at the home of his brother-in-law, Dr. Sam Brooksher, Fort Smith, Ark., June 20, 1914. He was converted at Oak Grove, Sebastian County, Ark., under the ministry of our sainted Brother Gardner, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1887. Shortly after this he was licensed to preach, and in the fall of 1893 was admitted on trial into the Arkansas Annual Conference at Clarksville. From that time until his decease he esteemed the work of the ministry the highest calling among men. Finishing his course of study in the allotted four years, he gave himself unreservedly to his chosen work, and was never quite so happy as when an opportunity offered to preach the word to dying men and women. As a pastor he served the following charges: Coal Hill, Altus, Rogers, Cincinnati, Yellville, Siloam Springs, Gentry, Springdale, Prairie Grove, and Huntington. While at Huntington he lost his health. At the next session of the Conference, which met at Bentonville, November 6-10, 1907, he was given the supernumerary relation, which he held for two years. In May, 1909, his health having improved, he was appointed pastor at Springdale. The following fall he asked to be placed back on the effective list. The request was granted, and he was again appointed to Springdale Station. But the work proved too much for him, and in January, 1910, he again broke down and was placed upon the superannuate list. Since that time he has done some secular work, but for the most part has given himself to the work of an evangelist, pouring his lifeblood into the hard fields, helping those who were most in need of his services. He was married to Miss Mary Cleveland Brooksher, November 2, 1890. God blessed this union with two lovely children, Zelpha and Lillian, aged thirteen and eleven years respectively. Brother House was engaged in his favorite employ, at Hartford, Ark., when on the twelfth day of last April his nerves gave way and he was forced to resign the field and come home. His father being very sick, he went to his bedside and remained a few days. It was there he did his last work on earth for the Master, as he sat by the bedside and read to him the promises upon which both father and son had builded strong Christian characters. He visited his father for the last time on Sunday, April 19. The following week he was confined to his home. Then, under the advice of doctors, he was removed to Sparks Memorial Hospital, where he remained three weeks; and becoming dissatisfied, he was moved to the home of Dr. Sam Brooksher, for two weeks; then to the home of Dr. Will Brooksher, for two weeks; then back to the home of Dr. Sam Brooksher, where, in the presence of his wife and a few intimate friends, he shut his eyes to the things of this world to open them to the beauties of the kingdom of God. The end was not unexpected. For a week he had talked to his wife about the approaching end, saying that he could not get well, and he wanted to go on over as early as the Lord would take him. The remains were brought to Springdale, June 22, accompanied by the family, Robert and Will Brooksher, Rev. J. M. Hughey, and Rev. William Sherman. The funeral was held at the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at 3 p.m. That great sorrow was felt for his loss and deep sympathy for his family, was evidenced not only by the high tributes paid from the pulpit, but by the immense floral offerings, made up of wreaths and bouquets sent from former pastorates, Sunday schools, and friends, brought in with many like tributes from friends at home. Brother House was truly a good man, a dutiful son, a faithful and affectionate husband and father, a loyal churchman, and a true Christian. He was a great student, and the one book around which all other books circled in his study was the Bible. I think I am safe in saying that Arkansas has lost her greatest Scripturist. He has been known to preach for weeks without taking his Bible into the pulpit, and fearlessly challenging the world to name a passage in God's Word which he could not quote. It would naturally follow that he was a strong preacher. He was a man of clean habits and pure life, such as God and man could recommend. As we bow our heads to the inevitable, may we not resolve to emulate his virtues and so live that when our sun is set we may receive his welcome at the heavenly gates?—F. E. Dodson.

JAMES D. RUTLEDGE was born in Gibson County, Tenn., April 24, 1855. He died at his home in Blytheville, Ark., June 26, 1914. He came to Arkansas when a young man and spent the remainder of his life in the White River Conference. He was married in 1888 to Miss Eula Scruggs, of Blytheville, Ark. She and two sons survive him. Brother Rutledge was admitted on trial into the White River Conference in December, 1883. He served the following charges: Tyronza, Buffalo Island, St. Francis, Chickasawba, Lorado, Gainsville, St. Francis, Jamestown, Cushman, Shiloh and Harrisburg Circuits. In 1897 he took a superannuate relation, and held either this or the supernumerary relation the rest of his life, except in 1905-6 he was on the effective list and served Shiloh and Harrisburg Circuits. He served several charges in Mississippi County during these years when he was on the supernumerary list. Brother Rutledge had been a great sufferer for the past two years. He was ready and anxious to go and be at rest. He had been a true and useful man, and had won many to Christ. He was a good preacher, and he had not been able to do what he wanted to do; but he never lost interest in the work. He loved the Church; he loved good men. He has gone to join the great company above. We shall see him some sweet day.—A. E. Holloway.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? M. P. Ferrell, W. T. Lambert. 2.

W. T. LAMBERT.—There is a mysterious charm about the whole personality of a genuinely good man. Such a one, however modest, is easily known; and if he be of a warm, genial, and loving nature, the world of humanity responds to his affection with a wealth of love. The heart of a man far more than his head determines his real friendships, his influence, his usefulness. The sunlit disposition, the spirit of invincible optimism in union with transparent purity, are the currents that charge the human magnet and render a really unselfish soul irresistible to the heart of his world. Such a man was the Rev. W. T. Lambert. He was the soul of honor, the embodiment of sunshine, the incorporation of unselfish love, the incarnation of genuine piety and devotion to duty. He moved not among the great of the earth—his lot was cast with the common people; but he held them with hooks of steel, not that he might profit merely by their friendship, but that he might lead them to his Lord. He belonged to the people, was their servant unto the uttermost, but he was so because he was first the servant of God. As ambassador of the Heavenly King, he realized that he was bearing the message of reconciliation to the enemies of the kingdom; and in life and word, in the whole loving soul of him, he was the embodiment of that glorious message. Brother Lambert was born in Muscogee County, Ga., January 5, 1853. At that critical period in our country's history educational advantages were extremely difficult to the most fortunate boy; to the poor boy they were practically impossible. His mother died when he was eight years old. His father married again, but himself died when the boy was twelve. His stepmother was a noble Christian woman, but had been left with little means of support, and young Lambert was compelled to spend his early life in helping to win bread for the family. However, he was hungry for knowledge, and used every period of rest from his work in reading the good books of his own home and of the homes of his neighbors. His winter evenings were his school days, the bookshelves of the entire community were his library, and the great men of the past were his teachers, by means of all of which he secured a rather uncommon education. The man in him would not be conquered by the storms of the circumstance. Brother Lambert's stepmother, through the strength of her own consecrated life, maintained in her home an atmosphere of the deepest piety. Under her influence and instruction, at the age of eighteen he was converted and joined the Methodist Church. I have often heard him speak in terms of the warmest filial love, admiration, and gratitude of this noble handmaiden of God. Young Lambert had hardly become conscious of his divine sonship in that miracle of the ages that we rightly call regeneration, when he began to hear in the depths of his spirit the same voice that the great Isaiah heard, "Whom shall we send? and who will go for us?" He did not answer,

"Here am I; send me." His lack of education, his native timidity, the mightiness of the message, its awful meaning to the very destiny of men, compelled him to hesitate. He was insufficient for the task. He could with great difficulty believe that God meant the call for him. Strange how patient God is with our doubting and disobedience! He calls, and even the earnest soul cannot understand his voice. He calls on through the years—just a gentle whisper deep in the heart, unobtrusive but persuasive—and if perchance at length one hears, he vouchsafes the revelation of his will as though there had been no hesitation. The voice of God did not die in the heart of W. T. Lambert for twenty-two years. At the age of forty he was licensed to preach, after which for twenty years he scarcely missed a Sunday on which he did not tell the story of the Cross. He was a local preacher without a regular pastorate for nine years, and served as supply for eleven years. When not in the pastorate, every pulpit in his section of the State was open to him, and the people heard him gladly. As a pastor he was a man of power. Any presiding elder who knew him was only too anxious to have him in his district. His people loved him with unstinted devotion. Six years of his pastoral work were in Muscogee County, where he had lived from his birth. He was a prophet not without honor even in his own country. He could have remained on the Baxley Circuit for twenty years, so far as his acceptability was concerned. He was not a brilliant sermonizer, but he was a plain, sensible, and thoughtful preacher, and his messages were in demonstration of the Spirit and in power. He led men to Christ. W. T. Lambert was an ideal man in his home. He was firm, but kind, gentle, companionable. He was first married to Miss Hassie Moon, of Harris County; and of this wedlock were born eight children, four of whom survive him. He was married in 1893 to Miss Mamie Hill, who with a bright little daughter survives him. He made a temple of worship of his home. He was a man of highly emotional nature—I have often heard him shout the praises of God; but his life was the true expression of his piety. His children knew that he was a stainless man of God—his character was irresistible; of course they have given their lives to Christ and the Church. He lived with his children, and found his chiefest earthly joy in the companionship of his family.

He played with his boys, walked with them in wood and field, and tactfully talked to them of noble living and of the service of God. They now rise up with truly grateful hearts to call him blessed. These loved ones now living and bereaved are his wife and little daughter, at present in Baxley, Ga.; Rev. T. O. Lambert, of our Conference; Mr. J. F. Lambert, of Americus, a prominent young educator of the State; Mrs. J. Wilson Glass, of Octagon, Ala.; and Mrs. J. T. Summerlin, of Linden, Ala. This devoted wife and these noble sons and daughters in their sorrow have not been forgotten by the Church. A signal honor, merited by his character and service, was paid to Brother Lambert last winter by our Conference. It will not be many years, said the brethren, until he must lay down his labors. When that time shall come, he must have the name and office of a superannuate itinerant. I believe that an archangel, if he could exhaust his supernatural strength in sacrificial toil, would be glad to have his name inscribed on the honor roll of superannuate Methodist itinerants. He was unusually old—men of his age seldom join the Conference—but we gladly took him, because he had won a place among us. I wish that he could have lived to be admitted into full connection. He would have passed every examination. W. T. Lambert was not accustomed to fail, and he never was known to shirk a duty. But he was discontinued—not because he did not do his work, not because he lacked the spirit or temperament of an itinerant, but because God had a better appointment for him. I do not know whether it is a circuit or a station, but I do know that it is an eternal and a glorious opportunity. This is the record of his life in outline—eighteen years of childhood, twenty-two years of faithful service as a layman, nine years a local preacher, eleven years a supply and a real pastor, eternity in glory.—C. R. Jenkins.

M. B. FERRELL was born in Hampton County, S. C., March 16, 1860, and died in the city of Waycross, Ga., January 14, 1914. Brother Ferrell had been ill for some time at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. P. Christian, before his departure. Brother Ferrell was married to Miss Minnie Claud Bell in Webster County, Ga., in his early manhood. His wife died some time before he did. He was converted in September, 1879, under the ministry of Rev. R. B. Bryan, and licensed to preach by Rev. John B. McGehee soon after. He was admitted into the South Georgia Conference on trial in 1883. It has been impossible to get the appointments that he served. His first charge was Sumner Circuit, and his last was Roberta Circuit in the Macon District. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Wilson at Brunswick in December, 1885, and ordained elder by Bishop McTyeire in December, 1887, at Sandersville. Brother Ferrell had four children; two died in infancy. His son, Mr. Flanders K. Ferrell, and daughter, Mrs. W. P. Christian, live at Waycross. Brother Ferrell served the Conference for about thirty years. Many of his brethren speak kindly of his faithful ministry. Dr. John B. McGehee says: "It was my pleasure to be intimately associated with Rev. M. B. Ferrell from his admission into the Conference to the last months of his life. On several occasions he was in my district. A long acquaintance with him allows me to bear witness that he was a consecrated Christian gentleman and a successful minister of the gospel of more than ordinary ability."

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? They were called, one by one, and their characters passed.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? M. W. Manville. 1.

MATHEW WILLIAMS MANVILLE was born in the Dominion of Canada, April 30, 1843. He grew to manhood, was married, settled in business, and spent the major portion of his life in his native land; but as those who will read this memoir are chiefly interested in that portion of his life which was lived among us, we have not taken the pains to gather any further information concerning his early history. Having lost his first wife, he was married to Miss Caroline Strong, of Rogers Park, Ill., July 26, 1882. Three children were born to this union, two of whom died in early life. The third, a son, now some sixteen years of age, lives to perpetuate his father's name and to be the chief earthly source of comfort and support for his widowed mother. About the year 1885 Brother Manville came to Arkansas and settled near the town of Alexander. He identified himself fully with the life of his adopted State and nation, and became a loyal and patriotic citizen. During the first few years of his residence in Arkansas he was employed as editor of the agricultural department of the Arkansas Gazette. He was an expert in the matter of scientific farming, and was enthusiastically in love with his profession. The law creating the present Bureau of Mines, Manufactures, and Agriculture was drafted under his oversight, and he was chiefly instrumental in securing its adoption by the legislature. But God had more important work for him to do, and he came out of the shadow of a great sorrow, caused by the death of a much-loved child, with a renewed and deepened spiritual life and with a clear call to the work of the gospel ministry ringing through every avenue of his soul. To heed that call meant to give up congenial employment, a lucrative salary, and a little farm that had become the joy and pride of his life. But he "was not disobedient to the heavenly vision"; and after receiving advice and encouragement from his heroic and consecrated wife, he laid his life upon the altar of the Church for the work to which he was assured he had been divinely called. He was licensed to preach by the Quarterly Conference of Collegeville Circuit, June 28, 1889, Ezekiel N. Watson being the presiding elder and W. H. Scott the secretary. He was admitted on trial in the Little Rock Conference at the session of 1891; was ordained deacon by Bishop Wilson at Magnolia, Ark., December 11, 1892; and elder by Bishop Haygood at Lonoke, December 9, 1895. He served Benton Station as a supply during the year preceding his admission on trial into the traveling connection, and was reappointed to that charge for two consecutive years. From Benton he was sent to Lonoke, where he remained three years; from there to De Vall's Bluff, where he served two years; then to De Queen, where he remained four years and did a monumental work. At the close of his quadrennium in De Queen he was appointed to Malvern Avenue, Hot Springs, where after one year of service he asked for and received a transfer to the New Mexico Conference and was appointed to Albuquerque Station. Finding that the climate of New Mexico did not prove beneficial to Sister Manville, for whose sake the change had been made, he returned to the Little Rock Conference and was again appointed to Malvern Avenue, Hot Springs, where he remained for four years. From that charge he was appointed to Carr Memorial, Pine Bluff, which he served for two years; from which place he was sent to Sheridan, where he continued three years, and where he closed his active ministry in November, 1913, after twenty-three years of unbroken service in the pastorate. From the beginning to the very close of his ministry he was eminently successful, and was most highly esteemed both as a preacher and as a pastor. He was richly endowed both by nature and grace, and every faculty and power of his full, strong life was consecrated to this one work. He was a diligent student of the best books, and his personal library is regarded as one of the best in our Conference. His mind was vigorous, alert, and strong, and he was careful that his mental faculties should not grow rusty by reason of disuse. But while he read much, he was no cloistered devotee of books. He loved men with all the wealth of his noble and generous nature, and the charm of the library could not win him from daily touch and companionship with the people. Who that knew him can ever forget the charm of his personality as it was revealed in the social circle? His humor was irrepressible, and his spirit was as sunny and as genial as springtime in its most alluring moods. His sympathies were as deep and as tender as a woman's, and his charity for the erring and the unfortunate was closely akin to that of his Lord. With Christlike love and compassion he sought out the wayward and the wandering and drew them by the cords of his love to a better life. He loved his brethren in the ministry, and was loved by them with singular devotion. They were his comrades, and his favorite designation of them was "the boys." This revealed the soldier instinct in his heart. In common with them he was "fighting the good fight of faith." He was loyal to the traditions and ideals of the itinerant ministry, and no man ever had occasion even to suspect him of seeking for place or preferment among his brethren. If he ever felt aggrieved because of any appointment given him, no man ever knew of such grievance. For some years before the end came he had been in failing health. Toward the close of 1912 he felt that his work was done, and prepared to ask for a superannuate relation; but the people of Sheridan begged him to serve them another year, and he yielded to their importunities. By the close of 1913 increasing infirmities warned him that he was compelled to rest, and he asked for and was granted the superannuate relation. Anticipating his retirement from the active work, he had, with the assistance of kind friends, built for himself and family a small cottage in Hot Springs, to which place he at once returned. His mind and heart were full of the little home, and he gave himself enthusiastically to the work of finishing the house and beautifying the premises; but the Saviour was preparing for him a better home in "the house not made with hands." Tuesday evening, July 7, 1914, he gently breathed his last, and his gentle, patient, loving spirit went home to God. He was buried from the Third Street Methodist Church in Hot Springs. People from all the walks of life came to honor his memory and drop a tear over his casket. Just before he breathed his last he had said to those about his bedside: "Write on my tombstone, Manville loves people." One of the leading daily papers of the city made these words the text of a beautifully written homily on his life, saying at the close: "The people loved Manville." How true these words are was attested not only by the large company of people who came to weep at his grave, but by countless expressions of love and sympathy which came to the sorrowing wife and son from every part of our State, and from beyond its borders. Many of the leading secular papers of the State vied with each other in paying tribute to his memory. His end was triumphant. For many days he knew the messenger of death was near. He arranged every detail of his funeral; gave final counsels to his wife and son about many matters, and sent messages of love and assurance to many friends. Over and over again he said to the preachers who called to see him: "Tell my brethren it's all right; the way is clear; I am ready." To one he said: "I am not skirmishing for light, but the light is here." Brother, comrade, friend, farewell! We shall miss the cordial grasp of your hand, the subtle play of your humor, and the loving sympathy of your great, warm, tender heart; but we shall cherish your memory, and hope to meet you again in the land where we never grow old and where disease and death never come.—J. A. Sage.

Wilson, W. C. Winn, G. R. Whittaker, J. N. Wright. 28.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? William B. Baker, N. Bowen Clarkson, George M. Boyd. 3.

NATHANIEL BOWEN CLARKSON was born on John's Island, S. C., September 23, 1839, and fell on sleep June 1, 1914, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Allen Huggins, of Florence, S. C. Brother Clarkson was the youngest child of Dr. W. N. and Margaret O. Clarkson. His parents were members of the Episcopal Church, and it was in this Church that he was consecrated to God in baptism. He was reared in this Church by a consecrated Christian mother, to whom he was largely indebted for the success he achieved in after life. Our brother was educated in various common schools and academies, and also spent a while at

Wofford College preparatory school, but, like many other worthy young men of his time, his education was cut short by the War Between the States. He served through this war, most of his time as assistant engineer on works around Charleston, S. C., and with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's engineer corps in Georgia. He was faithful during all his army life as he was in his later life as a minister of Christ. Brother Clarkson was married on December 31, 1862, to Miss Laura V. Gordon, of Williamsburg County, S. C. To this union was born nine children, five of whom are still living: Rev. G. Floyd Clarkson, Mrs. J. Allen Huggins, Thomas B. Clarkson, Miss Anna Clarkson, and D. Marvin Clarkson. In early life Brother Clarkson felt a call to preach, but resisted, shrinking from the awful and solemn duties of the office. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Sumter, S. C., in 1851, under the preaching of the Rev. Colin Murchison. The call of God to preach came so strongly and so insistently that he was forced to yield. He was licensed to preach at the first Quarterly Conference of the Gourdin's Circuit at Asbury Chapel, March 14, 1877—Rev. W. C. Power, presiding elder. His active ministry was begun as supply on Gourdin's and Sampit circuits. He was admitted on trial into the South Carolina Conference at Marion, S. C., December, 1880; ordained deacon by Bishop Wightman at Charleston, S. C., January 4, 1881; and on December 21, 1884, ordained elder by Bishop McTyeire at Charleston, S. C. Personally Brother Clarkson was a man of the highest type of Christian character. He was a Christian gentleman in every sense of the word. His neatness in dress and personal appearance was an index to his soul. No coarse expression ever passed his lips. He had nothing but kind words and kind wishes for his brethren. His was a loving and lovable soul, and those who knew him best loved him most. To know him was to love him. Brother Clarkson was an excellent preacher. Of close studious habits, his sermons were always instructive and helpful. His style was simple, plain, straightforward, and logical. He knew Christ experimentally, and loved to tell the "old, old story of Jesus and his love." The last Sunday but one of Brother Clarkson's life was spent in the pulpit. As a pastor he was faithful, as a friend true. This world is better because this gentle, sweet-spirited, Christian man has lived in it. He has fought the good fight, he has finished his course, he has kept the faith; therefore, we trust and believe that he has received his crown.—George C. Leonard.

WILLIAM BENNETT BAKER was born in Marion County, S. C., November 1, 1841, and departed this life March 5, 1914, after a lingering illness of several months. Brother Baker did not have the opportunity of acquiring a finished education on account of the War Between the States. He bravely answered the call of his State, serving gallantly throughout the entire four years, thus depriving himself of attending college. From early boyhood young Baker felt that preaching would be his life's work, and while making the charge at Bull Run and retreating at Appomattox this impression was still fixed in his mind. In 1860 he was soundly converted, and it was not long after this that he heard the unmistakable call to the ministry. To this he did not yield at once, but under the effects of a powerful sermon preached by the Rev. J. M. Boyd he made the final decision, and was admitted to the South Carolina Conference at Charleston, in December, 1884. For twenty-nine years Brother Baker faithfully and diligently served his Master, preaching as a dying man to a dying people. His sermons were purely evangelical, and were delivered with such force and power that during his ministry multitudes of people were caused to repent of their sins and live Christlike lives. During this time he served the following appointments: Bayboro Circuit, 1885-6; Johnsonville Circuit, 1887-9; Lake City Circuit, 1890-3; Scranton Circuit, 1894; Lamar Circuit, 1895; Green Street and Brookland, Columbia, 1896-8; Brightsville Circuit, 1899-1902; Blenheim Circuit, 1903-6; Latta Circuit, 1907-10; North Mullins, 1911; Timmons ville, 1912. Our dear brother was faithful until the end, filling appointments until just a few months before his death. He preached his last sermon at Old Johnsonville Church, though frail in body, but strong in mind. He was a true hero, for he stood firm in his convictions, never shirking his duty, and was always ready to answer the call of any one in need or distress. And so having made his last round and having fought his last battle, this child of God stood ready to answer the summons triumphantly.—P. B. Ingraham.

GEORGE MCPHERSON BOYD.—“When the day of Pentecost was fully come, . . . there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men out of every nation under heaven.” Here is the principle of “spiritual,” if not “natural, selection”; and the fact that it was picked men from all lands that furnished the converts for that occasion had much to do with the immediate, phenomenal spread of the kingdom. George McPherson Boyd was the son of the widely known and much-beloved Methodist local preacher Mark M. Boyd and his wife, Elizabeth Epting. An older brother preceded him into the itinerant ministry and a younger one followed him, while other members of the family possessed spiritual gifts that made them signally useful. George Boyd, therefore, came of good stock. Born in Newberry County, S. C., September 17, 1837, and educated in the country schools, he joined the South Carolina Conference in December, 1870. For thirty-four years he served circuits and stations in various parts of the State until failing health compelled his superannuation in 1904. Then for nearly ten years at his little home in Spartanburg, in much weakness and affliction, he demonstrated that “they also serve who wait.” It was my good fortune to be his junior preacher on the Bennettsville Circuit in 1889. As a man and as a minister I knew him intimately, and I pay sincere tribute to the beautiful character of the one and the great usefulness of the other. His character was transparent. Gentle, retiring, modest, he was never assertive of his own rights, but illustrated the “love that seeketh not its own.” Affectionate and warm-hearted in disposition and bright and genial in spirit, he laid his attractive social gifts under tribute in his pastoral work to win men for his Lord. I had the best of opportunities to know him as a preacher, and I knew him to be strong and effective. His analytical power was unique, his development of his text always original, all his utterances bore the stamp of his own individuality, and the people always heard him gladly. He was a man of great faith, who depended implicitly on the endowment of the Holy Spirit for results in his ministry. He was perhaps at his best in revival meetings, where he often preached with great power as well as tenderness, and possessed, as few men have, the power of persuading men to accept Christ. And so signally did God honor his ministry, it was given him to receive more than twenty-five hundred people into the membership of the Church. The preachers that make up a Methodist Conference constitute a close-knit brotherhood. Chosen by the Church's one Great Head, prosecuting the same holy calling, actuated by the same high motives, and struggling toward the same home at last, they share each other's struggles and enter into each other's joys and sorrows very much as children in the same home. When George Boyd joined the South Carolina Conference he entered this brotherhood as a loyal member. He never sought the easy places, if there be such. Many of his fields were large and difficult, but he received all his Conference assignments without complaining. When he laid his armor down there passed over the river another of the men whose lives have contributed to the splendid history and honored traditions of our Church. He was one of those who with gentleness of life and strength of faith established the Church in the rural districts of South Carolina, when the conditions under which his ministry was performed offered few of the conveniences and comforts of the present day. Of those earnest men who labored with him nearly a half century ago, few now survive; but their deeds live after them, and their examples of flaming zeal and self-sacrifice are the priceless heritage of the Church of to-day. Brother Boyd was twice married—first to Miss Mary Jane Thompson, of Newberry County, and then to Miss Corrinne Anderson, of Laurens. Seven children were born of the first marriage, and one of the second. His last years were quietly spent in Spartanburg, where those who came to know him as a veteran of the Cross who had borne his burden in his day, and watched his patient and beautiful submission to affliction, cherish the memory of his gentleness and kindness, and are strengthened in their faith by the example of his Christian faith. And there, surrounded by all his family, on the afternoon of September 28, as peacefully as an infant falling asleep in its mother's arms, he passed to his reward.—R. E. Stackhouse.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, in open Conference, and their characters examined and passed.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Thompson. 25.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Henry Trawick, John R. Peavy, William D. Owens. 3.

HENRY TRAWICK was born at Marvyn, Russell County, Ala., October 13, 1868, and died in Montgomery, Ala., December 14, 1913. His father was Moses Trawick, and his mother's maiden name was Annie Buchanan. Of his father's family only a brother, Leonard M. Trawick, of Opelika, Ala., and a sister, Miss Byrd Trawick, resident at Berlin, Germany, are living. He married Miss Ethel Mae Phillips, of Marianna, Fla., April 12, 1894, and his wife and three children—Henry Phillips, Maggie Phillips, and William Douglass—are living. His preparatory training was in a select school in Opelika, Ala., Rev. D. M. Banks, of sainted memory, principal. He graduated from the Southern University, Greensboro, Ala., and later took a course in the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. He was licensed to preach in Greensboro on March 29, 1888, Dr. T. F. Mangum, presiding elder. His parchments show that he was ordained deacon by Bishop Granbery on November 20, 1890, and elder by Bishop Hargrove on December 17, 1892. His first service was as supply at St. Luke's, Columbus, Ga., during a college vacation. He was recommended by the Quarterly Conference of the Romulus Circuit, Tuscaloosa District, and admitted on trial in the North Alabama Conference on November 14, 1888, and appointed to the Kennedy Circuit, and then to the South Decatur Mission. He was admitted into full connection on November 21, 1890, and appointed tutor at Southern University, Greensboro, Ala. He was located, at his own request, December 5, 1891. He was admitted into the Alabama Conference in December, 1892, with elder's orders. He served in this Conference as pastor at Marianna, Demopolis, Greenville, Marion, Tuskegee, Troy, Perry Street, Greensboro, and Court Street. When Dr. J. M. Mason died, early in 1909, Brother Trawick was appointed in his stead presiding elder of the Montgomery District by Bishop Hoss. For two years he edited the Alabama Christian Advocate, Birmingham, Ala., and at the time of his death was serving a second quadrennium as a member of the General Board of Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. He was the author of a helpful book, "Revivalism." During his second year's effective service as pastor at Court Street, Montgomery, he was granted a vacation for rest and recuperation, his active work in this heavy charge having caused him loss of nervous force. At the coming Conference he was superannuated for one year. At the Conference in December, 1912, he accepted the agency of the Superannuate Home cause; and at the Conference at Dexter Avenue, Montgomery, December 5, 1913, he was appointed presiding elder of the Dothan District by Bishop Hendrix, but died at the home of Mr. F. A. Flowers, at Montgomery, before leaving the city after his appointment. These facts and figures chronicle the main events in his too brief career. The real spiritual work in the lives of many can never be computed. Personality eludes definition. There are no duplicates from similar elementary powers, but in each is a distinct note. He was of ardent temperament and alert in his mental powers. Striking in appearance, graceful in manner, and affable in association, he was an attractive person. Born of good parentage, reared in a home of culture and piety, he was a real gentleman. His childhood unfolded in our Church, his boyhood was molded by its teachings, and his manhood consecrated to its service. Intimacy breeds contempt in unreal lives, but those who knew him best loved him most. His intense nature fixed few limitations in any pursuit of his life. Anything worth while espoused by him made him unmindful of any lack of physical endurance. The quest of his pursuits absorbed his whole sympathy, and he saw the goal from the beginning. Such optimism as was evidenced by him in his last years is rarely given to man. His absorbing interest and enthusiastic pastoral enterprises so gripped him that, while his brilliant mind was as clear as a bell, he was unconscious of failing physical powers. He had a genius for friendships. His richest inspiration was at friendship's sacred shrine. He gave all and expected no reserve in his personal friendships. When he opened his warm, "boylike" heart to kindred souls, he "grappled them to his soul with hoops of steel." Nothing so wounded his confiding nature as did any seeming inconstancy of friends. He prepared for his pulpit. His preaching was strengthened by fellowship with the great authors. His library is a surprise and a tribute to the taste of the owner. His mental aptitude for the æsthetic enriched his soul with the beautiful. Chaste and ornate, his pulpit deliverances utterly lacked anything savoring of harshness or coarseness. His sermonic effort ranged in the Pauline thought, "the love of Christ constraineth us." His brilliant mind enabled him to twine choice gems and epigrams into his discourses. The note of really great preaching was often recognized, and one friend said, "Henry Trawick is one of the brightest sons of Methodism." He lived in the upper chamber of the palace beautiful, and is no stranger in heaven. When his sweet spirit winged its flight to glory and to God, it was realizing what his faith had pictured. Self-impartment is the supreme test of greatness. He could impart the enthusiasm of his soul and lead others to enterprise that which he saw in vision. At several places he perfected plans that resulted in the erection of magnificent houses of worship. These are monuments in brick and stone to his zeal and leadership. His taste in church architecture was unique, and in the construction of church edifices he gave expression to modern ideals. He was preëminent in the ministry of consolation to those in the shadows. None ever forgot his message when hearts were bleeding. Perhaps the real test of the ministry is ability to impart faith that will give strength in suffering rather than to assuage sorrow. In the death-chamber the strengthening of his ministry is recalled by scores with holy joy. His domestic life was sacred. Always a devoted husband and true father, we leave the veil to that little circle where he always kept it. His wife was a great factor in his life. To those who lived in soul-touch with him there was a growing gentleness and sweetness in the latter months. The Lord and Master was more fully enthroning in his life and attuning it to the Father's will. The autumn gold in the grain is the harbinger of harvest. His life appears incomplete, but "on earth a broken arc, in heaven a perfect round."—J. M. Dannelly.

JOHN ROBERTS PEAVY, second son of Bartlett and Rosa J. Peavy, was born in Wilcox County, Ala., January 23, 1850; joined the Church while young, under Rev. Anson West; and married, May 23, 1880, Miss Fannie M. Watson, who, together with their six children, three sons and three daughters, still lives. When a mere boy his father died while a soldier in the Civil War, leaving him and five other children to be cared for by his mother. This meant a severe struggle during hard times, and his educational advantages were limited; but a strong mind eager for learning made up largely for this lack. In December, 1875, he was received on trial into the Alabama Conference; and in December, 1907, at Enterprise, Ala., he was granted the superannuate relation, which relation he sustained to the time of his death at Thomasville, Ala., May 25, 1914. The active ministry of our departed brother comprised the following charges: Cuba Circuit, 1875; Eutaw Station, 1876; Tallassee and Tabitha Chapel, 1877-8; Tallassee Station, 1879; Salem Circuit, 1880-2; Greenville Station, 1883; Loachapoka Circuit, 1884-7; Orrville Circuit, 1888; Greensboro District, 1889-91; Pensacola District, 1892-3; Union Springs District, 1894-7; Eufaula District, 1898-9; Selma District, 1900-02; Brundidge Circuit, 1903-06. We see from the list of his appointments that he served circuits, stations, and districts. This active ministry extended through thirty years, and included a variety of ministerial labors. In all of them he performed every duty devolving upon him. Yea, in every sphere of life he measured up to its every requirement. As son, husband, father, friend, citizen, pastor, preacher, he was true; and when his labors and sufferings ended and his spirit entered that land of rest whose inhabitants shall never say, "I am sick," we feel sure that his Lord said, "Well done, good and faithful servant." The burdens which he was called upon to bear in boyhood and early manhood helped to develop every power with which his Creator had endowed him, and he entered upon his life work with a momentum that carried him through his labors with marked success. His powers, solidified by the blows received early in life's practical school and sharpened and polished by its friction, made him a master workman in his calling. He never went into the Lord's house without carrying with him "beaten oil," which had first filled his own heart and glistened upon his own locks before he poured it upon the heads of his people. I have never known a preacher to make more thorough preparation for the pulpit than he. His ideal of a sermon was of the highest order, and to meet this ideal he called into use every power of body, mind, and soul. A triple draft was made upon his personality which was exhausting in the highest degree. Added to his severe process of preparation was his method of delivery. The finished product of the study must not be marred by imperfect presentation from the pulpit. The polished shafts in the quiver of this archer must be shot with strength and accuracy from his bow. They must find the mark for which they were fashioned. If this were his purpose, it was fully met; for his arrow, dipped in the "balm of Gilead," found lodgment in the minds and hearts of hearers, not to kill but to make alive. This ambassador of heaven's King made his spirit breathe and burn in his message and go through his audiences like a heavenly gale or burn there like a celestial flame. Listening to him, believers were edified, backsliders were reclaimed, sinners were convicted and converted. Had he been less exacting of himself and more easily satisfied with his pulpit productions, he doubtless would have lived and labored longer; but would his work have been so excellent? Thirty years were allotted for his active labors, and this is a long period for a workman with his rapid and skillful stroke to be permitted to toil. At Brother Peavy's funeral a presiding elder remarked: "It is a pity that Brother Peavy did not leave his sermons in a form to benefit his family and to be accessible to the preachers of the Alabama Conference." Yes; it does seem a waste that sermons so carefully wrought out should have their influence confined largely to those who heard them. But so modest, so self-distrustful was he that he underrated himself and his work; and I feel sure that it was his wish that his spoken words should remain in the hearts of those who heard them, as seed sown in good soil awaiting the time of harvest, with which harvest he will by and by be abundantly rewarded. While our brother's work ended at the close of about thirty years of active service, he was permitted to live on for seven years, during which time his life was closed as far as the pulpit was concerned—his throne of power. John the Baptist was permitted to preach for six months, and then was kept in prison for twelve months. Eternity alone can tell which was the more useful period of John's life—that in the open air, calling multitudes to repentance, or that in Herod's prison, where he could speak to only a few of his disciples. Eternity alone can tell which is the more useful period in the life of Rev. John R. Peavy—that of the thirty years when, with a silver trumpet to his lips, he sounded God's jubilee, or that of the seven years of his life when he sat amid the shadows and suffered God's will. "And one of the elders answering said unto me, Who are these that are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they who came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." If my vision is so cleared that I can see the great throng that John saw while on the isle of Patmos, I expect to see in that throng my friend and brother, the kind, sympathetic presiding elder of my early ministry.—O. C. McGehee.

WILLIAM DANIEL OWENS.—June, 1844, marked the beginning and Tuesday, October 27, 1914, the ending of the useful and beautiful life of this servant of the Church, this saint of God. He was by birth a Floridian, his birthplace being in Washington County, Fla.; and it was in Florida that he spent some twenty years of his active ministerial life, and from his home, near Wausau, Fla., he heard the summons of the Master to enter upon the higher, better life beyond. On December 16, 1866, he was married to Miss Priscilla King. Largely through the influence of his good wife he was converted and joined the Methodist Church in 1867, establishing at once the family altar, whose sacred flame never went out in his house. In these holy surroundings four children were reared to be Christian men and women, an honor to their parents and a proof of the truth of the promise to those who train their children in the nurture of the Lord. In 1871, under the presiding eldership of Rev. Angus Dowling, Brother Owens was licensed to preach. Three years he lived at Orange Hill, Fla., as a local preacher, being admitted on trial into the Alabama Conference at Opelika in 1874, and into full connection in 1876. His first appointment was the Big Creek Circuit. At the Conference of 1875 he was appointed to Echo Circuit, which he served two years. In 1877-9 his charge was Rutledge Circuit; 1880, Tuskegee Circuit; 1881-3, Elmore Circuit; 1884, Abbeville Circuit; 1885-6, Orange Hill Circuit; 1887-8, Greenwood Circuit; 1889-92, Orange Hill Circuit; 1893, Chipley Circuit. Thence he went for one year to Columbia Circuit, and then back to Greenwood, Fla., for two years. In 1896 he was appointed to Clopton Circuit; but at the Conference of 1897 he was sent back to Orange Hill, where he remained three years. In 1900 he was appointed to Greene Circuit, which he served four years. His remaining appointments were: Freeport Circuit, 1904; Headland Circuit, 1905; Orange Hill Circuit, 1906-7. At the Conference of 1908 he was granted the superannuate relation, and the remainder of his life (nearly six years) he spent at his home, near Wausau, Fla. Brother Owens has a remarkable record, in that during the years of his active ministry he never missed an Annual Conference nor a Quarterly Conference. Once only he failed to attend a District Conference, and that was caused by the illness of one of the members of his charge. While Brother Owens never filled any of the so-called big places in the Conference, his was a faithful and consecrated ministry. He was never heard to complain of his appointments; but with sweet spirit and in a kindly way he carried to the people not merely a gospel in word, but was himself a living witness of its truth and power. When we began to note the names of the presiding elders under whom Brother Owens's ministry was given, it seems as though we were reading a catalogue of the saints, for most of them have long since passed away. Among them were M. E. Butt, H. D. Moore, O. R. Blue, T. F. Mangum, J. M. Mason, H. Urquhart, J. M. Glenn, W. S. Wade, and A. J. Cousins. Among those who are still with us are C. B. Pille, J. P. Roberts, O. C. McGehee, and E. A. Dannelly. In sterling worth, in sweetness and purity of character, the Alabama Conference had no more noble man. His brethren mourn for him only because of the personal loss to us. He lived a life of that kind that grows brighter and sweeter up to the very end. His body lies in the cemetery at Chipley, Fla.; but Brother Owens is among the blood-washed throng who are in the presence of the King.—H. T. Strout.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters passed, except J. B. Airey, who was expelled from the ministry and membership of the Church, and C. H. Webster and Percy S. Hudson, who had withdrawn from the ministry.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? O. P. Thomas. 1.

O. P. THOMAS, son of Dr. J. P. Thomas and Eveline C. Thomas, was born at Blountsville, Ala., December 13, 1837, and died October 24, 1914, at Terrell, Tex. He was the seventh child of a family of sixteen, fifteen of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. The parents of this large family were both strong characters, and their greatest ambition was to rear their children for lives of usefulness and service. Theirs was a home where religion was taught and practiced, and it is not strange that all the children were members of the Church by the time they reached the age of sixteen years. Nor is it strange that this son was able to say that he was always respectful to his parents, never swore an oath in his life, was never intoxicated, and always tried to put himself on the right side of every moral issue. The early years of his life afforded but meager educational advantages, as there were no free schools in those days and there were few colleges and schools of high grade. Fortunately for his children, the father was an educated man, and to a large extent educated his children at home. By the time Brother Thomas was twelve years of age he could repeat by heart almost the whole of Kirkham's Grammar and had a good smattering of Latin. He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when he was fourteen years of age, and through all of his long life was true to his profession. In 1857 he was licensed to exhort. During the time he sustained this relation to the Church he held a prayer meeting at old Tabernacle Church in Fayette County, Ala., one Sunday evening when ten young men were converted, three of whom became preachers. He was licensed to preach in the summer of 1858, and joined the Alabama Conference that next fall at Eufaula. His first appointment was the De Kalb Circuit, in Kemper County, Miss. At the end of this year, 1859, he entered Summerfield College, where he remained until the outbreak of the Civil War. At the first call for troops he left college and joined the army in 1861. He served as first lieutenant of Company E in the Twenty-sixth Alabama Regiment. He was in the battles of Yorktown, Williamsburg, Seven Pines, and the seven days' battle around Richmond. He was severely wounded in that famous charge on Malvern Hill, where four-fifths of his regiment were killed or wounded. He was left on the battlefield, thought to be mortally wounded. When he was found next morning he was sent to the hospital at Richmond, where he remained nearly two months. He was considered unable to do military service any longer, so he left the army, where he had fought so bravely under Lee and Jackson. In the fall of 1862 he entered the Conference again, and was sent to the Elyton Circuit, and to the Bladen Springs Circuit in 1863. In 1864 he was sent to Big Sandy Circuit; was stationed at Meridian, Miss., in 1865 and 1866; at Gainesville, Alabama, in 1867, 1868, and 1869. While on the latter charge in 1867 he was married to Miss Hattie Bell. To this union four children were born, two of them passing away in infancy. Two boys, Sam and Marvin, survive him. Through all the years of his intinerancy his wife proved a true and faithful helper. At the organization of the North Mississippi Conference he fell in the bounds of that Conference, and was sent to Brooksville Circuit for the three years following. In the fall of 1873 he transferred to the Arkansas Conference, and was stationed at Dardanelle for three years. In 1876 he transferred to the North Texas Conference, and was sent to the Kaufman Circuit and served it four years—1876, 1877, 1878, and 1879; served Farmersville Circuit from 1880 until 1882; stationed at McKinney, 1883; at Floyd Street Station, Dallas, 1886 and 1887; Terrell Station, 1888 and 1889; Jefferson Station, 1890 and 1891. He was presiding elder of the Jefferson District in 1892, 1893, and 1894; appointed to Marshall District for 1895 and 1896; sent to Palestine District in 1897. In the fall of 1898 he was sent to Winnsboro for one year; then to Wolfe City Station for one year. In 1900, at the session of the Conference, he took the supernumerary relation and moved to Terrell. As a supply he served the College Mound Circuit three years. Brother Thomas was far above the average as a preacher. His sermons were the legitimate outgrowth of his texts. They were clear, logical, exegetical, and evangelical. He was one of the best pastors we have ever had in this Conference, and because of this fact his preaching ability was largely lost sight of. So often we have heard it said by those who knew him: "O. P. Thomas is the best pastor I have ever known." Brother E. W. Alderson, in his remarks at the funeral, said: "Brother Thomas was a well-rounded man in every part of his character; his only peculiarity was that he had no peculiarity." In his earlier ministry he was a great revivalist, and thousands were converted under his preaching. He was one of the most faithful and loyal preachers in the Church. He unswervingly met every duty, and always completed his work with credit to himself and the Church. He was a great lover of books, and was well informed in all that makes for intelligence. When twelve years old he had read "Plutarch's Lives," and at the age of fifteen had completed "Rollins's Ancient History." He was for fifty-seven years a minister of the gospel and for sixty-three years a consecrated member of the Church. It was the writer's privilege and fortune to know Brother Thomas for more than thirty years. My association with him has in every way been pleasant and profitable. His life was a real benediction to me and to all who knew him. On leaving him, one always felt that he had been associated with a man who was walking and living in the presence of God. The rich, the poor, all who knew him, loved him. He could often be found at the home of the distressed and sorrowful, with an open and ready hand to bless and help. He lived right, and his going away was as beautiful and peaceful as his life. We shall miss him, but we know where to find him, and will see him again. A large audience from Terrell and surrounding towns and country attended the funeral services at Terrell. Two brothers, Rev. O. S. Thomas, of the North Texas Conference, and a brother living in West Texas, together with many other relatives, mourn his departure. We bespeak the blessings of our heavenly Father upon all of the loved ones and friends. May the memory of his consecrated life ever be to them a blessing and an inspiration, and may they so live that the family circle may be unbroken in the sky. "Servant of God, well done."—C. B. Fladger.

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters passed, except that of J. O. Davis, who was expelled from the ministry and membership of the Church.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Robert J. Harp. 1.

ROBERT JAMES HARP, son of Luke and Ann Elizabeth Harp, was born in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., April 29, 1829, and died in Shreveport, La., July 24, 1914, at the ripe age of eighty-five years. He was deprived of both parents at a very early age, but not too early to have received a splendid endowment in character foundations. We are in possession of some very interesting circumstances of his childhood and youth, contained in a biographical sketch prepared by his daughter, the material of which was furnished by her father from memory. I quote as follows: "He grew and thrived, loved and petted by the two older brothers, for he was next to the youngest of four boys, three of whom became preachers as they grew to young manhood. His father lived only a few years after the birth of Robert, and his mother died when he was but seven years old. Knowing she could not live much longer, she gathered her four boys about her and gave them to God in prayer with the absolute confidence that he would be both father and mother to them. This prayer her boys never forgot. The little seven-year-old Robert won the hearts of his mother's friends; and an old friend, Colonel Morrow, when he knew the mother could not get well, begged that he be allowed to take the boy to his home, where he would treat him as one of his own children as long as he wished to stay." After his mother's death, Robert went to live with his foster-father. That "the child is father to the man" is illustrated by the incidents of his young boyhood that anticipate the character of his mature years. We see a foregleam of his gentleness in the incident which he remembered of playing in the woods, coming upon a little fawn which was not frightened at his approach; going up to it and putting his arms around its neck, the fawn followed him home and grew up in his father's pasture. We see the prophecy of his quenchless industry and independence of spirit in his early farm work and his ambition "to plow like a man" when only eight years of age; in his refusal to be dependent on others when eleven years old, and going out to work for himself; in his studying at night by a pine torch, and studying even while he plowed during the day, his speller in the plow-handle. When he was twelve years old, he and one of his brothers went to Mississippi to try raising cotton. They bought a piece of land in the Yazoo Valley, worked in the early morning and after school hours in the evening, and that year they sold their cotton in the field for $400. His life was a conspicuous refutation of the "wild-oats theory" of manhood. Before leaving the home of Colonel Morrow he had professed saving faith in Jesus and had become a member of the Church. In 1843, when he was only fourteen years of age, he felt that he must preach the gospel. He was licensed, and preached his first sermon in Yalobusha County, Miss., at this early age. He also applied for admission on trial to the Memphis Conference, which then included North Mississippi, but was considered too young. In the following year (1844), however, he was admitted and stationed at Pontotoc Circuit, Miss., and in 1845 he was appointed to Sunflower Circuit, Miss. His record as a minister of the gospel, in point of years, has scarcely been duplicated in the history of our Church. Beginning from the time when the child-prophet preached his first sermon, he was a minister for seventy-one years, a regular member of the itinerant ranks for seventy years, with only an intermission of a few years of local relation, which should not by any means be subtracted. Where is there such a record, and the whole of it fulfilled with painstaking, self-sacrificing, efficient service for the Master? The history of his itinerant ministry from 1844 is exactly contemporary with the history of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as a separate denomination, and practically also with the history of the Louisiana Annual Conference. In 1846 he was transferred to the Louisiana Conference, which at the General Conference of the same year had been separated from the Mississippi Conference. From the beginning this had been a difficult field, and men of heroic mold were needed. Robert Harp, now seventeen years of age, responded to the call and was present for duty at the organization of the Conference in Opelousas. The young preacher was appointed to Caddo Circuit, including the town of Shreveport. A small church-building had been erected before his coming, the only one in the place, but there had been no regular services. The church was soon organized as a station, and he was therefore the first station pastor of Shreveport, where he remained during 1847 and 1848. At this time there was practically no observance of the Sabbath as a day of rest, and general moral conditions were bad. He took great interest in the cause of temperance, and organized then Shreveport's first temperance society. In 1849 Brother Harp, by appointment, served the Alexandria charge; 1850-51, Baton Rouge; 1852-3, Thibodeau; 1854-5, Lake Providence; 1856, Waterproof and St. Joseph. During the years 1857-9 he was engaged in raising money for a church in New Orleans, and was successful in securing a large amount. Thus he was an early Church Extension Secretary, and New Orleans Methodism became his debtor. During the Civil War period, 1861-5, he was financial secretary and executive officer for the Louisiana Soldiers' Relief and Hospital Association, and also presiding elder of the Opelousas District. Quoting again from Mrs. Frater's sketch: "During this period Mr. Harp traveled on foot, or by horseback or buggy, through Louisiana and Mississippi, gathering supplies—clothing, sugar, cotton, and molasses—to be exchanged for clothing for the Louisiana boys in gray. He had the measure of caps, shoes, clothing, etc., for every member of the Louisiana regiments. He personally organized hospitals and cared for thousands of wounded soldiers, getting supplies and medicines for them from the country. After the fall of New Orleans and the loss of the base of supplies in that city, Mr. Harp was ordered to Georgia to see what could be done for relief and betterment of the conditions in the army. He organized the Tract Publication Society for the Confederate Army, and supplied the soldiers with intelligent reading matter and vest-pocket Testaments. He and his agents raised over $140,000; and he published the Army and Navy Herald, which had reached a circulation of twenty thousand copies a week, and was distributed free to the soldiers. The publishing house was located in Macon, Ga., and was in a high state of prosperity when it was burned by a Federal raid." From 1865 to 1868 he was pastor of Moreau Street Church, New Orleans, and agent for the Nashville Publishing House. It was during this pastorate that he met Miss Agnes Pennington, of Evansville, Indiana, who was an art student in New Orleans, to whom he was afterwards married, September 23, 1869. The marriage union proved a most happy and blessed one. During all the subsequent years of his itinerant ministry she was his most faithful and efficient helpmeet and inspiration, in times of adversity as well as in times of earthly joy. She preceded him to the heavenly shores by a little more than one year. Three daughters were born to them—Helen, now Mrs. (Dr.) F. J. Frater, of Shreveport; Agnes, deceased; and Bertha, now Mrs. J. E. Whitworth, also of Shreveport, in whose home Brother Harp passed away. In 1869 he was appointed by the General Conference, against his protest, agent for the Nashville House and publisher of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, in which work he continued until 1878. During this time, if the writer understands the facts, Brother Harp again showed his ability in raising funds by securing money for the establishment of the Methodist Depository of New Orleans. In 1878 the New Orleans branch of the Publishing House, which was in a prosperous condition, was heavily drawn upon by the Nashville House, to prevent failure, and the consequence was that both failed. Brother Harp was in the local relation from 1879 to 1883, spending his time in endeavoring to get a settlement from the Nashville House for the New Orleans creditors, supporting himself and family during this time as best he could. His voluntary absence from the itinerant ranks at this time is a tribute to his scrupulous and unselfish regard for business righteousness. In January, 1884, he was readmitted, and was stationed in Mansfield until 1887; 1887-90, Caddo Circuit; 1891-4, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, again residing in Shreveport. Our Father in heaven alone knows how, through all the intervening years, his early influence had extended, like a silver thread, from one generation to another. In 1895-8 he was pastor of Lake Charles Station; 1899, Jeanerette; 1900, Logansport charge; 1901, Texas Avenue,

Shreveport; 1902, Red River Circuit; 1903-04, Mooringsport; 1905-06, Ida Circuit; 1907, Bossier Circuit; 1908, Noel Memorial. Since this time he has been on our honor roll of retired veterans. His itinerant ministry touched at some time almost every section of the State, and has had a unique and profoundly interesting relation to the city of Shreveport. There is scarcely a spot in this section that has not felt his holy influence. His heart rejoiced to witness the material and moral progress of Shreveport, and was overjoyed to see the crowning achievement of the new edifice, successor of the little church on Market and Fannin. Brother Harp had a cyclopedic memory for the details of our history during the heroic period in this most difficult field of our Southern connection; and by patient research he had accumulated a great store of data, from which he was constructing a history of Methodism in Louisiana, which would have been invaluable, but which, alas! was destroyed by fire and cannot be replaced. It is not in accord with the writer's temperament to indulge in extreme praise of the living or the dead, but under the circumstances I feel that scarcely anything I might write that bears upon the life, labor, and character of Brother Harp would be in the nature of an overstatement or exaggeration. Even though I give full reign to my heart, it would be impossible for me to do even partial justice to the simple grandeur and dignity of our beloved father in Israel, who has now at last closed his earthly labors. In all his wonderful career he was never a seeker for place or position, and in this particular conserved the highest ideals of a Methodist itinerant preacher. He entered cheerfully every sphere or mode of service into which he was called, and with the most exacting and scrupulous fidelity discharged every task at whatever cost. He was a truly great man, after Christ's standard of greatness. He consecrated all of his powers, which were of no ordinary kind, to unselfish ends. So much like Christ in spirit has he seemed to me that I have felt unworthy to loose the latchet of his shoe. Those who knew him best are the readiest witnesses to these rare qualities. His heart was full of brotherly love, one of his own home testifying that "he did not even 'think evil.'" He lived the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians as few others of us do. He exhibited a rare serenity of life, which was not disturbed by the most crucial tests—not when the iron of adversity, for which others were responsible, entered his soul; not when cruel flames licked up the historic treasures of a lifetime; nor when death more than once entered his home. He belongs in the category of real sainthood; not of the mediæval type, for he rejoiced in friendships, social intercourse, and home companionship; not of the fanatic type, for he was chaste and temperate in speech, perfectly balanced in his emotions, and unusually wise and sane in all his conduct; not of the Pharisee type, for he was utterly unconscious of the rare beauty and fragrance of his life; not of the effeminate type, for he bore every mark of genuine manhood. It was really in his old age that we younger ministers knew him, and we bear witness that his life of physical and mental industry, of sacrificing devotion to the blessed gospel of Jesus, even during these years of increasing infirmity, puts us to shame. God help us to keep the faith of our fathers! He never did rest on his oars, very reluctantly giving up the active work, expecting to the very last to resume his preaching again—his wandering mind during his final illness still being burdened with the necessity of filling appointments to preach the everlasting gospel. Brother Harp's life is an assurance of immortality. Such a soul as his must inevitably continue to live and serve in a higher order. We may see him in the company of the redeemed who sing, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain!" He has gone by spiritual gravitation to his place among the immortals, close up to the apostles and prophets and the Son of Man himself. I will conclude this memoir by quoting the final paragraph of a beautiful tribute paid by Rev. S. J. Davies: "The ranks are thinning below and thickening above. The Christian warrior lives with his shield before him, and, when the call comes, dies upon it. No weapon formed against it shall prosper. It is more than Lacedæmonean courage that wins the victory in the lifetime struggle. The invisible enemy is often the mightiest to overcome. It is by a faith born of God and nurtured throughout the weary years. The great congregation of the redeemed has another accession, and the angels weave anew an amaranthine crown.

"So they pass from stage to stage, along the shining course

Of that fair river broadening like the sea.

Old sorrows are forgotten now,
Or but remembered to make sweet the hour

That overpays them."

—R. H. Wynn.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? Robert D. Norsworthy. 1.

ROBERT DRAUGH NORSWORTHY was born near Jackson, La., August 2, 1837, and died August 13, 1914. He had just passed his seventy-seventh birthday when the call came to enter into the rest prepared for the people of God. He was the son of Nile G. Norsworthy and Harriet Draugh. Robert was a lad just entering his teens when his father was converted and joined the Methodist Church. There was a wonderful transformation in his father's character and home—his parents becoming strong orthodox Methodists, believing in the old-fashioned class meeting, and rearing their children in an atmosphere redolent with prayer and song and loyal service to God. Home regulations became strict, and his and the other children's attendance upon the ordinances of the Church were compulsory. He thus grew to manhood a child of the Church, "trampling under foot that enthusiastic doctrine that we are not to do good unless our hearts be free to it." The last admonition he was heard to give a fellow-minister was, "We must never be sluggish, but stir ourselves to action." The early environment of a life largely decides its future course, and indeed its destiny. He was frequently heard to thank God for the rigid training of his father's Christian home, and we find there the springs which made his own life strong and really mighty for good. His education, which was commenced in the city schools of Jackson, La., was continued in the old Centenary College, from which institution he graduated. There is no authentic record of his college career, but that he was among the honor students is evidenced by the fact that he afterwards became a professor in his alma mater. He was licensed to preach by the Quarterly Conference of Jackson, La., in 1860, Barnabas Pipkin being presiding elder, and James L. Forsyth pastor in charge; and during the long service which followed that momentous act, neither he nor anybody else ever doubted the soundness of his conversion or the certainty of his call to the ministry. Doubt, with its raven wing, never darkened his spiritual horizon. To his eye of faith the heavens seemed always open, and the vision of his enthroned Lord the abiding inspiration of his private and public life. He was married to Miss Jennie C. Swayze on September 21, 1859; and after fifty years of happy married life, they celebrated their golden wedding at Natchez, Miss., September 21, 1909, Rev. John A. B. Jones officiating on both occasions. Eight children came to bless their household, four of whom still survive him—Rev. Thomas J. Norsworthy, of Yazoo City; Mrs. Clara C. Johnson, of Meridian; Mrs. Lizzie F. Durbin, of Yazoo City; and Mrs. Jessie B. Ligon, of Natchez, Miss. He was admitted on trial into the Mississippi Conference in Jackson, Miss., at the session which convened November 19-22, 1862. There were ten admitted at that session of the Conference—William E. Ballard, Robert D. Norsworthy, Thomas W. Flowers, William T. Ashford, James T. Burks, William Winans Drake, Joseph K. Hamblin, Sam K. Russ, and James N. Walker. His admission into full connection was at Crystal Springs in December, 1864, when he was ordained deacon by Bishop Paine. Ten years later he was ordained elder at Hazlehurst by the same sainted bishop. The exalted ideal which held him always in its grip is revealed by the following inscriptions, found in his own handwriting on the envelope containing his credentials, which though undated appear to have been written long ago: "If any of my children or my wife are alive at my death, I leave these to them. I have tried to be worthy of the ordination papers." What more blessed heritage could he have left them? Inviolable was his ministerial vow, and unsullied his character; and those papers were handed down to his family with never a stain nor a blot, and remain to-day as silent witnesses to a long life of faithful service to God and the Church. In the fifty-two years of his connection with the Mississippi Conference there was never a whisper against the good name of Robert D. Norsworthy. To him a good name was rather to be chosen than great honors at the expense of fidelity to principle and truth. His first appointment, which he served two years, 1863-4, was Buffalo Circuit, with W. B. Hines as his presiding elder. His next appointment was Macedonia and colored charge, which he served two years, 1865-6. Then for three years his name appears among the superannuates. Through an unfortunate misunderstanding, his presiding elder at the Conference of 1870, without his knowledge or consent, asked for and secured his location. He was readmitted in 1871 and appointed to Bayou Sara, La., which at that time was located in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference. Beginning with 1874, his appointments were as follows: Yazoo City, 1874-7; Canton, 1878-80; Meridian, 1881-4; Edwards, 1885; Meridian District, 1886-9; Brookhaven District, 1894-5; Jackson District, 1896-8; Natchez, 1899; Bay St. Louis, 1900; Ellisville, 1901-02; Brandon, 1903-04. He was superannuated at the Conference in 1904. Thus reads the record of his active ministry. It requires only a few sentences to write it and only a few minutes to recite it, but what varied experiences, what arduous labors, what immense responsibilities, what days of prayer and supplication as well as praise and thanksgiving, what sacrifices as well as honors, and how many human destinies were changed within the period of fifty-two years comprising his ministerial career! The Scriptures tell of a period in the early Church when there were giants in the land. Robert D. Norsworthy was born amid social and religious influences which produced men and women of giant purpose and character—a generation whose sturdy oak-like bodies reflected the power, endurance, and strength of their souls. It was the day of the old-fashioned circuit rider, whose preaching was with the authority of an unalterable belief in the infallible Word of God. When the travel-stained circuit rider entered a community, the people knew it was with a determined purpose to deliver a gospel bristling with the terrors of the law, but always accompanied with the proclamation of divine loving amnesty to all who would believe and repent. In that day repentance meant the complete separation of the life of the penitent from the world and all worldly amusements. Such was the preaching which led to the conversion of young Norsworthy, and he came into the Kingdom of Grace with a character like oak to resist the temptations of an alluring world, but like wax to receive the impressions of God's spirit. There were stalwart men in the Conference when he united with it—men who made their mark in both Church and State. There was Thomas Clinton, of whom it may be truly said, "He walked and talked with God"; Philip H. Napier, the tradition of whose oratory lingers among us to-day; Henderson H. Montgomery, gifted as a revivalist, and the bosom friend of Robert Norsworthy; William H. Watkins, whose analytical reasoning held the churches he served firmly in the grip of an orthodox faith; and last, but not least, Joshua T. Herd, whose heart was as big as his body, and his spirit as seraphic as the Apostle John's. But those with whom he was more intimately associated, who were his true yoke-fellows in the gospel, were F. M. Williams, Ransom J. Jones, W. B. Lewis, W. E. Ballard, J. M. Weems, and the brilliant Charles B. Galloway. Nearly all of his intimate collaborators in the gospel passed on ahead of him, and he was no stranger when he entered the Eternal City. In this group of distinguished Mississippians—barring, of course, the brilliant Bishop, who towered above all in his own Conference and measured the equal of any throughout the bounds of Methodism—Robert D. Norsworthy easily ranked with the best. He was every inch a man. He stood foursquare to every wind that blew. In his official capacity as presiding elder he was particularly happy in dealing with disgruntled men, and there are some who were kept from making serious mistakes by adhering to the wisdom of his counsel. He had in him many of the elements of a great character. His personal presence was striking. His face told the story of great thoughtfulness, intense earnestness, and frank, downright honesty. His splendid physique, patriarchal face, energetic manner, and clear, bell-toned voice attracted immediate attention in any body of men, either ministers or laymen. As a preacher he was a fervent expounder of the Word of God, making plain its meaning to the people, his perorations often being bursts of eloquence. The late Ransom J. Jones, who occupied a chair in the East Mississippi Female College while our lamented brother served the Meridian Station, himself a noted pulpit orator, said: "Robert Norsworthy is really a great preacher, his sermons from Sabbath being of a high order." Revival fires were kindled in every station and throughout the districts he served. He was, too, a strict disciplinarian. A layman of distinction, whose name is known throughout our Conference as one of our efficient leaders, attributes his present position in the Church to his courageous enforcement of the discipline against liquor selling by Church officials, and other worldliness, at a time when the temperance cause was unpopular. Yet there was not a more tender and sympathetic pastor than he, who seemed to feel in his own heart the sorrows of the flock he served. Three heart-rending tragedies shadowed his life, filling his cup of sorrow to the brim and bowing his soul to the very ground, but, though heart-broken, crying out, "All thy waves and thy billows have gone over me!" his faith in God never wavered. He was often heard to say that if he had his life to live over he would rejoice to be just what he was, an humble Methodist preacher. The hardships of the ministry never daunted him. One near and dear to him, who knew him better than any of us, gives the following as his estimate of his character: "He was great in prayer. He was blessed with a wonderful gift in approaching the throne of God. His prayers not only influenced the throne of God, but wonderfully impressed the congregation in the midst of which they were offered. Mention of some of these prayers has been frequently heard many years after they were offered. Not only was he 'great in prayer,' but he was much in prayer. His problems he literally took to the Lord in prayer. He spent much of his time on his knees. Tenderness was a striking characteristic with him. He was full of compassion for all suffering or troubled humanity. Sincerity was a part of his nature. He hated a sham. One of the most beautiful elements of his character was fidelity. To the Church, his home, his family, his friends, the truth, to them all he endeavored to be faithful—and was. He dearly loved his Bible, and read it much and systematically. In recent years, when he could read little, he would fondle the blessed Book. He experienced a simple yet rugged faith in the eternal verities. While well acquainted with the teachings of so-called higher criticism, he clung with a tenacity that was beautiful to the dear old Book, which is the bedrock of our holy religion and of our only hope. He literally had 'faith in God.' He was a devoted husband and father, a loyal and true friend. He dearly loved his brethren of the ministry and the great Church of which he was a faithful member and minister for more than half a century. He was a dear man, in thought and word." He was a pioneer in the Prohibition cause, doing valiant service in that important field. A great and good man has gone to his eternal reward. After making long itineraries through the State, after traveling large districts, and after serving many charges, the Lord graciously permitted his aged servant to spend his last days in the city where his early ministry was spent, and among those who knew and loved him best. During the last hours of his illness the tender ministrations of his aged widow, Mrs. Eugenia Norsworthy, and other members of his family and friends, and especially of his son, Rev. T. J. Norsworthy, were beautiful to behold. As he lay for several days hovering between heaven and earth, the room seemed to many a very Bethel. Fervent prayers were frequently offered, and by signs he made it known that the gates were ajar, and he was ready for eternal association with the Redeemer of his soul and the saints of the ages. He was buried from the Methodist church on Friday afternoon, August 14, at 3:30 o'clock, the pastor of the church being assisted in the service by Revs. H. B. Cottrell, T. B. Cottrell, W. M. Williams, R. F.

Witt, W. H. Lane, J. B. Crymes, and Rev. W. J. Caldwell of the Presbyterian church of Yazoo City. God buries his workmen, but carries on his work.

"Now the laborer's task is o'er,
Now the battle day is past;
Now upon the farther shore
Lands the voyager at last.
Father, in thy gracious keeping Leave we now thy servant sleeping."

Ques. 22. Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration? Their names were called, one by one, and their characters passed.

Ques. 23. What is the number of local preachers and members in the several circuits, stations, and missions of the Conference?

JAMES MORGAN SHERMAN, son of Morgan Dana and Amanda E. Sherman, was born in Lampasas, Texas, November 7, 1857. He departed this life in the sanitarium at Temple, Texas, February 10, 1914. At the early age of eleven years he made a bright profession of faith in Christ, and when he was sixteen years of age he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. At the age of twenty-seven years he consecrated his life to the gospel ministry, and he began at once to prepare himself for that work. He entered Southwestern University, and spent four years in preparation for the work to which God had called him. He was admitted on trial in the old Northwest Texas Conference in November, 1890, and for twenty-three years he went in and out before the Church as a faithful minister of the gospel of the grace of God. During these years he served circuits, stations, and districts, always going where he was sent without murmur or complaint. As a pastor he was faithful, painstaking, and persevering. He was a close student of the Bible and a constant, careful reader of the very best books. Consequently he had a well-trained mind. Every power of his personality was completely consecrated to the gospel ministry. Eight years of his ministry were given to the presiding eldership, and in this capacity he served the Church wisely and well. He was chosen by his brethren to represent the Northwest Texas Conference in the General Conference at Oklahoma City. One of our very best men has fallen, and the Northwest Texas Conference is sadly bereft, but we will cherish his memory and strive to carry forward the work he helped to project. He leaves a widow and five children, two sons and three daughters, to mourn the loss of a noble husband and father. May the mantle of the father fall upon the sons; and may the memory of his many virtues serve as a bond to bind the entire family to the things eternal he so delighted to preach. We shall meet him no more in Conference here; no more shall we hear him discourse on the great things of God; no more shall we listen with delight as he calls men from the ways of sin to higher and holier things; never again on earth shall we grasp his hand and feel the warmth of his great, loving heart in the home and in the social circle; but if only we are faithful we shall see him again in the everlasting kingdom of our God.—J. W. Story.

ROBERT MINNIS MORRIS.—The Northwest Texas Conference lost a good man when Bob Morris was transferred to the upper field on the seventh day of May last. He had been in bad health for some time, but a paralytic stroke finally closed his career. He left a widow and nine children in mourning. They loved him dearly, and had a good cause for so doing. One child had gone in infancy. All are Christian children. As a manly man he recognized his inabilities and limitations, and fully adjusted himself to those lines; he was always in good humor about it, and tried to fill the space to its utmost, thus fulfilling his place without the friction common to the most of men. His earthly life began in Jackson County, Ala., on September 7, 1852. Five years later his parents moved to Texas and settled in Cass County. He was born of the Holy Ghost in early boyhood and became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at once. He was twice married—first to Miss Mary E. Manning, of Navarro County, Texas, who lived only one year and a half; the second time to Miss Ellen Arena Christie, who survives. During an active ministry of more than a quarter of a century he served the following pastoral charges: Burnett Mission, two years; Whitt Circuit, one year; Cartersville Circuit, one year; Vineyard City Mission, one year; Millsap Circuit, one year; Childress Mission, one year; Plainview Mission, two years; Canyon City Mission, one year; Dickens City Mission, two years; Hale Center Mission, two years; Kirkland Mission, one year; Matador Circuit, one year; Floydada Mission, one year; Oglesby Circuit, one year; Pearl Circuit, one year. At the close of this year, which was in the fall of 1901, he was given the supernumerary relation, which honorable relation came to him because of failing health, and which relation he sustained for some four years, during which time he held meetings and did such preaching as he was able to do. In the fall of 1905 he was returned to the effective list and assigned to Cataline Mission one year; then to Groom Circuit one year, after which he was placed upon the superannuate roll of his Church, and in that relation he continued to the end of his useful life.—Jerome Haralson.

JACKSON PRICE LOWRY was born of religious parents, in Prentiss County, Miss., April 21, 1864, and departed this life from his parsonage home in Miami, Texas, June 21, 1914. He was converted and joined the Church at the age of fifteen years in Chico, Wise County, Texas, under the ministry of Rev. James McDougal; was licensed to preach July 15, 1893, by the Farmer Quarterly Conference of the Northwest Texas Conference, J. T. L. Annis, presiding elder; and in November of the same year he was admitted on trial in the North Texas Conference. He was received into full connection in this Conference and ordained by Bishop Duncan in November, 1895, and ordained elder by Bishop Galloway in November, 1898. For seventeen years he was a member of the North Texas Conference, where he served the following charges in the order named: Benvenue Mission, Bonita Circuit, Blue Grove Circuit, Bridgeport and Boyd Circuit, Wichita Falls Station, Garland Station, Forney Station, Boyd and Garland Circuit, Oak Lawn Station (Dallas), Nocona Station, Key Memorial Station (Sherman), Wolfe City Station, and Leonard Station. In July, 1910, he was transferred to the Northwest Texas Conference, where he labored until called to his reward. In this Conference he served the following charges: McLean Station, Stratford Station, and Miami and Pampa charge. It was here, in the midst of toils abundant and perhaps his most successful work, after a brief illness, he was called to receive a crown of life. Just after he was admitted on trial in the Conference, he was happily married to Miss Lula Mounts, of Wise County, Texas. This union was blessed with three children, two boys and a girl. The little girl went on to a better life in her infancy, while the two boys, with their mother, live to mourn the loss and cherish the memory of the noble father and faithful husband. One of our best charges is bereft of a much-loved pastor. Our Conference has lost one of its most faithful members. Then, while we mourn the loss of one so dear, let us rejoice in the Christian faith, and live so as to "meet where those glad faces smile, that we have loved long since and lost awhile."—J. W. Story.

CLAUDE B. SMITH was born on May 15, 1869; died April 15, 1914. He was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the age of seventeen. He was licensed to preach in 1892, admitted on trial in the traveling connection in the Northwest Texas Conference in 1899, and served the following charges in that Conference: Indian Creek, two years; Comanche Circuit, two years; Forrester, two years; Grapevine, two years; Lorena, two years; Mount Calm, two years; and West, two years. In 1910 he transferred to the new Northwest Texas Conference and was appointed to Capps Circuit, where he served two years. From here he was appointed to McCauley, where he served one year and three months, and was forced to surrender his work because of declining health. As a man Brother Smith was above reproach; his character was as transparent as the light. As a preacher he was well equipped educationally, prepared his sermons carefully and delivered them with power and demonstration of the Spirit. His preaching was thought-provoking, but distinctly evangelistic. He possessed the spirit of the true Methodist preacher, and without a murmur he accepted his appointment, though he often found it in difficult fields. Through the years he labored on many hard circuits, with small salaries and with a large family; but in spite of this, by his untiring energy and business sagacity he laid by a small competency, so that his faithful wife and children were not without a home when he was gone. He loved the doctrine and polity of his Church and put his splendid life upon her altars. Humanly speaking, his death was untimely. He saw the end approaching weeks before, and welcomed the summons with beautiful resignation and serenity of spirit. His heart and life were rich in the faith and love of the Lord Jesus Christ. We miss his sunny spirit and loving fellowship, but we would not call him back, for he has found his place among that countless throng "who have come up through great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." May the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ keep in perfect peace the loved ones who are left behind.—R. A. Clements.

I. Z. T. MORRIS was born in Spalding County, Ga., March 21, 1847. In 1867 he was licensed to preach in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. After finishing his course in Auburn College, Georgia, he was admitted on trial in the traveling connection in 1869, and served various appointments in the Alabama Conference until 1874, at which time he came to Texas and was assigned to Washington Street, Houston. During his pastorate there he was married to Miss Belle Waters on June 21, 1876. He is survived by his widow and seven children—three sons, Marvin, Oscar, and Robert, and four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Whitaker and Misses Ethel, Gertrude, and Lucy Key Morris. Brother Morris spent about seventeen years as a member of the Texas Conference, and during that time served the Church in the various appointments as circuit rider, station preacher, and presiding elder. In 1891 he transferred to the then Northwest Texas Conference and was assigned to city mission work in Fort Worth. In this capacity he served until the organization of the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society, which may be attributed to him as its founder and which was the outgrowth of his experiences in dealing with the helpless, the homeless, and the childless, as he met them in the life of the city. For fifteen successive years Brother Morris received his appointment as superintendent of the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society, just as did all other preachers to their respective fields of labor. But his last appointment has been given and his work on earth is done. Perhaps the crowning tribute to his life and labors is paid in the society which he founded and to which he gave the last years of his life. He was convinced that throughout the land there was a private home for every orphan child, and an orphan for every childless home. Upon this basis he did his work. How well he succeeded is attested by the thousand "little ones" made glad and happy because of the comfortable homes and the foster-parents which this good Father Morris secured them; and also by the thousand homes which have been brightened and blessed because of the coming of "these little ones." All in one, we join in expecting for him a twofold resurrection: first, that he shall be raised through the resurrection power of Christ the Redeemer to "everlasting life" in the bright home of the soul; and second, that he shall be raised up and live in the love and in the gratitude of the thousands whom he has blessed by having lived on earth.—H. M. Long.

Ques. 21. What preachers have died during the past year? I. A. Vernon, William A. Wier. 2.

ISAAC ASBURY VERNON was born of godly parentage in Charleston, Mo., July 26, 1846. He was born again in early manhood, and immediately felt called to the Christian ministry; and when I became his pastor at Charleston, Mo., in 1872, I found him resisting the call, and consequently a restless and unhappy man. In the fall of 1878 he became obedient to the heavenly vision, and was admitted on trial into the White River Conference, in Arkansas. From that time until the close of his life his supreme purpose was to cry, "Behold the Lamb!" After ten years of service in the White River Conference, he was transferred to the Florida Conference in 1889, and finished his life and ministry at Tampa, Fla., in the home of his son Baker, April 18, 1914. Brother Vernon, natively, had a high order of intellect, and would have reached the high places had he not been handicapped by the want of early training. At the age of sixteen he enlisted in the Confederate Army at Walnut Ridge, Ark.; and being small of stature, he became the mascot of his company. He was mustered out of service at the close of the war, having passed through several battles and much hard service. As may be seen, the years that would naturally have been devoted to study were given to the defense of his country. At the age of twenty, a ragged, penniless young man, with only his musket and knapsack, he set his face toward the hard tasks that were before him. He was a man of strong convictions and fiery earnestness. No one ever went to sleep under his preaching. He was often eloquent and always entertaining. His ministry was effective, and many were slain of the Lord, as he wielded with much force the sword of the Spirit. He was never a misfit; he always left his charges in better condition than when he entered upon the work. For more than thirty years, on what is generally termed hard works, he bravely went forward until physical infirmities forced him to retire from active service. For several years his sufferings have been grievous, often painful in an extreme degree. Brother Vernon was thrice happily married. The three noble women who shared the hardships of his ministry were my personal friends. He was married the last time at Hawthorne, Fla., September 29, 1896, to Miss Willie Martin. She and two of his children, Baker G. Vernon and Mrs. Fannie R. Gatlin, remain to cherish his memory. He was related to some of the choicest people of Southeast Missouri, namely: the Moores, Goodins, and Haws, to whom Methodism in that country owes so much. I feel personally bereft, being honored in an uncommon degree by his friendship, as he often said, "You are my best friend." A few days before he went away he said, "I believe that God will take care of me"; so I hope that after the mists have cleared away I shall meet him again in that land

"Where everlasting spring abides,
And never-withering flowers."

WILLIAM A. WIER, son of the late Robert O. Wier and his wife, Laure F. Grant, of Noxubee County, Miss., was born near Macon, Miss., May 15, 1870. At the early age of fourteen he was left an orphan, both father and mother dying in 1884. This deprived him of educational advantages; but being a boy of ambition and perseverance, he dug out, almost unaided, a fair English education. He attended school for a while prior to his parents' death in Pickensville, Ala. After struggling for some time, he met Captain Wright, who was conducting a school for boys in Livingston, Ala. He secured a place and taught in this school, and pursued his studies under the direction of Captain Wright. He was always of a religious turn of mind, and was never seen in bad company or heard to use bad language. He was converted at an early age and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Pickensville, Ala., under the ministry of Rev. D. S. McDonald, of the North Alabama Conference. He went to Florida in 1886 and stayed for a while in Sumter County with his brothers, the late Thomas A. Wier and Rev. Robert O. Wier, then a member of the Florida Conference, but now of the Texas Conference. While living with the latter, he was licensed to preach at Stewart's Chapel, Webster, Fla., in 1889, when only nineteen years of age. After this he returned to Alabama, and it was then that he taught with Captain Wright in Livingston. He returned to Florida in 1893, and taught school in Gadsden and Polk Counties. In 1893 he was recommended to the Annual Conference by the Bowling Green Quarterly Conference—Rev. A. E. Householder, presiding elder, and Rev. R. O. Wier, preacher in charge. He was admitted on trial at Palatka, Fla., in January, 1894, and was sent to the Fort Bassinger Mission. While on this charge he was married in 1894 to Miss Lula Odem, daughter of the late Ebenezer Odem, near Plant City, Fla. He was true to his convictions, and lived without a blemish on his character. He leaves behind him, to mourn his going away, a wife and five children, three boys and two girls; three brothers, Rev. R. O. Wier of the Texas Conference, and J. S. and J. W. Wier of Bessemer, Ala.; four sisters, Mrs. B. Wier of Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. C. O. Hilton of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. A. H. Rummell of Princeton, Fla., and Mrs. J. J. Neylan, Jr., of Tampa, Fla.; and a host of friends wherever he has been. Will. was a noble boy. He would not do a little mean thing. He was a true man. He was consecrated to his work. He loved the work. He had a hard time, but he bore it bravely; and God has said, "It is enough; come up higher." Our hearts are bowed in sorrow, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope. We will meet him again "where sorrow never comes, and they never say good-by." May our heavenly Father take care of his loved ones left behind, and may they all meet him in the Father's house above!
